Unions Strike In Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — A province-wide strike by 210,000 public service employees caused widespread disruption today of schooling and hospital services and threw public utility workers, some of whom are affected by restraining court injunctions, into confusion.

The walkout, second general public service strike in two weeks, disrupted hospital care for thousands of Quebecers, forced hundreds of schools to close, brought civil service functions to a standstill and closed provincially-run liquor stores.

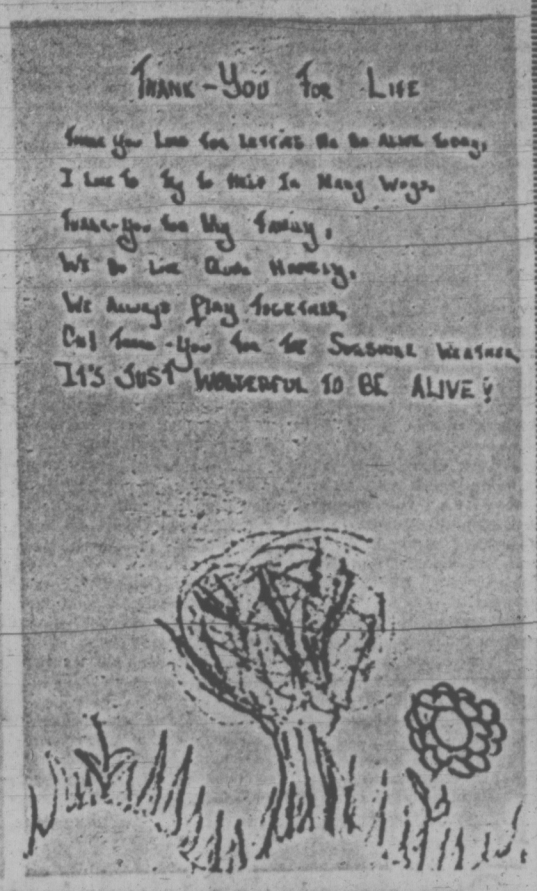
It also disrupted court proceedings as provincially-employed workers set up pickets outside courthouses.

In one case, Sessions Court Judge Andre Fabien held an open air court session outside Montreal's city hall when pickets blocked access to regular court rooms.

Union leaders said today's strike will be "prolonged" beyond 24 hours. It was called because of deadlocked contract negotiations with the provincial government.

In Quebec City, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said the government is considering seeking contempt citations against unions which do not respect Superior Court injunctions ordering workers providing essential services to stay on the job during the strike.

LITTLE DEAD GIRL LEFT POEM



Just Wonderful to Be Alive!

Except one item.

It was a crayon illustrated poem called Thank You For Life that she wrote herself. It said:

"Thank you Lord for letting me be alive today.
"I like to try to help in many ways,
"Thank you for my family,
"We do live quite happily,
"We always play together,
"Oh! Thank you for the sunshine weather,
"It's just wonderful to be alive!"

Tami's father, Gary, a lieutenant with the suburban Carmichael fire department, said he and his wife found the poem the day after his little girl died last Thursday of leukemia.

"My wife looked in a folder, and there was this poem right on top. We've never seen it before. I wonder if she planned it that way."

Her father said he found out in December, 1970, that Tami had the deadly disease.

"We never told her that she had leukemia because we always hoped she'd be home well again," Hogan said. "We just told her it was an infection."

Tami's teacher, Sister Mary Carton of Our Lady of the Assumption school, said the little girl knew something was wrong.

"She said once she wished she could have just one day when she didn't feel sick."

Provincial Jobless Ranks Rise

Times News Services

Unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 8.6 per cent — 82,000 persons — during the month of March, Statistics Canada reported today.

In February, unemployment in B.C. stood at 7.6 per cent, or 70,000 persons. In March of last year, 8.3 per cent of the work force was unemployed.

The B.C. figures were unusual because unemployment generally drops in March and secondly because unemployment did show a slight decline for March everywhere in Canada except B.C. and the Atlantic provinces.

Across the nation, jobless figures showed approximately 642,000 people out of work. This was an increase from 627,000 in Feburary, but represented an improvement over the 650,000 unemployed in March, 1971.

RATE UP

Translated into percentages, the national unemployment rate now stands at 7.4 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent in February, but below last year's March figure of 7.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the usual March trend downward had been countered by an unusual influx of new job seekers in the over-all labor force across Canada this month, up 103,000 to almost 8.66 million. The biggest increase — 46,000 — was among younger workers, up to age 24.

The Atlantic provinces remained hardest-hit by unemployment with a March rate of 12.1 per cent, an increase both over February's 11.1 per cent and last March's 10.9 per cent. There are now 80,000 people without jobs in the Maritimes.

QUEBEC BETTER

The Quebec rate declined last month to 9.3 per cent of the labor force from 9.5 in February and 10.1 a year ago. Ontario's rate eased down to 5.6 last month from 5.7 in February and 6.1 a year ago. The Prairie rate declined to 5.4 from 5.6 in February and 5.9 a year ago.

CHARGES DROPPED AGAINST CUBANS

MONTREAL (CP) — All charges were dropped today against six Cubans arrested a week ago when a bomb shattered offices of the Cuban trade commission in Montreal.

The Cubans, employees of the trade commission, were charged after interfering with police investigations of the April 4 blast that resulted in the death of a Cuban guard.

A Cuban claim that the six nationals were entitled to diplomatic immunity resulted in some temporary confusion involving Montreal police, the Quebec justice department and the federal external affairs department.

The six were charged with obstructing police. Three also were charged with illegal possession of firearms.

In municipal court today, Judge Paul Champagne was asked to drop all charges at the request of the external affairs department and Quebec justice department.

B-52 Raids Upset China

Times News Service

PEKING — The Chinese leadership is believed to be extremely displeased over the new U.S. air and naval build-up in the Indochina war theatre and is concerned by the use of B-52 bombers deep inside North Vietnam, diplomats said today.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is thought to have received assurances from President Nixon during his visit to China in February that the U.S. was winding down its involvement in Vietnam.

U.S. statements that the escalated air and naval action is to protect withdrawing American troops are regarded in Peking as an extremely threadbare argument, particularly in relation to strikes by the giant eight-engined bombers near the North Vietnamese city of Vinh, 170 miles south of Hanoi.

Meanwhile, fresh North Vietnamese troops moving in from the A Shau Valley have launched five assaults on fire base Bastogne 10 miles southwest of Hue in a threat to the city and the northernmost American base in South Vietnam, field dispatches said today.

The five attacks carried out under heavy mortar fire were repulsed with the loss of 126 Communists left hanging on the barbed wire defenses. But the United States rushed 400 American combat troops and artillery battery to Phu Cai, 10 miles east of Bastogne, the reports said.

In Chon Thanh Maj.-Gen. James Hollingsworth said today the Communist troops who struck north of Saigon are on the run and his objective is to kill them before they flee to Cambodia.

He conceded, however, that this may be impossible because it is like hunting "mice in a haystack."

The broad-shouldered general in crisp green fatigues said the South Vietnamese troops are fighting "magnificently — their morale is high and they're doing a tremendous job."

Soldiers Die For Hooligans

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Two British soldiers trying to herd rock-throwing youngsters away from a suspected bomb site were killed Monday night when the explosives went off, the army said. The Irish Republican Army promptly claimed responsibility for the killings.

Right-wing Protestants, angered by the soldiers' deaths, criticized British government efforts to conciliate Roman Catholics and demanded the army invade areas held by the outlawed IRA.

The victims of Monday night's Londonderry blast were Lance Bombardier Eric Blackburn, 24, and Bombardier Brian Thomasson, 21, commander and second in command of a patrol rushed to the bowling green pavilion in the Roman Catholic Rosemount district after an anonymous telephone caller warned that a bomb had been planted there.

The patrol found the bomb and, while waiting for explosvies experts to arrive, dispersed gangs of rock-throwing "young hooligans," an army spokesman said.

"They got rid of the youths once and moved behind safe cover," the army spokesman said. "But the youths started throwing rocks again. Blackburn and Thomasson moved out into the open to warn them off. The blast caught them before they could regain cover. They gave their lives saving those young hooligans."

B.C. GOV'T BUYS TIME TO EXPLAIN POLICIES

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

The provincial government announced today it has bought advertising time on all B.C. radio stations so cabinet ministers can explain "government policies" over the air for the next four months.

The time will be paid for with taxpayers' money and used to broadcast a series of five one-minute radio spots every Saturday and Sunday to be called Ask Your Provincial Government. The move was announced in a written press release distributed by the provincial secretary's department.

Former radio man Ray Orchard, who now works in this department, said today he was told three weeks ago by deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace to begin working out a format for the program.

Orchard said the idea was developed by Victoria radio station president Clare Copeland in co-operation with the government.

He said Copeland wanted to get some supplementary weekend material to fill in weekend radio broadcasts from B.C. Radio News, a CFAX-owned political news service.

Copeland was in Toronto today, unavailable for comment, but CFAX vice-president Keith Dagg said all provincial radio stations are receiving today a sample of the kind of program together with promotional tapes.

Each station will buy the program individually. Dagg said he saw no conflict of interest in running pre-packaged government advertising. He said Copeland and New Westminster radio station CKNW manager Mel Cooper worked out production details with the government.

Orchard was unable to place a cost estimate on the program, but Dagg said CFAX's rate for one minute is $21. Over a four-month period, this means the program will cost provincial taxpayers an estimated $138,600.

B.C. Opposition leader Dave Barrett and Liberal leader Pat McGeer today demanded the government make equal time available to all opposition parties at public expense as long as the program is running.

Barrett said the Ask Your Provincial Government Show is an "unbelievable use of public funds for Social Credit propaganda.

"This government is so arrogant that new people are turning to the NDP every day."

He said the government should set up a program for the opposition on the same basis it is doing for itself.

"A democracy cannot be run by one man alone. Unless there is similar access to the information lines to the opposition, then the premier is out to prove the charge that he's a dictator."

McGeer also demanded

NEWS BRIEFS

Case Concluded

CALGARY (CP) — The crown, with only 7½ hours testimony, today concluded its case against Paul Joseph Cini who has been charged with the hijacking of an Air Canada jetliner. (Earlier story Page 12.)

Deal Made

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Anette Gilly, accused in the Yablonski family slayings, pleaded guilty today to three counts of murder and one count of conspiracy in exchange for a prosecution promise not to seek the death penalty.

Hunt Pressed

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — The Argentine government pressed large-scale manhunts today for the leftist terrorists who killed a kidnapped Italian industrialist and an army general. President Alejandro Lanusse said the slayings would not change his decision to hold elections next March to return the country to civilian control.

Gallagher Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Cornelius Gallagher (Dem.—N.J) was charged with evading more than $100,000 in income taxes, perjury and conspiracy, by a federal grand jury, the United States justice department announced today.

Hijack Blocked

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Police said a man attempted to hijack Continental Airlines' flight 781 at the Portland International Airport today but was quickly taken into custody by FBI agents.

LABOR CRISIS

LONDON (CP) — Lord Chalfont said today he is quitting his post in the opposition Labor party, joining three other top members who resigned in protest of Harold Wilson's European Common Market policies. It was the worst crisis to hit the party in 20 years. Earlier story on Page 12.

Energy Crisis 'Here Now'

Times News Services

The United States and Canada are facing an immediate "energy crisis" that is expected to worsen over the next decade in a string of power blackouts and fuel shortages, according to business and political leaders in both nations.

In Washington, U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told a congressional committee Monday that, while the public uses far more fuel and electrical energy than ever before, production in these fields is badly lagging.

Forty to 50 new electrical power plants, due to begin operations this summer, probably won't because of environmental, technical, construction and licensing problems, Morton said.

Another witness, U.S. Under Secretary of State John Irwin said it may be as early as 1980 — only eight years away — that the United States will need to import half of the oil it will consume. About one-third of the total consumed would have to come from the Middle East, he said, adding that even new discoveries of oil in Alaska will not meet the demand.

Committee Chairman Wayne Aspinall said the hearings were called to spotlight for the American people the imminent energy crisis. "The problem," he said, "is that Americans are beginning to consume more energy than they produce. We are energy gluttons."

Also in Washington, a separate senate subcommittee hearing was told Monday that the Pacific northwest can expect electrical power shortages soon.

H. R. Richmond, administrator of the Bonneville power administration said "Total peak deficits are forecast in five of the next six years and firm peak deficits are forecast in four of the next six years.

In a related move in Seattle Monday, city council refused to reconsider its approval of plans by the Seattle City Light company to raise the Ross Dam on the Skagit River. The dam will flood some 5,200 acres in the Skagit Valley and has been opposed by conservationists.

But council feels the dam is vital to future power needs in the Seattle area.

In Toronto, an oil company executive also forecast an "energy crunch" in Canada within the next decade.

Z. P. Pokrupa, consultant economist with Shell Canada Ltd. in Toronto, said Canada's "period of cheap energy is over, and we must face the fact that the cost of producing energy is definitely on the increase throughout the world."

Nuclear plants "will eventually provide almost unlimited energy," but this is in the future, Pokrupa said.

He said coal, natural gas and oil will be used in large quantities until nuclear power systems are perfected, and the cost for these resources will climb with increased demand.

Iran Quake Toll Rises

Times News Services

TEHERAN — Army rescue teams worked around the clock today, digging victims of Monday's devastating earthquake from the rubble of their homes as the estimated death toll climbed toward 5,000.

Further minor tremors — an average of one every 90 seconds — hampered the rescuers with threats of fresh landslides throughout southern Iran.

The Pars news agency of Iran reported that 963 persons were killed in the town of Qeer and that some 4,000 others lost their lives in 44 other villages levelled by the quake.

The Geophysics Institute at Shiraz University reported more than 1,000 tremors had hit the quake region since the first devastating shock Monday.

It will be a number of days before the final toll is known, relief officials said.

The repeated earth shocks caused panic among survivors fleeing demolished villages. Most of them pitched tents on surrounding plains scarred by wide fissures.

CUPE Hints at Legal Action

The striking Canadian Union of Public Employees hinted today it may take legal action against Sandringham Private Hospital if the company continues to refuse to negotiate.

Twenty-eight members of the union's Local 1311 have been on strike against Sandringham for almost 19 months seeking a first contract similar to ones in effect at three other private hospitals in Victoria.

It was disclosed Monday that the B.C. Labor Relations Board has rejected an appeal by Sandringham against a decision Feb. 16 that the hospital is not bargaining and has not bargained collectively with the striking union.

In a letter to Sandringham's lawyer Louis Lindholm, the board said the appeal was rejected "because no evidence has been submitted which would warrant any change in its decision."

Asked what happens next, CUPE representative Alex Markides said "we're being reasonable. We are saying contact us and negotiate. If they don't, we may have to take other action."

Following the Labor Relations Board decision against Sandringham Feb. 16, the union wrote hospital owners Russell J. Shepherd and John G. McHill of Vancouver asking for negotiations. Shepherd replied that he has referred the letter to his lawyer.

CUPE, however, also drew attention to Section 49 of the Mediation Commission Act which states that failure to bargain collectively is an offence against the act.

While the union did not point out the penalty in its letter, it is, on conviction, a fine not exceeding $10,000 for a company plus not more than $150 a day for every day the offence continues.

In its letter to Shepherd and McGill, CUPE added: "Of course, we do not believe that management and labor relations should be dealt with in the arena of courts having criminal jurisdiction. We believe that the best interests of both, and consequently of the community at large, can best be achieved by the parties sitting down together and endeavoring in the context of current circumstances in a spirit of goodwill to reach an accord.

"We are quite confident that if you and we meet, it would not be long before an accommodation satisfactory to all would be reached."

There have been no negotiations between the two sides since before the strike started, when National Nursing Homes Ltd. of Vancouver managed Sandringham.

A 10-mile walkathon will be held Saturday, May 13, by the Oak Bay Secondary School Band Parents and the Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay.

Proceeds of the event, which will begin at 10 a.m. at Willows Park, will be split two ways — half to help finance the band on a European tour this summer and the remainder for the Kiwanis Senior Housing Society's senior citizens housing project in Oak Bay.

Entry forms will soon be available at Oak Bay schools, from Kiwanis members and the band's parents association.

'Hot Potato' To Be Served

A political science course developed by two Claremont teachers will be offered to Grade 12 students in Saanich Peninsula school district in September.

At a board meeting Monday night, director of instruction Tom Elwood persuaded all trustees, with the exception of Gordon Ewan, to vote in favor of the new course which will be taught by Don Sanford and George Montgomery.

Elwood said the course will provide students with an understanding of their rights and responsibilities as well as example of different political structures.

A similar course on political science, originally proposed last year for use in Oak Bay high school, has been reproposed by the Greater Victoria school board to the department of education.

The proposal last year caused considerable controversy and approval was not given by the department.

Trustee Ewan objected that the course could be "an invitation to brainwashing" and stressed that students should first get a good grounding in basic disciplines.

"I would be more interested in basic economics, philosophy and logic taught," said Ewan, who added that the idea of this course makes him break into a cold sweat.

Trustee Ann Forester argued that although the course "sounded like a hot potato," broad outlines of political systems in different countries should be known by those who will vote at the age of 19.

"The people involved in course preparation are not activists," Elwood assured the board. "Studies include decision-making in Canada, B.C. and Saanich."

of unemployment for men aged 25 and over—principally, the family bread-winners of the country—remained unchanged at 6.3 per cent of that category of the labor force. While it showed no improvement last month, this rate was down significantly from 7.2 in March last year.

Higher unemployment struck mature women in the labor force, rising to 4.3 per cent last month from 4.1 in February and 3.6 in March last year.

The rate for younger workers in the age group up to 24 also rose last month to 12.6 per cent from 12.4 in February, but remained below the 12.9 figure recorded in March last year.

The Statistics Canada figures are estimates made on the basis of a survey of about 30,000 representative households, reporting on the employment situation during the week ending March 18.

On the employment side, more workers were employed in most industries and there was a strong gain in employment in manufacturing.

The number of people with jobs rose to almost 8.02 million from 7.93 million in February. Employment totalled 7.68 million in March last year.

In Ottawa, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the unemployment figures show that Prime Minister Trudeau's "election-date waiting game" is an "exercise in futility."

Stanfield said March unemployment was as great on a seasonally-adjusted basis, 6 per cent, as it was when first reported a year ago.

RCMP investigators are faced with two apparent hit-run accidents in which they are unable to interview the victims because they are unconscious.

Charles Stephen Ferguson, 14, a newspaper carrier boy, remained in fair condition in Queen Victoria General Hospital today, more than two days after he was found unconscious at the side of the Trans-Canada Highway near the Thetis Lake overpass Sunday morning.

Hospital authorities say he is still not in condition to be interviewed by Colwood RCMP, who believe the boy was the victim of a hit-run accident.

He was found at 5:30 a.m. by a city man headed north on a fishing trip. The boy was lying at the side of the road near Henson's Bulldozing property at 1580 Trans-Canada Highway, suffering from head injuries, cuts and bruises.

Central Division RCMP officers report slight improvement but are still unable to interview a woman found unconscious on the Malahat eight weeks ago tomorrow.

Dale Coverdale, 19, of 1026 Pemberton, has been in an almost constant coma since she was found by the side of the Shawnigan Lake cutoff road Feb. 23.

Police say both cases appear to involve hit-run drivers, and have appealed to any witnesses to come forward.

'Great Concern'

GRANDE PRAIRIE (CP) — Alberta can no longer tolerate inequities in railway freight rates, Industry Minister Fred Peacock said Monday night.

Nitinat Rally Here Sunday

Representatives of Vancouver Island and mainland citizen groups will attend a public rally in Victoria Sunday night to press for the inclusion of three lakes in Pacific Rim National Park.

The meeting will be held in McPherson Playhouse, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The rally has been organized by SPRINT (Save Pacific Rim-Include Nitinat Triangle) Action Committee.

The group is composed of citizens concerned about the danger of losing to loggers the last three low level lakes — Tsusiat, Hobitan and Squalicum — on Vancouver Island.

The meeting will also discuss the lack of an integrated land-use policy in British Columbia, an issue which is of concern to people from all parts of the province, John Willow, one of the organizers, said.

Several speakers have been invited to address the meeting. Movies and slides will be shown.

Among the organizations to be represented at the rally are B.C. Wildlife Federation, Sierra Club, Outdoor Club, Canoe Club, Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society, B.C. Federation of Naturalist, B.C. Recreational Council, Parent-Teacher organizations, Okanagan-Similkameen Society and youth groups.

equal time because, he said, public money is involved.

"The use of public funds for government propaganda is absolutely outrageous and it's another disgraceful abuse of power which so characterizes the Huey Long tactics of Premier Bennett," he said.

McGeer said he has noticed a "relentless escalation" in the use of tax money by the Socreds to keep themselves in office. He and Barrett suggested the government is bringing in the program because their public opinion polls show their popularity to be down.

McGeer said Ask Your Provincial Government could be used as a public opinion poll. Dagg said it was never considered that opposition viewpoints be presented because the government show was for explanation of government policy.

Orchard said he will tape the questions and answers by cabinet ministers in their offices. He said the government will decide what questions will be answered, but he said if he felt that a particularly good question should be asked, he would do so.

He said names of questioners would be used, but could be withheld on request.

Questions will be sent in to the legislative buildings here in written form, Orchard said. Further procedural details will be released on promotional ads to be run on radio beginning next Monday.

The program officially begins April 29. Five commercials will be run on Saturday and Sunday. In the press release, Bennett is quoted as saying "in a democracy it's very important that the citizens understand government policies and how these policies work out, and for the government to find out if there are any flaws in these policies."

But Bennett refused to discuss the issue when asked about it by reporters later in the morning.

Orchard said the program will be broadcast for four months on an experimental basis. It would not necessarily become a permanent feature of government activity.

Bennett said the program will consist of "short, factual answers by different ministers."

Asked whether opposition parties would be given the same opportunity to answer questions, Bennett replied that the only way they will get that opportunity is by becoming the government.

the weather

Cold showery weather will continue over B.C. again today as another area of low pressure moves southeastward along the coast from the northern Gulf of Alaska. Still another disturbance is in store for the north coast Wednesday but the rest of the province may get a glimpse of the sun Wednesday afternoon.

IWA APPLIES FOR MEDIATION

The International Woodworkers of America announced Monday it is applying for a mediation officer because of a deadlock in negotiations with 115 coast timber companies.

The move came four days after John Billings, chief negotiator for Forest Industrial Relations, called a 10-day moratorium on negotiations because of "impossible" IWA proposals.

The IWA represents 28,000 workers, including almost 2,000 on southern Vancouver Island. The current contract expires June 15.

IWA regional president Jack Moore said Billings has refused to make any offer.

"He says there will be a wage increase but refuses to say anything about how much or about any of the other demands that we have made," said Moore.

"If he continues in this arrogant attitude we'll have turmoil in the forest industry like nothing he's ever seen before. "We want to avoid that and that's why we're applying for a mediation officer."

Billings responded Monday by saying he regrets the union's decision to seek a mediation officer. He called the IWA's wage demands "nonsensical."

The union has been seeking a $1 an hour across the board wage increase in a one-year contract, plus a number of category adjustments, as well as improved vacations, a dental and pension plan and other items.

Saanich Hollers 'Cut' After Look at Budget

Saanich council was presented Monday night with a draft 1972 budget which, if adopted, would mean a whopping increase of well over six mills in the mill rate for general and debt purposes.

But before they get down to any pruning of the $12.5 million budget, aldermen have decided that an increase of that size is intolerable.

After its first broad look at the figures, council decided unanimously to instruct senior staff to come back in two weeks' time with suggestions for lopping two mills off the proposed increase.

However, the motion by Ald. Ed Lum specified that the cuts will have to exclude roads and drainage, the two perennial victims of budget slashing.

As a mill is worth $146,775, the spending cuts suggested by staff will have to total nearly $300,000.

Last year's mill rate for general and debt purposes was 40.25, up three mills over 1970.

Council was told Monday night that the general tax levy needed to balance this year's budget is $6,890,115, requiring a mill rate of 46.94, or an increase of 6.69 mills over last year.

This does not include the mill rates levied by Greater Victoria and Saanich school districts, regional hospitals and the Municipal Finance Authority.

Nor does it include the sewer debt charge which, municipal administrator John Tribe warned, is likely to almost double this year.

This question of paying for sewerage development became a bone of contention during the meeting, as Tribe was joined by Ald. Leslie Passmore in questioning why

Six-Mill Rate Hike 'Intolerable'

Saanich should have to pay such a large share of the various sewer works undertaken by the Capital Regional District.

The comments came after the regional board's executive director, Dennis Young, told council that the Saanich share of the total sewer debt charges of $230,000 for 1972 would be $209,614 or about 82 per cent.

Young explained the figure was arrived at by a special committee of municipal engineers of the region's member municipalities, who worked out a complicated formula based on the design flow of the sewer system.

According to this, Young said, the heaviest users of the various facilities would pay the most. Under the formula, Victoria pays 7.5 per cent of total debt charges and Esquimalt 7 per cent.

The cost-sharing plan awards these two components a "significant credit" for the sewer system they abandoned on going into the regional network.

But the explanation didn't satisfy Passmore, who claimed Saanich's share was "way out of line."

Mayor Hugh Curtis, however, pointed out that the proposed formula can be challenged by the municipality's representative when it comes before the regional board, and changes can be made retroactive.

"If it is wrong I don't think it's far wrong," Curtis added. "We knew right from the start that the system was primarily for the benefit of this municipality . . ."

Early in the discussion Ald. Edith Gunning said she would strongly oppose any move to seek cuts from the roads and drainage budget, which shows big increases in both capital and maintenance costs.

"It is great to cut budgets when we can but I honestly feel we have had to cut public works far too drastically over the past five or six years," she said.

But Curtis countered this argument by noting that if the average taxpayer is hit with a significant increase in the 1972 mill rate "that would certainly spell sure defeat" for the proposed December referendum for roads and drainage reconstruction.

Aldermen Challenge Sewer Debt

One bright spot of the evening was the announcement by the municipal administrator that Saanich has a $279,000 revenue surplus from last year.

Esquimalt Eyes $1.3M Projects

A five-year program of capital works "over and above normal budgets" and totalling $1.3 million is being considered by Esquimalt municipal council.

Mayor Art Young said today the program is not yet policy. "We're just looking at possible expenditures over and above normal budget."

But municipal treasurer Peter Cairns has been instructed to examine the package and come up with recommendations on financing for the proposed projects.

And the confidential report of a meeting March 27 attended by the mayor and five members of council as well as municipal staff, at which the five-year program was evolved, said the items included in it were approved in principle.

NO MERIT

Monday evening Young said he could see no merit in creating a public controversy over something which is not yet council policy. This, apparently, was why the meeting was closed and the report labelled confidential.

According to the report, the five-year plan includes $100,000 as a top priority item for enlargement of the municipality's storm drainage system and another $125,000 for replacement of storm and sanitary sewer mains.

Another priority item is lowering and widening of the Craigflower-Tillicum intersection at a cost of $75,000.

SAFETY BUILDING

Of secondary priority, according to the report, is a $120,000 public safety building, and a $55,000 enlargement of the municipal yards.

The largest item in the program, and the item rated as lowest priority, is $750,000 in recreation facilities.

Young said today the only reason the five-year plan was classified as confidential was that it may be scrapped or altered after the treasurer has presented financing possibilities for council consideration.

Esquimalt Dogs Profitable Problem

Dogs appear to be a continuing problem — and a steady source of revenue — for Esquimalt municipality.

Aldermen Monday evening passed a resolution authorizing the city treasurer to "take such steps as deemed necessary to ensure the collection of outstanding 1972 dog licence fees."

And Ald. Terry Prentice issued fair warning that unless some penalty is instituted to eliminate the annual hassle over unpaid licences he will refuse to pay for his canine friend on time next year.

Ald. E. L. De Costa reported to council that only $4,949 in licence fees had been collected to March 24. In 1971, the dog tag take totalled $6,643.

The municipal treasurer will likely hire a student to canvass known dog owners who haven't yet paid, as was done in 1971. That will cost the municipality between $75 and $100, De Costa said.

In other business, Esquimalt council:

—Rejected a bid from the Community Council of Greater Victoria to have the Intermunicipal Committee, which is made up of representatives from the four core municipalities, act as a landlord-tenant advisory board.

Mayor Art Young said today the bid was rejected because council does not feel it is the job of elected representatives to act as a referee between landlords and their tenants. If such a body is needed, he said, it should be established by the province.

—Turned down a bid from the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce for support of a night ferry service to the mainland. The chamber is preparing a brief for submission to Highways Minister Wesley Black asking for the night ferry on a 12-month trial basis, but Esquimalt council felt that while such a service is desirable, the cost to taxpayers is too great for the benefit it would offer.

—Referred an offer from the Juan de Fuca Citizens Band Radio Club to provide its services free to the municipality to the municipal police and Emergency Measures Organization for information and consideration.

Received the regular report of engineer C. T. Warren, which stated that building permits to a value of $1,789,000 have been issued to date this year, compared with only $846,000 to the same date in 1971. Major projects in progress include a 72-suite apartment on Craigflower Rd., a 42-suite apartment on Fernhill Rd., a 10-suite condominium on Esquimalt Rd. and the new Royal Canadian Legion building on Admirals.

Scrap Settled In Scrapyard

A dispute between Morris Greene Industries, 1832 Store, and two unions has been settled, it was announced Monday.

A brief statement by both sides said only that a new collective agreement has been signed and all matters in dispute have been settled.

The boilermakers and teamsters unions said last week that the six employees of the scrapyard were laid off just before Easter, in the midst of negotiations, and they are calling in a mediation officer to settle the dispute.

The unions had been seeking an average 50 cents an hour pay raise on rates ranging between $3.48 and $4.06 an hour.

Pressing for a Showdown

An alleged secret diplomatic message from President Nixon to United States allies in Asia promises that the invasion of South Vietnam will not be allowed to succeed. While unconfirmed, such a message could well have been the result of worried queries from other countries in that part of the globe. A northern victory would obviously have far-reaching repercussions throughout Southeast Asia and farther afield. Conquest of South Vietnam would be a logical encouragement to Hanoi, and China, to push for a similar result in Laos and Cambodia.

Whether or not Mr. Nixon has sent reassurance to his Asian allies, his own position will be difficult if the Southern defences do not hold. At this point, conflicting reports from the two sides make it difficult to assess the positions of the forces and the losses they have sustained. But Mr. Nixon is virtually committed to withholding active American combat troops from the current battles, and further thousands of men will be repatriated at the end of the month. American air power and naval shelling are thus the only tangible active assistance the Southern forces will receive.

The bombing attacks have been rapidly escalated, but years of Vietnam bombing and incredible tonnages of bombs have failed to halt the Northern war effort and the efficiency of high-altitude attacks over jungle country is still very much in doubt. We have read many times of heavy raids on minor bridges, for instance, only to have the crossings back in use next day. The armory of weapons has increased enormously, with everything short of nuclear missiles, but the net returns on this tremendous investment have apparently been far from what might be expected. The monsoon weather will also be adverse for some time yet.

Hanoi must be very confident of its strength or it would have waited until still more Americans had been withdrawn from Vietnam according to the established schedule. But even a failure of this major onslaught would likely result merely in a withdrawal northward and a further wait until Saigon has been left on its own.

How long Mr. Nixon can extend the protective cover of air and naval strength over South Vietnam, as the United States election campaign gets into high gear, is yet to be seen. But continued American participation will postpone the exchange of war prisoners — and this could become a still more pressing issue as November approaches. It is very difficult to wage a little bit of war. Mr. Nixon's choice between all or nothing is apparently still to be made.

An Encouraging Step Back From the Brink

Heralded as "the first firm international step involving actual disarmament," the Biological Weapons Convention was signed Monday in London, Washington and Moscow. It will impose a total ban on production of biological warfare weapons, and the destruction of existing stocks and their delivery systems within nine months of the Convention's coming into force. It must first be ratified by 22 of the 70 signatory nations.

Arriving at a method of policing the ban proved difficult. It was finally decided to allow nations suspicious of other nations to complain to the UN Security Council.

Germ warfare has been part of the horror story of modern weaponry, but it has existed as a possibility rather than as a practicable device. The United States renounced all types of bacteriological weapons in 1969, although that country did not subscribe to the Geneva protocol which sought to ban chemical warfare.

Germ warfare could be a difficult means of destruction to control, and the user might eventually suffer as much as the victim. But so long as nations stockpiled bacteriological material of unimaginable deadly power there was always the chance that a desperate country might resort to it.

That could still happen, of course, for the new agreement does not provide for international inspection. But the stand has been taken, another useful precedent has been established, and the way is open to add a total ban on chemical warfare. The ultimate objective, to halt the armaments race in all its phases, is still a distant goal. But the nations are talking more seriously of it, and it is slowly coming out of the dream stage.

Medical Economics

While everyone is in favor of advancing the interests of science there is a rising general concern over the price of progress. In the medical field, high costs and the need to maintain progress have come into conflict. Medical science, according to Dr. John Callaghan of the University Hospital in Edmonton, is making a certain heart operation feasible on a large scale. But the fees are very high and it is programs like this which have almost bankrupted health insurance agencies.

Dr. Callaghan blames the laboratory: "The writing is on the wall that the health-care systems are going bankrupt. We, the scientists, have done it."

The discovery of ever more sophisticated techniques will no doubt continue to push prices upward, although further advances, and familiaritiy with the techniques, may eventually help to push prices down. So the blame is not really on "scientists" or "science" but on the state of flux in which medical science has suddenly been plunged. A more flexible structure of costs in the medical profession and its research and mechanical adjuncts will be welcomed.

JAMES RESTON

A Different Spirit in Europe

PARIS — It is hard to define and dangerous to generalize, but there is clearly a different spirit in the capitals of Western Europe these days, and a marked change in the attitude of officials here toward the United States.

Paris, for example, has never seemed more elegant and proud, and if it weren't so recklessly expensive it would almost be a joy to be gypped in such glittering surroundings. The old buildings are scrubbed and tidy. The black clipped branches of the trees are now fringed with green and the whole place hums with human activity.

It is not only that the wide-armed cranes are poking new and higher buildings into the Paris sky, but there is an air of intellectual innovation here and in the rest of Western Europe which seems more purposeful than at any time since the last World War.

The old political taboos are breaking down. The French are now welcoming the British into Europe. The vicious propaganda between Germany and the Soviet Union has ebbed, and there was finally a vast pilgrimage or family reunion across the Wall in Berlin this Easter.

Looking Out—Or In

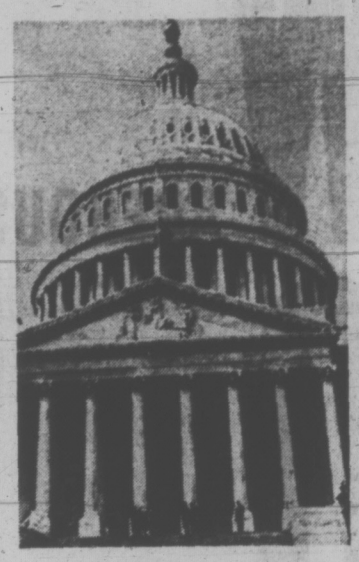
It is not yet clear whether Europe is building a political union looking out to the world, or an economic cartel looking into Europe. But there is now such a flow of workers and capital from one Western European country to another, and such a network of international companies gradually integrating the commerce of these nations, that one wonders how the system could ever be disentangled for the purposes of another Western war.

In fact, while all officials deny it the businessmen of Europe and America for their own selfish reasons and without any political intent, are slowly creating an economic network across the boundaries of Western Europe which may eventually compel the politicians to take common political decisions in defence of vital economic interests, even against their will.

The changing and more independent attitude toward the United States in Western Europe is more obvious and immediate than this trend toward European integration. For the quarter-century since the last war, Europe has relied, reluctantly and often resentfully, on the superiority of American military and economic power.

But it is not the same in Western Europe now. The reliance on American nuclear power remains, but even this has been discounted by those here in Europe who no longer believe in an expansionist and aggressive Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, the dollar is not so mighty. Even the Americans who work in Europe find, when they get up in the morning that it buys less in Germany, Britain and France as the months go by. Also, the Western Europeans, not forgetting the Japanese, no longer accept the notion of America's lead in scientific innovation, mass production, advertising, labor-management relations and distribution.



Superiority Challenged

As for the American ideal of unity and equality at home, and generosity and pity abroad, the magic of the American dream has lost much of its allure in Europe. British and French officials—and particularly the British — are more generous to President Nixon in his handling of the Vietnam withdrawal and his opening to China than his critics at home.

But Vietnam has clearly challenged the American assumption of both military and moral superiority, and convinced even America's friends in Europe that maybe the U.S. doesn't have a superior answer to the problem of world order, and that its "muddling through" is not much better than Europe's way in the nineteenth century.

Also, the internal social and political struggles in the United States, presented to the Western European peoples by a press, radio and television which emphsize the violence and divisions in the United States —as our media dramatized the divisions of Europe in the 30s, 40s and 50s — have made even thoughtful people wonder whether the U.S. can hold together, let alone lead the world to a new and reasonable order.

Call for Equality

Western Europe is now asking for equality in dealing with the common political and economic, if not the defence, problems of the West. The officials in Western Europe are still resenting what they regard as Secretary of the Treasury Connally's tendency to treat them like unequal delegates at a Texas state political convention, and they wonder when he is going to get down to the hard and, particularly, equal bargaining for a new monetary system in the world.

No doubt there is a lot of propaganda in all this. The major nations of the world are just at the beginning of the most important monetary discussions since Bretton Woods, and economics is going to be the major issue in the Presidential election.

But beyond these two immediate subjective problems there is an objective difference now in Western Europe. Officials here are no longer willing to accept the power of America as decisive, even if it saved them from political and economic anarchy in the generations since the last war. Now they want equality of political and economic, if not military, responsibility, and they are finally in a mood, with all their dollar resources, to demand it.

CHARLES BARTLETT

Nixon on the Revolutionaries

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has been studying the lives of the leaders of the French Revolution in an attempt to understand the dehumanized puritanism which possesses revolutionary intellectuals.

He described his research the other day to Ronald Berman, the Shakespearean scholar he has just named to head the rapidly expanding National Endowment for the Humanities. He did not say that his studies were inspired by his visit to China although he reported that he found the Chinese, like the Americans, deeply committed to a better knowledge of themselves and the outside world.

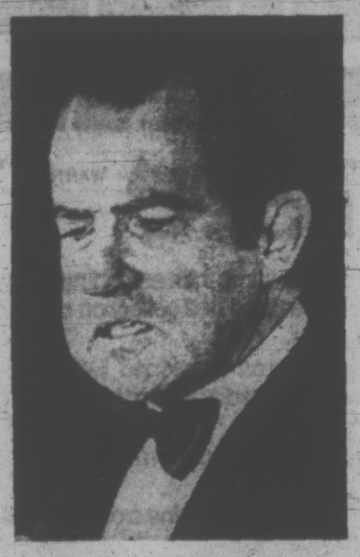
But he found a kinship between the French revolutionary leaders and those who have led revolutions elsewhere. He said they were all worthy of the horrified respect that one gives to formidable but dangerous men. He perceived a persistent strain of puritanical despotism in these men, an intellectual dehumanization which led them to ignore their own social origins.

Wells Concept

The president was provoked, in studying the bloody phase of the French Revolution, by another form of intellectual distortion. He found that H. G. Wells, in his "Outline of History," had undertaken to justify the 4,000 executions of The Terror as the work of a mob "which owed its existence and its savagery to the misrule and social injustice of the ancient regime." Wells said the Republic "was entitled to kill" some of these "notable, well-connected people" because they were active antagonists.

Rejecting this as simplistic and cynical, the president described Wells as a politicized intellectual who had given up any attempt at objectivity or common sense ethics. He told Berman that a good many intellectuals today have given up faith in their disciplines and tried to make demi-political careers. While no one argues against the intellectuals' right to have political opinions, he said, it is disquieting and wrong when the opinions dominate their intellectual roles.

Mr. Nixon said he is pleased however that he has been able to double and redouble the money available to the National Endowment for grants to the humanities. It is important, he said, in a time when the nation has had a lot of trouble with the campuses and the intellectuals to keep the national commitment to learning.



RICHARD NIXON
... studying the lives of leaders

The President's talk of revolutions and politicized intellectuals is interesting at a moment when the press is about to draw sharp censure from a former Nixon aide for its recent record of featuring the revolutionary thrusts of a militant few over the more stable outlook and behavior of the majority.

James Keogh, who left the White House some months ago after a key role in the election of Mr. Nixon, has written a book with the main purpose of documenting media bias against the Nixon administration. But Keogh's sub-theme is that major segments of the press and television are lending themselves with excessive enthusiasm to forces which are hostile to American society and government.

This is a charge substantiated by the coverage accorded those who confront the political leadership, resist national policies, and trumpet the society's negative aspects. Keogh quotes Max Ways as writing that "journalism has a deep-seated and regrettable tendency to prefer the dramatic confrontation between extreme views to the less exciting processes of reasonable discourse and compromise."

Rational Reaction

This preference is undeniable and perhaps regrettable but it is also a rational reaction to a time in which there are deep pockets of unrest, strong pressures for change, and many signs of groping toward what some foresee as a major revolution. The press, still unable to assess the real force of the movements which are stirring, could not do its job by ignoring them.

New research, financed by the National Endowment, is showing that the French Revolution was facilitated by the demoralization of an army subjected to reforms in which all but the most aristocratic and professional officers were squeezed out of the officer corps. With the bourgeoisie excluded from its leadership, the army became powerless to prevent the overthrow of the monarchy.

Mr. Nixon's "dehumanized intellectuals" have succeeded in revolutions as catalysts for human forces set in motion by human aggravations. In its exploration of these forces and their aggravations, the American press may be serving the cause of stability better than its critics now concede.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Just Wait

The long overdue rejection by the public of the unnecessarily extravagant system of education in Victoria and other school districts should be regarded not only as a warning to the local school boards but also as a message to the provincial government that the local taxpayers are simply not prepared to accept financial responsibility for education under the present archaic financial system and the sooner the senior governments acknowledge and accept their proper responsibility the better.

If, as is repeatedly stated, an ever-increasing percentage of local taxes goes to education, just wait until we are told to pay for the vocational colleges when the provincial government aid to those expensive centres is fixed in similar fashion to the public schools.—Over Taxed.

Defender

On March 22 a book was reviewed in "Viewpoint" called "The Kennedy Doctrine," by one Louise Fitzsimmons. She seems to have the entirely ridiculous idea that John Kennedy was responsible for the large army that finally landed in Vietnam.

At the present moment the same howl for air power or troops is being heard in Vietnam as John Kennedy was confronted with. The Pentagon Papers tell the whole story of the hounding from the military and even a few whom we did not expect to demand such action. But some of our advisers were killed—and now we have somewhat the same thing going on.

It made no difference what de Gaulle had to say so far as the Pentagon went — and all the gentlemen attached to the military. They wanted action and more and more hundreds of thousands of troops were demanded — all through Kennedy's days as well as during Johnson's. McNamara finally left the cabinet because of his continuous argument with the military — generals and admirals.

No man who had suffered what John Kennedy did from his war injuries is completely sold on war. The Bay of Pigs was all set up and ready to go — when Kennedy went into office. But he was informed as to how everyone then involved felt about it and what would be thought of him if he put a stop to it. And he always blamed himself for not putting a firm foot down on that one.

Even Johnson had a running argument with the high brass over their constant demand for more and more men in Vietnam. I suggest that this Louise Fitzsimmons get a copy of the Pentagon papers and see if she can so far enlighten herself as to sound less absurd. — Alice B. LONDON — The Irish Home Rule bill, the third effort made by Liberal governments of the United Kingdom in 25 years to settle the difficulties between Great Britain and Ireland, was introduced in the House today by Premier Asquith.

Britishers have become inured to political upheavals in recent years, so the crowded chamber that greeted Mr. Asquith when he nailed up the Home Rule flag today was a special tribute to the historic importance of the occasion.

Ulster Protestants Abused Their Power

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

LONDON — Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." He might have been talking about Britain and Ireland.

There is a grimly cyclican quality about the relationship between these two islands. From the time of Queen Elizabeth I, British governments have thought they could pierce that canker, "the Irish problem," by some decisive military or political act — but always an act preserving a role for Britain in Ireland.

What history might have taught, if British leaders had been willing or able to learn from it, was that the very attempt to remain in Ireland prevents peace. There is no moral judgment in that conclusion, no notion that the Irish as a people are wiser or kinder or braver than the British. It is just that they are different.

The melancholy record of incompatibility between these peoples should caution anyone against taking too hopeful a view of the latest British move. Prime Minister Edward Heath's decision to suspend the provincial government and rule Northern Ireland directly from London was necessary and courageous. But as Heath plainly sees, it is only a frist step; the real challenge is ahead.

The challenge is the same one that has bedevilled British policy through this century; the total resistance of the Ulster Protestants to any change in their dominant position in the province or in their constitutional link to Britain.

The threats and the strikes and the martial cries coming from the Protestants echo those of 60 years ago.

Of course the one million Protestants of Northern Ireland are an inescapable reality for any British Government. No matter that they are descendants of settlers planted there to keep down the natives. They are Ulstermen now and citizens of the United Kingdom, and Britain cannot just wish them away. They have rights, too.

What the Protestants should not have is the right to determine the British Government's policy.

But that is what they have exercised, since the ultras under Sir Edward Carson used blackmail and threats of force to block home rule for Ireland before the First World War, and then to forge partition afterward — with a six-county North crudely gerrymandered to assure Protestant supremacy there.

'A Mean and Unjust State'

Nor should the British, at this point in history, feel any overwhelming obligation to the Ulstermen. The truth is that they were given their chance and destroyed it by their own intractibility.

For 50 years the Protestant Unionist party held absolute power in Northern Ireland. Until the very end, when British revulsion forced a change, the record was one of rank discrimination against Roman Catholics — political, social economic.

The blame was hardly all the Protestants; there were Catholic intransigents enough. But the Protestants had the power in the North and used it to create a mean, unjust and sectarian state.

It is almost an obscene sight now to see the Unionist leader, Brian Faulkner, making claims for British sympathy. It was Faulkner who convinced the Government in London last August to intern suspected Catholic terrorists without trial — a policy of political and moral disaster.

Internment was supposed to reduce the violence. Its efficacy in that regard is indicated in one simple set of figures: deaths in the two years from the start of the troubles until last August, 63. Deaths in the eight months since internment started, 228.

Moreover, the internment completely alienated the Catholic community. Perhaps worst of all were the brutal methods used in questioning internees: While they went on, they suggested that the British were ready to lose their own souls to preserve the Protestant supremacy in Ulster.

The significance of what Heath has done now is that he has stood up to the Protestants. But that, to repeat, is only the beginning. If the process he has begun does not lead to a viable political system, it will be seen — soon — to fail.

Essentially, Britain has two broad choices.

One is to aim for eventual reunification of Ireland. That would mean seeking ways of collaboration and joint action with the Republic — as indeed the original partition plan of 1920 envisaged.

The idea is anathema to the Protestants, but there could be ways of reassuring them. For example, the magazine New Society has put forward an ingenious proposal to let the people of Ulster choose their citizenship, British or Irish, and elect representatives to the Parliament in London and Dublin.

The other choice is what many Protestants now say they want: to integrate Northern Ireland completely into the United Kingdom, as if it were Wales. Many Conservatives would find that idea appealing, perhaps Heath among them; in an interview just five weeks ago he dismissed the idea of a united Ireland as unrealistic.

But there is all that history to caution that a piece of Britain encamped in Ireland will not work.

In 1920 Winston Churchill appealed to the Ulstermen not to stay out of an all-Irish Parliament. Ulster, he said, "Cannot impose a permanent veto on the nation," nor could it, he added, "obstruct forever the reconciliation between the British and Irish democracies."

Teddy Taking the Easy Route to Nomination

By DALTON CAMP

The gauntlet of the American presidential primaries has a long way to be run. Thus far, none of the Democratic Party candidates is winning; instead, all of them are losing.

And the best — or worst — of it comes at the end, in June, when New York and California will elect a total of 549 delegates, more than a third of the total number required for a convention majority. Surely, it is an awesome ordeal for losers.

Politicians are interesting, no matter where they practise or what they're up to, and perhaps the most interesting politician in practice these days is Senator Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts who is, I suspect, the man most likely to succeed in July, at Miami, on the final ballot. I am sure enough off it to have ordered another drip-dry shirt, and made my reservations so as to witness the event.

True enough, Kennedy has a lot to overcome, and we need not dwell upon it, but whatever his disabilities and however eccentric his conduct on occasion, he does not, as do Senator Muskie and Humphrey, overwhelm the electorate with ennui and indifference. He may be, as the result of a pre-convention strategy born of necessity, the only man to succeed at Miami without really trying.

The hard-core reality of the Kennedy strategy had to be that he could not win the nomination by the primary route, or, if he did, he could only come to the convention so badly battered and scarred by personal invective and abuse that his credibility as an alternative to Nixon would have been destroyed before the campaign began.

As an example, it has been reported that the senator recently appeared before a student audience to criticize the Nixon Administration's alleged penchant for secrecy and for misleading the public.

Having done so, someone asked a question about Chappaquiddick, to which the Senator's response was to stalk off the platform. A candidate in the presidential primaries cannot campaign by walking off platforms on every occasion he is confronted by a personally wounding hostility.

Given the Democratic endorsement in Miami, however, Kennedy can claim an absolution bestowed on him by the majority party of his country. Besides, as Nixon demonstrated in 1968, a candidate in a presidential election campaign can be shielded from the dangers of abrasive confrontation by careful planning, even to the provision of captive and friendly audiences in hired halls and TV studios.

Thus, the fact that Kennedy did not enter the primaries does not prove he is not a candidate. To the contrary, it was the only practical decision he could make if he wanted to become one.

In addition to that, he also needed substantive evidence that there was no other viable alternative to his candidacy, and for this his contemporaries are spending millions to prove. The media, covering the current activities of his competitors, if such they be, are reporting precisely as the scenario requires, which is that neither Humphrey, Muskie nor McGovern will come to Miami with enough votes to win the convention, and none of them could defeat Nixon anyway.

KENNEDY
. . . odds improving

Whether Kennedy could defeat Nixon is another matter, although the polls have persisted in finding that he would be the most likely Democrat to do so.

In such a contest, it is beyond belief that any responsible Republican, much less Nixon, would dare raise the ghost of Kennedy's past. The general public would not have it and, of course, the media would not tolerate it either.

Anyway, while one would expect a new generation of sick jokes about Kennedy, such an issue injected by partisans into a presidential campaign could only encourage a substantial backlash in public opinion and create far more problems for Republicans than for Democrats.

Meanwhile, Kennedy is spared the rough primary race, free of the need to take sides on controversial issues, such as busing, left only with the happier task of advising the British Government on its problems in Northern Ireland (which does him no harm at home), and presenting himself as a busily diligent member of the Senate.

He is the only presidential candidate in his party still fresh in wind and spirit and, by the time the party gathers in Miami, he will be the only candidate who could win the convention immediately after the instructed delegates have dispensed with their duty to vote for those who are unable to win.

It will be something to see, almost as awesome as was Chicago, though in a different sense. And while the candidate chosen in Miami is unlikely to defeat Nixon, if the candidate is Kennedy, he will, even in defeat, have been fully restored as a public man, with the past forgotten and forgiven, and the future bright with promise.

Sometimes, as Richard Nixon could testify, political defeat is only the preamble to the ultimate triumph, the essential catharsis for the politician whose only liability is a lingering public memory.

So far as the quest of the youngest Kennedy for the presidency is concerned, it is so far and so good, and even though one might like odds on whether he will, indeed, be chosen in Miami, the odds become shorter with each passing day, and after each inconclusive primary.

Our Own Elmer Gantry

By ALLAN FOTHERINGHAM
The Sun

The point of it all is that Rev. Phil Gaglardi has done extraordinarily well during a life of politics. I cannot think of another politician, from humble beginnings, who after 20 years in this grinding business has emerged with such apparent trappings of well-being.

An interesting contrast is to view his situation alongside that of Ray Williston and Ken Kiernan, two hard-slogging ministers who were elected two decades ago along with Gaglardi when Social Credit began. They are about at the end of the trail now, two tired men who've tried their best for 19 and 20 years. By all appearances, they will leave public service in little changed financial circumstances than when they came in — Williston a Prince George teacher, Kiernan a Chilliwack service station operator.

Contrast that with Gaglardi. Over the years he acquired a ranch outside Kamloops where he bred fine Arabian horses. He built a handsome new home in Kamloops overlooking the river. He acquired a summer home in Savona, a permanent suite in the Hotel Vancouver and staffed offices in Victoria and Kamloops. His two sons got a ranch and became owners of tracts of lands in various parts of B.C. At one time their complicated nest of eight companies, dealing in land beside highways, showed land sales to oil companies totalling some $400,000. All this during a life in politics.

Gaglardi's press releases on himself state that he has "travelled extensively" in 26 countries, including France, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, England, Czechoslovakia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Mexico, Japan, China (oh?), Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Malaya, Spain, Africa. Not a bad list for a provincial minister whose portfolios have never ranged beyond public works, highways and social welfare. He boasts that he always drives Oldsmobiles. He flies on government planes just as often, quite obviously, and just as far as he wishes.

Phil Gaglardi was born in Mission and worked as a mechanic. Some of the boys at the A. R. Williams Machinery Western down on Railway Ave. remember him when he worked there as a catskinner. He made several tries at running a small logging show, then went to Northwest Bible College in Seattle. He started at Calvary Temple in Kamloops in 1946 at $15 a week. Six years later he was elected MLA and became a cabinet minister.

Last year he was paid $30,000 (including $5,000 for expenses and living allowances) and claimed a further $6,495 in travel expenses. Most politicians not independently wealthy end up by losing money — especially those in it for 20 years. Gaglardi is one of the few who seem to have come out on top of the game. He has done rather well for someone who is a full-time politician.

He very much likes the trappings of power. The Hotel Vancouver has been mentioned. Government comptrollers say no other cabinet minister has maintained permanent Vancouver hotel quarters. He likes to lunch in the Panorama Roof, favoring a table tucked down in the northeast corner, overlooking the harbor. It is hardly the surroundings, one would think, where welfare problems are seriously discussed.

Across the street in front of the courthouse, next to the fountain, Gaglardi pulls rank and parks his big car. Supreme Court judges are not allowed to park there, but Gaglardi is. He keeps his car there on the courtyard plaza day and night —though the hotel is attached to a huge parking garage.

Apparently because of its convenient location next door to his hotel suite, the Avord Building at Hornby and Robson, one of the more expensive downtown towers, has been selected as headquarters for Gaglardi's Provincial Alliance of Businessmen. The offices on the 18th floor are decorated with a plush red carpet, black chairs and a sign on the receptionist's desk: "Thank You for Not Smoking." One can hardly think of a setting more inappropriate for the petitioning jobless who are supposed to come here.

Accountants and lawyers in other offices on the floor tell of the self-conscious, uncomfortable people who must march into the sleek office. At lunch hour, they must stand outside and wait in the 18th-floor corridors, for at lunch hour Gaglardi's offices, secretaries and all, are locked up.

He cannot even resist the temptation for outright patronage here. Vancouver regional director is Norm Delmonico, a former right-of-way agent in the highways department. Kamloops director is D. G. Stewart, Gaglardi's former campaign manager. In Victoria, at $12,600, it is Ron Price, son of a Socred MLA and a former Gaglardi aide.

His abuses of his ministerial privileges are well-known. The highways department men caught working on his church. The government employees who filed affidavits swearing to the work done on his and his sons' ranches. The load of government steel beams that was somehow diverted to shore up a Gaglardi ranch dam.

There is a touch of Adam Clayton Powell to him, with his conspicuous flaunting of power and his contempt for the ordinary rules that govern others. There was his $1,000 fine for contempt of court. The long list of speeding convictions and licence suspensions (32 items in our library file).

There are, coming out now day by day, the contradictions in his claims for travelling costs and daily expenses while on these junkets "for government business." He collected, for example, for Sept. 30, 1970, a trip to Edmonton for "men's fellowship meeting." It turns out to be an address to a Braemar Baptist Church group on "The Church's Greatest Challenge." On Oct. 17 he was back to address the Christian Businessmen's Club. Government business? He's on the Oral Roberts circuit, saving souls and charging it to the taxpayers.

As mentioned, Rev. Phil Gaglardi seems to have been served rather well by politics over the years — his homes, his living conditions, his extensive travels, his family prosperity. He was a success as a highways minister 'til his own arrogance (and his refusal to tell the truth when confronted with the Lear jet accusations) forced his resignation. He is a sad failure as a welfare minister, an embarrassment to his own party which now treats him as a pariah.

The Kamloops' library is across the street from Calvary Temple. A curious visitor once asked for a copy of Sinclair Lewis's book, Elmer Gantry. The book was not listed. They don't need it. The living embodiment is across the street.

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (UPI) — Municipal officials cancelled a scheduled performance by American singer Eartha Kitt after discovering on her arrival in South Africa that she is black, according to city council clerk Nico Kempen.

Miss Kitt planned a performance before a white audience at city hall May 23 and permission had been granted. But Kempen said the decision was reversed after officials found out about her race. Kempen said municipal regulations reserve the hall for the exclusive use of whites.

"I realized this sort of thing existed in South Africa before I came here," Miss Kitt said. "It obviously upsets me, but I accept it."

EKSJOE, Sweden — When Czechoslovakia scored after only 36 seconds in a televised world ice hockey championship game against Sweden Sunday, one temperamental Swedish supporter decided he had seen enough.

The 40-year-old Swede picked up his TV set in anger and hurled it out the window from his third-floor apartment, Swedish newspapers reported Monday.

His temper went from bad to worse when he looked out the window and found that he had dropped the set on his own car, parked outside.

Afraid that his neighbors would laugh at him, the hockey fan rushed downstairs, picked up the scattered remains of the set, loaded them into the car and drove off to a garage to get the car repaired.

But he never got that far. Still agitated, he slammed head-on into another car. He escaped unhurt but his car was demolished.

By then Czechoslovakia had already won the hockey game in Prague, 4-1.

WATERLOO, Ont. — Constable Richard Lehman of the Waterloo police force got more than he bargained for recently when he tried to give a motorist a breath analysis test. The man bit him on the leg.

Constable Lehman was taken to hospital for a tetanus shot. James Orme, 26, of Claremont, Ont., will appear in court today on charges of impaired driving, assaulting a police officer and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

CASABLANCA, Morocco — Roy Warden of San Francisco, who tried to cross the Sahara Desert on a camel, is back after two months — saddle-sore but considerably wiser. The 24-year-old Californian set out Feb. 3 to travel with a caravan of camel drivers.

"The trouble was that they could manage about 60 miles a day and I could only do about 20," Warden said. "I just could not keep up." He plans to try again, however — with his own caravan.

MONTREAL — Arthur Lefebvre usually buys two booklets of Loto-Quebec tickets each month to sell to his relatives. But last month, he sold 19 of the 20 tickets for the government-run lottery and was left with one.

You guessed it.

When the winning number of the monthly draw was announced last Friday, Lefebvre won the $125,000 first prize. A tavern waiter for the last 15 years, he quit his job last weekend at the suggestion of his boss.

"He told me I'd be a fool to stay there," Lefebvre said. "I guess he's right."

OTTAWA — Conservationist Ralph Edwards of Prince Rupert will be awarded the Medal of Service of the Order of Canada by Governor-General Roland Michener here Wednesday. Edwards, 81, is being honored for protecting a rare flock of white trumpeter swans threatened with extinction.

LONDON — A beautiful blonde seen chatting with Prince Charles at a polo match has set tongues wagging about a royal romance. She was identified as Georgina Russell, 25, daughter of Sir John Russell, Britain's ambassador to Spain. She works for a fashion magazine.

Miss Russell drove away from the polo match at Windsor on Sunday with the 23-year-old heir to the throne in his sports car. People who saw them at the match say the girl strikingly resembles the blonde who boarded a train with Charles in Aberdeen, Scotland, Friday night.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. — The Apollo 16 astronauts receive their final major preflight physicals today and Thomas Mattingly hopes that medical lightning doesn't strike twice.

Nearly two years ago, during a similar examination, it was discovered that Mattingly had been exposed to German measles. As a result he lost a seat on the Apollo 13 flight three days before launching. He was replaced by a backup pilot.

Doctors say there's little chance they will find anything wrong today during a four-hour examination of Mattingly, John Young and Charles Duke, who are to rocket toward the moon Sunday.

Charles and Miss Russell

PHOENIX, Ariz. — A Phoenix woman was killed Monday when she was attacked by three of her boxer show dogs. The body of Mrs. Josefine Waters, 63, was found in the backyard of her home by a neighbor.

Three male boxers — one smeared with blood — were found wandering in the yard and five others in cages. Detective Eloy Ysaat said the attack apparently occurred when Mrs. Waters bumped her head on a piece of angle iron, opening a cut on her cheek and attracting the three males.

"She apparently wrestled with them — there was blood everywhere — on the walls and in a cage where it looked like she fell." He said the dogs were docile when officers arrived. "They weren't mean or anything. We petted them and things like that."

Phil Still Denies Flights Phoney

At a special press conference Monday, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi continued to deny he has done anything wrong in a controversy involving his travelling expenses.

The dispute first arose in the legislature's public accounts committee two weeks ago and later in the house after Liberal Leader Pat McGeer questioned whether trips Gaglardi made in 1970 at government expense were done on government business.

The expenses only recently came to light because detailed public accounts for the fiscal year 1970-71 were not released until February of this year.

Trips involved were in May to South Bend, Indiana to address a Transport for Christ conference and in October to San Francisco for an unspecified purpose.

DENIED

At his press conference, Gaglardi read from a typewritten list of what he said were questions and answers raised in the controversy.

Gaglardi has repeatedly denied that he has ever received payment for speaking engagements for which he also billed the government. He did this again Monday.

He said it was "because of dirty politics and publicity" desires by journalists that his expense account behavior is being questioned.

Gaglardi said the trip to South Bend was on the return route of a visit to Toronto on government business.

He said he checked with Air Canada and found that by today's costs, the province spent only an extra $67 to pay his fare to South Bend.

AS MINISTER

Asked what the government business in Toronto was, Gaglardi said he couldn't remember. He said he had addressed the Transport for Christ conference as a cabinet minister.

This was done on government business, he said, because the organization is composed of laymen interested in both technical issues about trucking as well as religious matters.

Gaglardi is a Pentecostal minister from Kamloops. McGeer had questioned whether he went to South Bend on religious business.

Gaglardi said he spoke on both secular and religious issues at the conference. It's fair to speak to a group on both subjects and be paid by the government, Gaglardi said.

HOTEL BILL

The minister's hotel bill was paid for by the conference. Gaglardi has consistently said he did not double-charge the government for this expense.

Gaglardi reaffirmed his position that the trip to San Francisco was made on official business during which he contacted the Bay Area Council on Alcoholism.

In the legislature Gaglardi produced the name of Mrs. Floretta Pomeroy, the council's executive director, as one of the people he spoke to in San Francisco.

She has since denied having been in contact with Gaglardi. So also have her staff. Gaglardi said Opposition Leader Dave Barrett told the house he wasn't able to reach Mrs. Pomeroy but that her staff said they had not heard of Gaglardi.

Gaglardi said Monday it was natural for the staff to say that because they wouldn't have clearance to speak about it unless they had the director's permission.

DEFENDED

He defended his practice of traveling to out-of-province speaking engagements at taxpayer expense.

"I speak as many as 60, 70 times every month, mostly in the evenings at a time when I should be sitting down taking it easy after a full day's work. Why should I bust my guts out and go out and speak night after night and travel all over the United States and Canada to do this? Simply because I feel that it's a credit to the province of British Columbia to have someone, ministers of the crown, who are thought sufficiently of to be invited to important gatherings all over the nation."

Asked whether he would respond to suggestions made in the Vancouver Sun last week that he has made a lot of money since beoming a politician, Gaglardi said it's nobody's business how much money he has.

He said he would make a public financial declaration if it became necessary.

"But I am not a wealthy man," he said.

Last week, Gaglardi said he does not intend to resign because of the controversy. Monday he was asked whether he would seek re-election.

"That's my business. I'm certain the future will take care of itself, but I can tell you this much, I've never been a quitter and I'm not going to quit now," he answered.

SALMON RAISING PROJECT SLATED

OLYMPIC, Wash. (AP) —Gov. Dan Evans has announced a joint state-private industry program to rear over two million salmon in saltwater pens for commercial marketing and release into the sea.

Under the program, Domsea Farms at Manchester, on Puget Sound, will feed and rear coho under contract for release into the sound at sizes larger than hatchery-reared fish would be, Evans said.

Fisheries director Thor Tollefson said 565,000 coho fingerlings are being transferred from the Green River Salmon Hatchery to Domsea's facilities.

The fish will be released between May 15 and November 15 at sizes ranging from 15 per pound to 1.3 per pound, Tollefson said. Domsea will also provide facilities for rearing about 1.5 million chinook to similar size for release at varying times.

In return, the firm will retain about 300,000 coho to augment its fall marketing program.

"This co-operative venture will generate much-needed employment opportunities and provide a double benefit to Puget Sound fisheries," Evans said. "Also, it will enable us, at a minimum expense, to evaluate the effectiveness of using saltwater pens in conjunction with our present hatchery system."

Mace Fans on All 3 Pitches

Oak Bay council voted Monday night not to allow any of proposals for development of the controversial Windsor block to come before a public hearing.

Voting against the motion were Mayor Frances Elford and Ald. Douglas Watts.

Watts contended that a public hearing should be held so that the wishes of the majority of people living in the south of Oak Bay could be heard. He said he was not convinced that the Windsor Park Neighborhood Group (who have expressed opposition to Mace's plans) represented the majority.

The mayor warned that if none of Mace's proposals were accepted there was a danger that somebody else would buy the site and a large grocery store would be built.

She said people appeared to be divided into three groups — those who want the municipality to buy the block and make it into a park (she said this was unrealistic and would cost about $1 million), those who wanted no change at all and those who wanted the block developed as a comprehensive scheme.

Ald. Douglas McClelland said that rejecting the three Mace proposals did not mean that the block, bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport, could not be developed as an over-all project.

He added, "This sort of height and density doesn't seem to be acceptable."

The proposal favored by Mace is for two 210-feet concrete buildings, one on Goodwin and the other on Newport. He has said they could either be both five storeys or six storeys on Goodwin and four on Newport.

Ald. John Goult said that developers should be made to spell out what they mean by a project not being "economically feasible."

He added, "We never have the guts to ask the developer how much profit he's going to take."

Making the motion not to take the matter to a public hearing, Ald. Brian Smith said, "There is too much concentration in the central area and too much height on Goodwin and Newport."

Ald. Norman Pimlott observed, "A land-use contract must be a compromise on both sides. This has not come to that point where we can take it to a public hearing. At this time I don't think we have reached that stage."

Ald. Shirley Dowell said she had never approved of a gas station in that area (included in Mace's plans was a Texaco gas station on the corner of Windsor and Newport), nor did she approve of the length of the buildings.

After reaching the decision not to proceed with a public hearing the council went into an in-camera session to consult with Vancouver architect R. S. Nairne.

Nairne's company, architect-planners McCarter, Nairne and Partners, advised council in February that the price of $1.3 million they were asking for the municipally-owned Victoria Riding Academy site was too high.

At a subsequent meeting council voted to reduce this to $850,000 for the 9.3-acre site.

It was also agreed to ask for professional advice for disposal of the land. It has been the subject of two unsuccessful competitions which would have seen it being sold to the developer-planner team presenting the best plan for over-all development.

There were no bidders in either competition.

The press was told that Monday's meeting with Nairne was to draw up "terms of reference" for study of the property.

It is currently zoned for two nine-storey concrete apartments and eight three-storey frame apartments.

Tobacco Ad Ban 'Aimed at Health'

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a special British Columbia Supreme Court hearing Monday, the provincial government argued that its contentious legislation prohibiting tobacco ads was passed to preserve public health.

But counsel for seven major tobacco and advertising firms, who are contesting the legislation, argued in reply that commerce, not public health, was the real reason for the ad ban. Besides, the province had no authority to pass such legislation.

The exchange followed a request by Supreme Court Judge E. E. Hinkson for both sides to appear before him again to clarify references made in hearings earlier this year about the effect of tobacco on health in B.C.

The earlier hearing arose from a suit launched by the seven Canadian companies, who contend that the Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act and amendments to the government Liquor Act, which also prohibit liquor advertising, are illegal. Both pieces of legislation were passed last year.

After the first hearings in March, Mr. Justice Hinkson reserved his decision.

The Supreme Court Justice said Monday that lawyers representing both the crown and the plaintiffs had referred to whether the legislature intended its tobacco ad ban as a public health measure. But, he said, he had been unable to find anything in the legislation to indicate that health had been a factor in its passage.

Lloyd McKenzie, counsel acting for the provincial attorney-general, argued in court Monday that the tobacco ban was intended as a public health measure, even though the specific words which would enable that interpretation may not appear in the language of the act.

He explained that the act was coupled with another new statute which established the drug, alcohol and cigarette education, prevention and rehabilitation fund. This was backed by a $25 million appropriation, the interest of which, he said is to be used to finance the work of the fund.

He said the fund is aimed at cigarettes rather than at tobacco generally because cigarettes "are the men and women killer."

John Steeves, counsel for the plantiffs, argued that the provincial government has not shown that the purposed danger from the use of tobacco is confined to British Columbia. Therefore the legislation is not legal, he said. "It was a straight attempt to control advertising as such," he contended.

Hollywood Track Opens On Time

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A new contract for nearly 1,000 racetrack workers has been signed in time for Hollywood Park to open its 75-day 1972 thoroughbred racing season Wednesday with the $45,700 Premiere Handicap.

Agreement was reached Monday night on the contract which provides wage-and-fringe benefit increases of about 6.2 per cent, spokesmen said.

Twelve thoroughbreds are scheduled to run in the six-furlong Premiere, five of them winners of added-money events during the recent Santa Anita meeting.

The Premiere has lured Kennedy Road, Canada's champion three-year-old of 1971, owned by Mrs. Art Stollery of Toronto. He will be making his western debut with another Canadian champion, jockey Sandy Hawley, in the saddle.

King of Cricket, Imaginative, Single Agent, Kfar Tov and Western Welcome are the five Santa Anita winners. Indulto, King Crisy, Long Position, Diplomatic Agent, Flighting and Miles Tyson complete the field.

Indian Hill Stable and Marshall's Single Agent could be the favorite. The thoroughbred was a four-length winner of the $34,700 San Simeon Handicap in his last start. Howard Grant rides this gelding who must carry the high weight of 124 pounds. Kennedy Road will carry 119 pounds.

SM Industries

Agreement has been reached by all parties and regulatory authorities for the acquisition of a $1.5 million ocean oil tanker by SM Industries Ltd., of Vancouver.

The 17,000-ton vessel will be bought through an issue of 600,000 treasury shares, 600,000 share purchase warrants and the assumption of about $675,000 in mortgages. Warrants are worth $2 a share to Dec. 31 and $2.25 until Dec. 31, 1973.

SM Industries has lines of credit for tens of millions and plans further tanker acquisitions and listing of shares on public markets.

Allarco

Allarco Developments Ltd. of Edmonton and its subsidiaries has reported a net profit of $399,097 (29.8 cents a share) for the three months ended Jan. 31.

Net profit compared with $6,662 (five cents) in the corresponding period a year ago.

The company has interests in real estate, automotive agencies, restaurants, hotels, printing, insurance, radio, aviation and farms.

Income totalled $10.5 million compared with $7 million during the three months ended Jan. 31, 1971. Profit, before depreciation, provision for deferred income tax and minority interest, was $1 million compared with $334,890.

Wajax

Wajax Ltd. requipment company had gross revenue of $33.99 million last year, an increase of $6.1 million from 1970, resulting in $940,000 net profit ($769,000).

After-tax share profit amounted to $1.67 compared with $1.38.

Working capital rose from $6.4 million to $8 million.

Highlights of the year included acquisition of Mine Equipment Co. Ltd. and a $1.5 million contract to supply forest firefighting equipment to Chile.

Dynasty

Strengthening of lead and zinc markets lend encouragement to a better outlook this year, reports Dynasty Explorations Ltd. in reporting 1971 improvement in Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd., 40 per cent owned by Dynasty.

Plans for 1972 include continued exploration of the Anvil area and regional copper programs in the Yukon, plus a regional search for lead-zinc deposits in north-central B.C.

Dynasty had income of $444,448 ($509,669) and an operating loss of $79,964 ($34,433), but with earnings of affiliates and extraordinary items managed a profit of $1.77 million compared with a loss of $767,358 in 1970. Share earnings were 59 cents vs. 26 cents loss.

Gulf

Nearly $11 million will be spent by Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. on the country's first continuous reforming process for the production of low or non-lead gasolines.

The unit will be installed at Gulf's Clarkson, Ont., refinery, doubling its reforming capacity to 20,000 barrels a day by May, 1973.

B.C. Moly

B.C. Molybdenum Ltd. will suspend its mine and mill operations at Kitsault, near Alice Arm, early in May because of what it termed the continuing deterioration of the molybdenum market.

The closure follows a reported $3.2 million net loss by the U.S.-owned firm in 1971, and a statement by general manager Charles T. Penney that the company cannot continue indefinitely to lose money.

Workers at the mine and mill total 240, who may be placed in other jobs. The company is working with Canada Manpower in an effort to find the men jobs at other mines.

B.C. Molybdenum is wholly-owned by Kennecott Copper Corp. of New York, a major copper producer.

Bank of Montreal
The First Canadian Bank
Business growth requires money.
So ready access to outside financing at acceptable costs is a key to solid growth. Sales growth. Cash flow growth. Profit growth.
At Bank of Montreal, we cut through money problems and help your business grow. Our managers work with you to arrange loans and lines of credit at low-cost rates.
We're flexible. So we can provide short-term and mid-term credit—even longer term in many cases.
And we know you may need money fast. We can react quickly since most credit decisions are made locally.
Call any Bank of Montreal manager. He'll go over your situation and come back with the plan you need.

Printer inks a merger agreement.
The owner of the small printing firm, with $250,000 volume, needed credit to complete the take-over of another company. Bank of Montreal financed part of his purchase price and also provided a new line of credit to support the increase in his sales volume.

Flexibility for growing stamping plant.
A metal stamping plant with $1,500,000 in sales was feeling growth pains. Some machinery needed replacing and they wished to expand their premises. Bank of Montreal advanced a medium-term loan geared to cash flow and repayment from earnings.

Orders were coming in faster than they could be filled. The company decided to move to a larger plant. They found their location but needed money to close the deal. We came through with interim financing fast.

High-Stepping Drapeau Threatens CFL Future

It's too bad that Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal didn't get out to the Sports Celebrity Dinner here a year ago. He was invited. But now perhaps he should be invited again. He'd sell.

Because now, among other things, such as the matter of raising a few hundred millions of dollars to put on the 1976 Summer Olympics, he has been accused of bringing about the eventual ruin of the Canadian Football League.

Perhaps you heard the program on Monday.

It was Vancouver's Bill Good who raised this spectre (again), this time in the wake of Drapeau's disclosure last week of a new 70,000-seat stadium for the Olympics, and Montreal. Bill put it plainly enough. The fact, he said, that Montreal will soon have a first-rate stadium, means that Montreal soon will be "big-time," the National Football League will be invited in, and when it is, there won't be any room at the inn for the CFL.

The "big-time" approach is easy to understand. It spells D-R-A-P-E-A-U. He sold the world Expo in '67, and the world still remembers; he then produced Son of Expo, striking while the iron was hot; he brought major league baseball to Montreal with the promise of a domed stadium; and on May 12, 1970, stunned the Communist world by taking the '76 Olympics away from Moscow.

Toronto, Vancouver May Follow

And now there is this new stadium, described in detail in the Times a few days ago. It will be "big league" in everything: design, from France, naturally, and a copy of a smaller swimming pool complex; in fashion, it will be universal; and in money, it will cost plenty. Drapeau didn't say how much. "We will obtain extraordinary revenue."

And the fact is, says Good, that in time Montreal will fill this new park with National League football; the good burghers of Toronto will be forced to follow suit, to save face, and Vancouver naturally will have to fall in line. These are the nation's biggest centres. Ergo, when they go to the NFL, out goes the CFL, as a major football league.

Certainly, it makes sense, but why hit at Montreal, or Drapeau, as the evil figure in the plot? He is only doing what comes natrually, and what he can get away with. He got Canada to make up the Expo deficit, and Canada now will have to pay for the '76 Olympics as well. everybody knew that when the stunning decision came down at Amsterdam in 1970. Little has changed. Only the cost. It's going up.

Drapeau said in his submission then that the Olympics would cost about $120 million. He said the other day of the over-all cost, without being specific: "Let me assure you it will be well within the limits of the principles laid down."

Balderdash, and everybody knows it, especially in B.C.! Because it was Garibaldi that was missed out in the winter Olympic picture when Montreal took the summer games, remember? And here's how it happened.

The summer games vote came first, which is the Olympic way of things, and it was strictly a decision between the East and West. That was political. Believe it!

Dramatically, Vote Tide Turned

No Communist nation had ever been host to the Olympics, and none would in '76 either, even though Moscow led on the first vote. Montreal and Los Angeles were next in line. Then, surprising, it happened; the Olympic tide turned. On the next ballot, all the L.A. votes, except one, went to Montreal. The Commies had been put down; Drapeau was slightly shaken, if only for a moment; and Canadian units was near the breaking point.

If Garibaldi at first had been considered the better choice, there now was no way Canada was going to get two Olympics in one year. Thus Denver, for the U.S., won the Winter Games by default. Reluctantly, too, as it turned out. Evironmentalists in Colorado are still arguing over the site, and the cost.

In his acceptance address, Drapeau promised to conduct the Olympics in "humbleness, simplicity and dignity," it was written then, and if that happens to include a brand new convertible-type domed stadium, now that's understandable. Drapeau had made that promise to major league baseball when the Expos moved in.

Oh, it's true all right, the rest of the country itsn't completely enamored with Drapeau. Nor was there unanimity in 1970. As a matter of interest at the post-vote Olympic party in Amsterdam on that moonlit night in May two years ago, there was wine by the caseful just for the asking. And everybody drinking it, only the people from Montreal were getting a belt out of it. Vancouver's mayor Tom Campbell even declined to stand when Drapeau arrived, or was being toasted.

Which was the sign of a poor loser, and decidely un-Canadian.

So why knock Drapeau, just because he comes from Montreal? After all, he has a habit of getting things done, even if we do end up paying for it.

Besides, who would have paid for Garibaldi?

LAWYER FEELS MARV MAKING POWER PLAY

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Robert Woolf, a Boston lawyer who represents more than 300 professional athletes, has accused the director of the Major League Baseball Players Association of forcing the baseball strike for his own personal gain.

Woolf said the director, Marvin Miller, was seeking to become "the most powerful man in baseball.

"The players themselves are not really aware of what is happening," Woolf told the Hollywood Sun-Tattler Sunday.

"It's the same thing that happened in the football players strike," he said. "It's a case of a few militant players taking over and the rest of the players going along too, not really knowing what is happening."

Promises... Promises!

TV Viewers 'Assured'

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian hockey fans will be able to watch the fifth game of the Montreal-New York Stanley Cup quarter-finals starting at 5 p.m. despite a CBC lockout of 700 technicians in the Montreal area.

A spokesman for CFCF-TV, the Montreal affiliated station of the CTV network, said Monday it will carry tonight's game from New York, using a feed from a telecast of the Hughes Sports Network and adding commentary in the Montreal studios.

The news comes as a welcome relief to local hockey fans after the CBC locked out its technicians Monday morning when they failed to show up Sunday night to cover the playoff game at the Forum.

Local fans were deprived of the playoff telecast Sunday night when the CTV crew at the Forum walked out after the first period in sympathy with the CBC strike.

The National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, representing the CBC technicians, has been conducting a series of nation-wide rotating strikes against the CBC to back contract demands.

Because of this, and CBC's failure to guarantee playoff coverage, the CTV has been televising the National Hockey League playoffs.

CBC technicians first walked off the job Saturday at 5 p.m. and NABET ordered them to remain off work until Monday. The corporation issued an ultimatum telling the technicians to report back to work Sunday. When they did not, the CBC would not let them return on Monday.

The Saturday and Sunday games between Canadiens and Rangers in Montreal were to have been broadcast in French by Radio-Canada and in English locally by CFCF-TV using a Radio Canada feed.

After the CBC walkout Saturday CFCF-TV moved in crews to televise the game and planned to do the same Sunday when its own technicians walked out in sympathy with the CBC employees.

Because of the labor difficulties, CBC had dropped English-language coverage of the quarter-final playoffs before they started. Radio-Canada was too provide French-language coverage while CTV covered them in English.

A disagreement arose between CTV and NABET Sunday night following the technician's walkout at the Forum.

Robert Bouchard, chief negotiator for the union, said the crew was justified in leaving because its agreement gave it the right to refuse to work in a place where persons of similar work were conducting a legal strike.

Hockey Terms Stand

Times News Services

Joe Kryczka, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said in Prague Monday that Canada's terms for re-entering the world hockey championships remain unchanged. It must have the right to send its best players.

Kryczka, attending the current championships in Czechoslovakia, said the Canadians will make this clear at the International Ice Hockey Congress in Mamaia, Romania, this summer.

"We think that every Canadian citizen, regardless of whether he is a professional or not, should be allowed to play for his country," said Kryczka, a Calgary lawyer.

"Of course, we do not think of entering professionals in Olympics. But the world championships are a different matter. We desire only the same treatment as soccer players enjoy."

IN NEW YORK, Muhammad Ali, displaying top news conference form, accused George Chuvalo of being a dirty fighter and promised he would become the first man to knock the Canadian veteran off his feet.

Ali outpointed the Toronto fighter in 15 rounds in 1966 when Ali was the world heavyweight champion. They are scheduled to meet again in a 12-rounder in Vancouver on May 1.

The 34-year-old Chuvalo never has been knocked down in a 15-year, 85-fight career.

IN INGLEWOOD, Calif., top-ranking heavyweight George Foreman ran his unbeaten streak to 35 in a row as he scored a second-round knockout over Ted Gullick in a scheduled 10-rounder Monday.

Foreman, 218, a 1968 Olympic fighter who turned pro in 1969 and is looking for a shot at world champion Joe Frazier, is 35-0 with 32 knockouts.

IN BRAZIL — Tostao, the Brazilian soccer star often described as the successor to the great Pele, has been purchased by the Vasco da Gama soccer club of Rio de Janeiro for an estimated $560,000, reported to be the highest transfer fee for any athlete in the history of the Americas.

Tostao, a centre-forward, has been with Cruzeiro since starting his pro career in 1964. Last year he was chosen to succeed Pele as the wearer of jersey No. 10 on the Brazilian national team.

Besides paying the $560,000, Vasco da Gama will also send right-wing Luis Carlos to Cruzeiro. It will also have to pay Tostao 25 per cent of the total paid for his transfer, according to his contract with Cruzeiro.

Tostao had said he would not renew his contract with Cruzeiro when it expired in July, and had threatened to retire unless transferred to another club.

IN CHICAGO, John Brockington, National Football League rookie-of-the-year, is being questioned in connection with an auto-theft ring and NFL officials say they have known of the investigation.

The Green Bay Packers' back has been interrogated in connection with the purchase for $2,200 of a $10,000 luxury car. Brockington claims he did not know the auto was stolen.

LaRue Surprise Pick Of College Cage Crop

NEW YORK (AP) — Portland Trail Blazers selected relatively obscure LaRue Martin of Loyola of Chicago as the No. 1 pick in the National Basketball Association draft Monday.

Martin, a 6-foot-10 centre who averaged more than 18 points and almost 16 rebounds a game in three years with a losing team, was the surprise top choice as the NBA made its annual selection of college talent.

Buffalo Braves, drafting No. 2, selected Robert McAdoo of North Carolina, despite learning that the Tar Heels' forward-centre already had signed with Virginia Squires of the rival American Basketball Association.

Dwight Davis, University of Houston's high-powered forward, was chosen by Cleveland as the No. 3 draft pick.

Phoenix, selecting fourth after a trade with Detroit Pistons Saturday, grabbed Corky Calhoun, Penn's 6-foot-7 forward-guard.

Philadelphia 76ers had the No. 5 choice and picked Freddie Boyd of Oregon State.

Seattle SuperSonics then took Bud Stallworth of Kansas and the New York Knicks drafted South Carolina All-America Tom Riker as the league's No. 8 choice.

Detroit picked Bob Nash, the centre-forward from the University of Hawaii.

Four teams missed out on first-round selections because they had made a hardship draft last season. They were Cincinnati, Baltimore, Golden State and Atlanta.

The draft wound up in less than one hour and 40 minutes, with 154 players selected in 10 rounds.

Russians, Czechs On Collision Course

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia and Russia will meet Wednesday in a battle of unbeaten giants at the World Amateur Hockey championships.

Czechoslovakia, 4-1 winners over Sweden Sunday, crushed West Germany 8-1 Monday after being held to a 1-1 tie.

The Russians, world champions for the last nine years, trounced Finland 10-2 in Sunday's other game.

Finland downed West Germany, 8-5, Saturday and Sweden routed Switzerland, 12-1.

Russia and Czechoslovakia lead the standings with six points each. Tied for third place are Sweden and Finland, with two points each while West Germany and Switzerland are each pointless.

Only Canadiens Smile in Face Of Elimination

By The Canadian Press

Two clubs faced elimination from the Stanley Cup playoffs tonight but only one declared itself optimistic about the possibility of surviving.

"This club's been down two games before and come back," said captain Henri Richard of Montreal Canadiens, who trail New York Rangers 3-1 in their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarter-final series.

The fifth game of the series is set for New York tonight while Toronto Maple Leafs, also down 3-1, face elimination in their fifth game against the Bruins in Boston.

The Leafs, however, did not seem in any mood for issuing defiant challenges. Coach King Clancy, their most voluble spokesman during the series, managed only a few grumbles.

"The Bruins aren't as good as they think they are," said Clancy. "They get lucky."

HAWKS WAITING

If the Rangers are able to win their series tonight despite Richard's challenge, they can start getting ready to meet Chicago Black Hawks who wrapped up their quarter-final Sunday with a four-game sweep over Pittsburgh Penguins.

A Boston victory tonight would mean the Bruins would have to wait for the winner of the Minnesota North Stars-St. Louis Blues series which is tied at two wins each going into the fifth game tonight in Minneapolis.

"There's nothing to celebrate yet," said Pete Stemkowski who scored the winning goal in New York's third victory Sunday in Montreal.

ADMITS TO LUCK

The Bruins, and especially winger Ken Hodge, were also agreeing with their opposition. Hodge admitted he was lucky to get the winning goal in the fourth game at Toronto Sunday after the puck bounced into the net off his skate and said he hopes to see the Bruins improve.

"You know things haven't been the way we'd like them to be," said Hodge after a workout Monday at Boston Garden.

"Very few times this year has everything gone the way we wanted it to go. Ideally, we'd like every line to be going good every game. . . . But I think we're getting to the point. The last 10 minutes of Sunday's game showed that."

Bruins coach Tom Johnson said he plans to start Gerry Cheevers in goal tonight, replacing Eddie Johnston who worked the last two games. Bernie Parent will get the call for Toronto since Jacques Plante said he still doesn't feel ready after suffering a groin injury last week.

In Minneapolis, meanwhile, coach Jackie Gordon was not disturbed at the fact that St. Louis had come back with two wins during the weekend to tie that series.

"We're still in there," said Gordon.

Rough Start For Okker, Newcombe

QUEBEC (CP) — Defending champion Tom Okker of the Netherlands and four-time Wimbledon winner John Newcombe of Australia were both upset Monday in first-round singles play at the $50,000 Quebec international tennis open.

Newcombe fell in two sets to fellow Australian Bob Carmichael while Jeff Borowiak of the U.S. needed three sets to down Okker.

Carmichael took both sets by 6-4 scores while Borowiak beat Okker 7-6, 4-6, 7-5 in a match which featured a tie-breaker contest to decide the first set.

In other singles matches Monday, Arthur Ashe of the U.S. took Egyptian Ismail El Shafei 6-4,6-2, Tony Roche of Australia beat Graham Stilwell of England 6-2, 7-5, Marty Riessen of the U.S. downed Allan Stone of Australia 7-5, 6-2 and Mark Cox of England beat Australian Ray Ruffes 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Okker fared better in the first-round doubles action as he teamed up with Riessen to defeat Briton Roger Taylor and South African Cliff Drysdale 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Also advancing to the second round of the doubles were South African Bob Maud and Stone who combined to eliminate Ashe and Bob Lutz of the U.S. 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

Meanwhile, in Rio De Janeiro Thomas Koch won a five-set struggle over Hector Romani of Argentina and led Brazil into the South American zone Davis Cup tennis final against Chile.

Koch's 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1 victory gave Brazil a 3-1 lead in the best-of-five match competition and made the remaining singles meaningless. Brazil won Saturday's two singles and Argentina took the doubles Sunday.

Brazil and Chile will play in Brazil beginning April 20.

Jeroski Charged With Bookmaking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Jeroski, 33, assistant pro at Vancouver's Fraserview golf course, was charged Saturday on three counts connected with bookmaking.

He is charged with unlawfully recording bets, unlawfully engaging in bookmaking, and unlawfully having $728 and slips of paper relating to bookmaking transactions.

The offences are alleged to have occurred March 29.

City Team Leads Tenpin Tourney

NANAIMO — Mayfair Flower Shop assumed a healthy lead in the team competition of the provincial women's tenpin bowling championships which opened at Fiesta Lanes at the weekend.

Pat Metcalfe, Barbara Berthiaume, Hazel McLeary, Louise Mason and Marlene Mitchell toppled 2,509 pins and added a handicap of 347 to bring their total to 2,856 for a lead in the three-weekend, 112-team competition.

Campbell River Belles are second at 2,761 and the Executives of Victoria are third with 2,754.

ISLANDERS SHARP

Vancouver Island bowlers also placed well up in the doubles and singles events.

Doreen Telosky and Phillis Carmichael of Campbell River pace the doubles with 1,164 and are followed by two Vancouver duos — Helen Paton and Amy Martin at 1,154 as well as Joyce Staddart and Chris Tucker at 1,152.

Mary Fynney of Campbell River trails leading Eleanor Youle of Kamloops, who has 643, by six pins in the singles competition. Betty Lingren of Kamloops is third at 633.

The championships feature a record entry of 249 doubles and 398 singles in addition to the 112 teams.

Meanwhile, all officers in the B.C. Women's Tenpin Association were re-elected at the annual meeting, held in conjunction with the competition.

Mrs. McLeary, the only president thus far in the three-year-old organization, was elected for a second two-year term.

Freda Peacock, also of Victoria, was re-elected as second vice-president and the delegate to the annual Women's International Bowling Congress meeting in Las Vegas next year. May Rogers of Nanaimo, Teddy Smith of Campbell River and Maryon Lewis of Burnaby were re-elected as directors.

STOKE CITY FACES INQUIRY

LONDON (CP) — Stoke City is likely to face an inquiry by the English Football Association after fielding nine reserves for their First Division soccer match against Nottingham Forest Monday night.

Forest won the match, 2-0, to boost its slim chance of avoiding relegation to the Second Division.

Stoke, which faces Arsenal in the semi-final of the Football Association Cup Saturday, is almost certain to be asked by the Football Association to explain why it did not field a full-strength side. The Midland club said Monday night that nine of its regular first-team players were injured.

'Divers' Didn't Include Heavyweight

WINNIPEG (CP) — Detroit heavyweight Jim Christopher did not take a "dive" in his bout against Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto, the one-man commission investigating an ill-fated Feb. 21 boxing card was told Monday.

William Cozman of Regina, a timekeeper and referee at the four-bout card that resulted in the death of light-heavyweight Stewart Gray of Toronto and allegations by Christopher that his life was threatened unless he "took a dive" against Chuvalo, made the statement during his testimony.

Cozman said however, that the first two bouts on the four-fight cards were "dives."

Cozman said he knew "from the expression on his (Christopher's) face every time he was hit" that Chuvalo was landing heavy blows to the body.

"His face grimaced and he could hardly breathe," he said of the Detroit fighter.

Asked for his opinion on Christopher's allegations, Cozman said: "I think that's a farce. There was no dive. Christopher's trying to gain something."

The timekeeper said that with the exception of Narfis Ahmed of Toronto, none of the boxers in the first two bouts "could have gone 10 rounds."

"There were no damaging punches landed, and, in my opinion, the first two fights involved dives," said the 42-year-old former amateur middle-weight boxer.

The first two bouts saw Mohamed Ali Kameric of Regina knock out Jessie Fagan of Detroit and Ahmed finish off Sam Poke of Detroit, both bouts ending in the second round.

Cozman told Judge Benjamin Hewak, the one-man commission, of an exhibition match in Regina between Kameric and Fagan less than two months before the Feb. 21 meeting. Cozman described the Regina match, in which Kameric knocked out Fagan in the second round, as "a farce."

"If I had a film from the exhibition match in Regina and one from the match in Winnipeg . . . it would seem it was rehearsed."

Of the Ahmed-Poke bout, he said the Detroit fighter "seemed to be waiting for an appropriate time" to fall down."

Gray, 27, died in Winnipeg hospital about 24 hours after he was knocked out in the seventh round of his title bout against Canadian champion Al Sparks of Winnipeg.

Birds Showed at Rate Of One in 33.7 Holes

And there's a report of one golfer who, after completing his round on the 18th, dismembered his putter into 37½ pieces. He may feel better when he gets the bill for a new blade and hears that a lot of guys suffered the same problems in the Times Island Open qualifying round on Sunday.

Colwood was tough.

That's why Bill Wakeham's medal-winning total of 68 — four strokes better than his nearest rival — was an impressive achievement.

Many felt it didn't play as long as they expected. Most of the sad stories concerned putting.

You wouldn't think there's much difference between Colwood and the courses closer to the city. There is, however, and that is what created most of the problems. The turf-grass experts figure Colwood is a week or two behind the growth progress enjoyed by grass at Gorge Vale, Uplands, Cedar Hill and Oak Bay.

That gave many of the visitors an alibi. They felt the greens were slicker than had been expected.

Not explained is the fact that even Colwood members also suffered.

Everybody did, except Wakeham, Ted Langlois and Dick Silverberg. They came home 1-2-3. Wakeham has been practicing at far-off Cowichan, and "Silver" rode in from Glen Meadows. Langlois had no objections, and it may be because he was in the very first foursome tomake the round.

★ ★ ★

The 147 golfers who turned in cards failed to record a birdie on three holes — the first, 11th and 16th. Five other holes yielded only one each — to Larry Palmgren on the 2nd, Langlois on the 3rd, Dave Tribe on the 10th, Al Robertson on the 12th and Drew Wintemute on the 18.

The sixth gave up two — to Yuile Leong and Ken Floyd.

Even the par-three holes were difficult. Eight birds on the seventh, seven on the fourth, and three each on the 11th and 15th holes.

During the entire, long day, only 78 birdies! By my reckoning (which has yet to earn me a masters degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology), the golfers scored birds at the rate of one for every 33.7 holes played!

And only one — young Jeff Jones of Gorge Vale — could come up with anything better than a bird. He scored an eagle two when he dropped his approach shot on the par-four 13th.

Finally, a footnote to Wakeham's performance. The Chopper reeled off his two-under round despite what he termed mediocre driving.

"I'm not driving as well as I can," he said. "I'm not making the right move.

"I've only been playing one game a week, and if you really want to know the truth, I'm surprised I've been scoring so well."

Union Battling to Survive

By RED SMITH
New York Times
(Commentary)

NEW YORK — Every published mention of the baseball strike includes a statement that the owners have been "contributing" $5,450,000 annually to the players' benefit plan and have offered to increase their "contribution" to $5,940,000. Nobody every questions this terminology or asks where the money comes from and who owns it. Maybe it's time somebody did.

The money comes from revenue produced by the ball players with minimal assistance from the business office.

To be sure, they receive salaries and partial expenses while producing it. Club presidents get salaries and expenses, too. So do general managers and vice-presidents and personnel directors and the commissioner and the league presidents and John J. Gaherin, who carries messages between the owners and the players.

The money paid into the pension fund is a donation inspired by the spontaneous generosity of the owners in exactly the same sense that the Mets' rent in Shea Stadium is a gift to the city and what the Yankees spend for bats is largess to Hillerich and Bradsby, Inc.

On the subject of terminology, we have Charley Finley's statement that the players "don't contribute one red cent to their own pension plan." This is one of those half-truths, or quartertruths or seven-eighths truths that abound in the language of the Oakland Athletics, proprietor.

For 20 years up to 1967, the players paid a share of their earnings into the pension fund, which now contains millions collected directly from them.

We are told that the players have the most generous pension plan in America and are greedily grasping for more. The truth is, money is not the issue in this strike.

In the contract discussions, the players have told the owners: "We favor a four-year agreement (Same length as the contract for network television, the source of the revenue) and we think a one-year deal makes no sense at all. You want a one-year deal. So be it."

"Point two," the players have said. "You have agreed to an increase of $490,000 and say you won't make it a penny more. Very well, we'll accept that and use the surplus already in the fund to offset the increase in the cost of living."

"Finally," the players have said, "you disagree with us on the prudence of using this surplus. Oaky, we'll put it in writing that if it turns out to be a mistake we'll take the loss and absolve you of financial responsibility."

The owners response was a flat no. In fact, a sub-committee of eight owners called the Player Relations Committee swiftly and emphatically turned down the proposal only 24 hours before all 24 owners were scheduled to meet and consider the situation. It was as though the sub-committee was saying to the owners' group as a whole: "We're fighting the good fight. If you reverse us, it will make boobs of us all."

Considering the concessions the players have offered, it is difficult to believe that the owners' intransigence stems from a mere difference of actuarial opinion. Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, says the owners are out to bust the union this time, to make the players "eat dirt."

More likely they're out to whip Marvin Miller, for almost everything they say presents this dispute not as a conflict between players and owners but as a battle between owners and Miller. Perhaps they should listen more attentively to individual players.

To individuals like the Yankees' Jack Aker, for example, who has said: "We felt strongly that we were being tested, that the owners refused to make any concessions because they didn't believe we could stick together and strike."

To individuals like Bobby Murcer, "We voted 63-10 to authorize a strike," said the Yankees' star, "and then our representatives voted 47-0, so I think we're all prepared to face the consequences."

"On the other side," Marvin Miller says, "we are faced with a hard line reactionary like Jerry Hoffberger (owner of the Baltimore Orioles), who held five-hour meetings to harrangue his players."

Miller says Hoffberger and his manager, Earl Weaver, and the Cardinals' Gussie Busch have violated labor laws by trying to influence the players. When an owner holds a team meeting, this is known in the parlance of his circle as "getting close to the men."

In Marvin Miller's lexicon, it is "intimidation and coercion against the players' right to take group action."

'I'll Play Again'—Gene

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Gene Littler smiled and ran his fingers through a pile of fan mail.

For the first time since 1954, he had missed the Masters golf tournament in Augusta, Ga. Littler was in bed recovering from surgery for chest cancer.

"I'll play golf again," he said, flexing his left arm. "See, I can move it at least three feet now."

After earning nearly $1 million in 18 years as a professional golfer, the 41-year-old Littler got the good news last Thursday — tissues removed from his left chest were free of cancer even though an earlier operation had found a malignancy under his left arm.

"I could have postponed surgery until after the Masters, but I had to know," said the man who lost the 1970 Masters title in a playoff with Billy Casper.

"One of the doctors told me I might be able to pick up a club in a month and maybe I can swing it a bit in two months," he said.

"I'm not completely safe. I have to face that. There's always a chance it could come from somewhere else. But the odds are high in my favor."

"And at Augusta, the condition of Gay Brewer, 1967 Masters champion, was described as satisfactory by the University Hospital.

Brewer's wife, Carole, said that because of the continued bleeding there had been no chance to make tests to determine the cause.

Come home in a Datsun

Before Datsun came to Canada, we got to know the country pretty well. We studied the driving conditions, we talked to the people. We found out what cars in Canada have to be. They have to be economical, dependable; they have to handle well, winter or summer. We found out that people want cars that can be serviced anywhere they drive in Canada ... and that's why we have 270 dealers and huge parts warehouses right across the country. We asked, and now we know. And that's how we can build Datsuns that feel right at home here ... cars you can feel right at home in.
Standard or automatic ... come home in a Datsun.

Underworld Acts Out Its Own Violent Film Script

NEW YORK (CP) — Does art imitate life or does life imitate art?

New Yorkers could well ask themselves that question considering this recent sequence of events—the movie, The Godfather, opened at several movie theatres and subsequently an apparent underworld war has broken out.

The Godfather tells the story of an underworld family headed by Don Corleone, played by Marlon Brando. A major part of the picture revolves around a blood war between rival crime families.

The most prominent victim of the recent real-life outbreak of violence was Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo, shot down early Saturday while celebrating his 43rd birthday in a restaurant in New York's Little Italy district on the Lower East Side.

The string of gunshot slayings began in Queens on March 30 with the murder of Conrad Greaves, a night club owner described as a willing witness before a grand jury investigating organized crime.

Last Thursday, Thomas (Tommy Edwards) Ernest was shot to death in underworld fashion as was Bruno Carnevale, described as a "soldier" in the Cosa Nostra family headed by Carlo Gambino.

On Monday, police found the body of Frank Ferriano, 41, in a lower Manhattan parking lot. He had been shot once in the head and once in the shoulder and his head was battered in. Police declined to connect the murders but said all the victims appeared to have connections with crime families.

The latest man to die was Gennaro Ciprio, 31, described by police as a rackets-connected restaurant owner. Ciprio was shot in the head early Monday as he left his Brooklyn restaurant. Police said $1,300 in his wallet was untouched and that he was carrying a .38-calibre pistol, which had not been fired.

Police said Ciprio fitted the description of the gunman who walked into the Little Italy restaurant and shot Joe Gallo. He also was described as being associated with the underworld family of Joseph Colombo, who was shot and critically wounded at a rally of his Italian-American Civil Rights League last June 28. Police saw a connection between his wounding and Gallo's murder.

Members of the Colombo family are said to have felt strongly that Gallo engineered Colombo's shooting although Gallo had denied it. Colombo's attacker was shot and killed by persons unknown after he shot Colombo.

Columnist Pete Hamill has commented on the coincidence of the opening of the Godfather and the murders.

"In the space of three days last week, three men, including Gallo, were killed in gangland style, and you had to wonder if the film was forcing racket guys to act out their own legend," he writes in the New York Post.

Harold Wilson Blamed As Colleagues Quit

LONDON (CP) — The resignation of Ros Jenkins and two high-powered colleagues from top posts in the opposition Labor party has exposed the leadership of Harold Wilson to another blistering round of criticism.

Jenkins announced his resignation as deputy leader of the party Monday as part of a continuing dispute over the crucial Common Market issue. Defence spokesman George Thomson and Harold Lever, opposition critic for fuel and power, also quit their positions.

"What is being called into question is the leadership now being given the Labor party by Mr. Wilson," says The Financial Times.

Lever will remain as backbench Labor MPs, but several other members of the shadow cabinet have indicated they, too, are considering resignation.

END OF WILSON?

The Times says the latest developments in the Labor party may be "the end of Mr. Wilson, though not yet or, one would suppose, immediately."

Jenkins has been the acknowledged leader of a minority group of up to 70 dedicated Labor pro-Marketeers since public and parliamentary debates on entry terms began nearly a year ago.

Like Thomson, Lever and others in the group, Jenkins has been under severe pressure within the party to support the official anti-Market stand taken by the majority of the 287 Labor MPs in the Commons.

The immediate issue which led to the resignations was a decision by the shadow cabinet to press for a referendum on the Market question, a move which Wilson always has opposed.

The issue has been under intense discussion since French President Georges Pompidou recently announced he will hold a referendum on British Market entry.

REJECTS REFERENDUM

Prime Minister Edward Heath contends that a referendum is not needed because in a parliamentary democracy MPs are elected to represent the views of their constituents. All that is needed for entry is parliamentary approval of the necessary legislation, says Heath.

Popular opinion polls continue to show a majority opposed to Market entry and even Commons support for the crucial Market legislation has been dwindling.

'DOOMSDAY FLIGHT' DESCRIBED

CALGARY (CP) — The chief purser of an Air Canada jetliner hijacked last November described Monday how he catered to a hooded man with a sawed-off shotgun and dynamite.

The plane's captain read a ransom note demanding that the DC-8 be flown to Great Falls, Mont., where Air Canada was to supply $1.5 million or have its plane blown up.

They were among witnesses at the opening session of the Alberta Supreme Court trial of Paul Joseph Cini, 27, facing seven charges following the hijacking of Flight 812 from Vancouver to Toronto. Four of the charges carry maximum penalties of life imprisonment on conviction.

Cini has elected trial by judge alone and has pleaded not guilty to all counts.

The airplane, with 118 passengers on board, was diverted to Great Falls, Mont., shortly after takeoff from Calgary Nov. 12, John Arpin of Toronto, the flight's chief purser, testified.

"I heard a voice and turned around and saw a double-barrelled shotgun pointed towards me," the purser said. "I was told to sit down. . . .

"I told the man he was kidding and he replied 'When I blow your head through the side of this airplane, you'll know if I'm kidding'."

The man, identified by Mr. Arpin as Paul Joseph Cini, told the purser to take a yellow piece of paper to the flight deck.

The paper, entered into evidence, was read by the plane's captain, Vern Ehman of Montreal. It said in part:

"Capt. if I see anyone come out of the flight deck they will be minus a head.

"I have just boarded your plane with 54 sticks of dynamite . . . and one shotgun and lots of shells. . . . If everyone stays away from me, no harm will come to them or the plane. Anyone on or of this plane makes a move I don't like, it will only mean that they will make heaven before the rest of us. . . .

". . . I want to go to Great Falls, Mont. There, this airlines will have $1,500,000. . . . If your compay should reuse to pay the $1½ millilon for a $6 million plane. (May the Lord have mercy upon us.)

". . . Passengers will be taken to Regina and released, and I want all luggage and cargo taken off in Regina. . . . I took on this assignment knowing that I would die. . . . Let's not have any heroes, this is the real thing."

The plane landed in Great Falls, $50,000 was placed on board and it left for Regina but returned to Great Falls where passengers and some stewardesses were allowed to leave.

The jetliner then took off for New York, turned towards Phoenix, Ariz., and later headed for Calgary where the hijacker was eventually subdued.

Capt. Ehman said the bag picked up at Great Falls and pulled into the aircraft by a rope contained only $50,000 but the hijacker didn't count it.

The 48-year-old purser, an Air Canada employee for 25 years, said Cini had 10 sticks of dynamite in two bundles of five on top of a lounge table in the first-class cabin. A fuse was attached to each bundle, and Cini constantly ignited a lighter which came close to the fuse.

Cars Wouldn't Stop To Help Save Life

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — John Renfrow, 13, stood along Interstate 80 in western Iowa, waving frantically in an effort to stop passing cars. A few feet away, his father worked in vain to save his mother's life.

The father said Monday:

"I had the car's four-way flashers on. John was crying and waving his arms. I was giving my wife artificial respiration on the shoulder of the road. Anyone could see it wasn't a setup for a robbery."

The family was returning Sunday from a visit to relatives in Perry, Iowa, when Mrs. Renfrow "quivered and slumped forward" in her seat, her husband said.

She had undergone four operations in the last two years.

After several minutes, Renfrow reported, a car stopped.

"The man drove in to get a rescue squad but it was too late," Renfrow said.

His wife was pronounced dead when a physician and a fire department rescue squad arrived.

Renfrow said he didn't know why the passing motorists ignored them. Both lanes were crowded—"it seemed like bumper to bumper.

"People passed us by like we were weeds."

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Property Transfer Tax Eyed

A land transfer tax may be proposed in Central Saanich if the provincial government approves a recommendation made to council Monday by the municipal finance committee.

Ald. Ted Clayards proposed that real estate transactions be subject to a land tax similar to that proposed in Nova Scotia with the resulting revenue to be kept by the municipality for purchase of greenbelt areas.

Clayards noted that properties within this area are continually changing hands with an ever-increasing gross value from which the private sector of this municipality and neighboring municipalities make substantial profit.

Although Ald. Percy Lazarz objected that such a tax would be a form of double taxation on rural landowners, Clayards said that the municipalities would have the option of whether or not to oppose the tax.

According to the present Central Saanich subdivision bylaw, part of the large tracts of land being subdivided must be set aside for parkland.

Two Jews Jailed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Two Jews received 15-day jail sentences each after participating in a demonstration at Riga, Latvia, to commemorate the killing of Jews by Germans in the Second World War, Jewish sources said Monday night. They said the two, sentenced on charges of hooliganism, had been seen talking to American tourists.

FAIR FUN LINED UP

Victoria's annual Jaycees Fair will be held this year during the week of May 15-20 and will feature Rolly Hammond, Canadian impressionist and ventriloquist as its top entertainer.

The fair will again occupy the grounds and buildings of the Victoria Curling Club and Memorial Arena and will feature booths of displays, midway rides, games of chance and the Miss Victoria pageant.

Also featured will be an ecological display by Environment 100 and special displays by artists and craftsmen of Victoria's Open Space.

Other entertainment groups performing will be the Regal Tahitians, a 7-member South Seas combo with dance and music; the Seoul Kittens, four singing girls from Korea; and the Banana Splits, a comedy act featured in a television series.

Aurora Napau Kaawa, Miss Hawaii 1972, will also be appearing at the fair.

Festival Vocalists Shine

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A considerable range was covered by music and speech sessions of the Greater Victoria Music Festival's first day Monday.

There was opera and musical comedy, the informality of campfire singing and the formality of junior church choirs.

There were pianists under 10 years of age and open class concerto players; there were mime and dramatic monologues, piano accordions and classical guitars.

The pattern is much the same today at the four centres — piano at Newcombe Auditorium; vocal, First United Fellowship Hall; speech arts, room 119 Fellowship Hall; accordion, St. John's Memorial Hall.

Already some highlights have emerged. A number of exceptional young solo voices have delighted adjudicator Donald Francke and, while not given to high marking, he bestowed a 92 on baritone Brian Benn and a 90 on tenor James Oakman for their senior class solos Monday night.

Eric Roberts also achieved a 90 to top the musical comedy class and collected an 89 and 88 in senior folk song and bass solo classes.

The evening at Newcombe was marked by some fine musical performances of sonatas and concertos by seven young pianists in open classes.

When the concerto class concluded adjudicator John Simonds described it as a brilliant finale to an evening of splendid playing.

Mary Chard had played the last movement of the Ravel G major; Christopher Donison, Beethoven's C major first movement; Kwok May-Ling the Schumann A minor first movement and Allen Reiser, the Mozart E flat first to which he had written his own cadenza.

Simonds congratulated the pianist on the cadenza which he said was in perfect style; in fact his whole performance had been "most beautiful," said the adjudicator.

"I would so much rather not have to choose a winner," he said, "for I enjoyed you all . . . the very dramatic and forceful performance of the Schumann . . . the musically very good Beethoven . . . the sparkling Ravel."

TWO BEST

However he named Reiser and May-Ling as the two top performers with 89 and 88 respectively.

In the previous sonata class, the over-all quality of performance also impressed him and he named Jim Picken and Stephanie Soulsby as winner and runner-up with 87 and 86.

This evening's sessions include two primary choirs, more vocal solos, oratorio and light opera at First United; senior and open piano classes at St. John's Hall and open speech arts classes at St. Ann's Academy.

On Wednesday it's more of the same with provincial championship classes a feature of the evening at First United.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man convicted on five counts of false pretences who said he was trying to pay everybody back was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation when he appeared in provincial court Monday.

Daniel R. Coleman, 23, pleaded guilty to passing bad cheques for $100 and $15 at the Bay Dec. 22 and 23, two cheques for $30 each at Woodwards and a tailor's Dec. 21, and $150 at a city motel last Nov. 21.

In imposing the two-year probationary term, Judge William Ostler said Coleman's desire to make restitution was commendable, but the "restitution isn't the whole principle involved."

* * *

The first person sentenced for failing to respond to an appearance notice under reforms to the Bail Act was imposed by Ostler Monday on a man who pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Patrick Joseph Duffy, 1021 Government, was sentenced to five days in jail for causing the disturbance April 6 in the 600-block Government. He was given an additional three days for failing to appear in court as ordered in a notice issued to him at the time. The sentences will be served consecutively.

Ostler said the liberal intent of bail law reform was to give protection against unnecessary incarceration of citizens, but "the provisions of the law are not to be abused."

* * *

Two persons pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language and a third was remanded to a later date after police broke up a raucus party in the 900-block Caledonia Saturday night.

Police were called to the scene at 11:40 p.m. Saturday by the landlord. The arrests were made as police attempted to disperse a crowd of about 100 young prople.

Roy Fox, 17, of 10814 Derrick, and Doris Underwood, 18, of 3214 Maple, were sentenced to a nominal one day in jail.

A third person already is before the courts on charges involving heroin possession and breaking and entering. He was remanded for sentence on the disturbance charge pending outcome of the more serious offences.

Ostler called it "outrageous" that policemen should be treated to verbal abuse when they are performing their duty.

"The best punishment, one which I suspect the policemen are longing to administer, would be a good spanking . . . unfortunately, the statutes don't allow it," the judge said.

"I imagine the policemen have to restrain themselves — especially if they have children of their own — from administering some form of corporal punishment."

* * *

Stafford Guy Benning, 29, of no fixed address, was jailed 14 days for theft involving less than $50, the theft of two flashlights worth $1.50 each from a Fisgard Street newsstand Sunday.

* * *

Bennett Sam, 54, of 9 Cooper Road, was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months' probation for shoplifting $1.85 worth of frozen chicken from a Johnson Street meat market April 5. He pleaded guilty.

Victoria Trustees Move Ahead On 'Choice of School' Policy

Greater Victoria school board moved Monday night toward a policy of allowing parents the choice of the type of school they want their children to attend.

The board's education committee approved a motion that will bring the proposal to the formal board meeting next Monday. Approval in principle at that time is considered a sure thing.

The proposal would see development of two types of schools which form extremes in educational philosophy. One type would be very free and liberal in discipline while the other would be more regimented and structured. Board chairman Allan McKinnon described it as "Summerhill or Stanton Military Academy."

An opinion poll will be held in Greater Victoria in the near future, asking parents which type of institution they favor. After results are known, an effort to establish the different types of school will be made.

TRY OUT

A committee of teachers formed to study the proposal recommended to the education committee that a small elementary school be used to try out the proposal. The idea is to appoint a principal with a definite educational policy — either free or regimented — and allow him to select his own staff.

With assistance from a parent committee, the principal and staff would plan their own curriculum. Those parents wishing to have their children attend the particular school would register them there.

The proposal follows on a move last year by the school board to remove boundaries which formerly restricted children to attending only the school within their geographical area.

As trustee Carron Jameson said, the proposal would make the school board either "put up or shut up" about its no-boundary policy.

IDEAL

Jameson said such a proposal would be ideal for such a community as Campbell River, where the population appears about equally divided over the educational policies of the single high school and its principal, controversial John Young. He said Victoria is large enough to support a choice for parents in the type of education they want for their children.

John Wiens, director of instruction, said the final test of the public's acceptance of the proposal would be when they registered their children in the particular schools involved.

McKinnon said education is "doing something wrong somewhere," that it is not satisfying enough people. He said the present system is a compromise between the regimented and the free and said people are moving towards the two separate poles rather than continuing in support of a middle position.

APPROVAL

In other business, the education committee discussed and gave approval in principle to a proposal from trustee Philip Ney that the best qualified and most mature teachers be used for kindergarten and the first three grades.

Although administration officials said there may be a problem in trying to make the policy work, the trustees generally agreed that the quality of instruction at the lower levels could use some improvement.

Ney suggested that teachers be encouraged to teach the lower grades through higher pay and an increase in the prestige of teaching those grades. He said whatever it is that makes children bad students or slow developers happens in the first three years of their education.

Ney said there are not enough male teachers in the lower grades and that many female teachers in the lower grades teach merely for the interim period between university graduation and marriage.

Weins said it would be difficult to take a "good" teacher— who may be good only in the higher grades he teaches — and plug him into the lower grades and expect him to perform as effectively.

He said teachers do the best work in the areas in which they feel most confident.

HUNTING COURSE UNDER FIRE

Several Greater Victoria school trustees went hunting Monday night. Their target: a proposed course offering instruction in hunting and fishing.

Philip Ney led the bombardment of the proposed course, saying hunting is not the kind of thing which should be taught in Greater Victoria schools. The name of the proposed course is "Hunter Training." Ney suggested it be called "Know Your Victim."

Trustee Harry Graham joined the protest, saying he didn't think grade school children should be taught how to hunt, but how to conserve wildlife.

The eventual decision was to take the matter, along with several other proposed courses, to next Monday's board meeting.

Ney said if people stopped shooting at animals "maybe they would be our friends."

Trustee Walter Donald argued that although the trustees might not favor their children taking the course, there are people who will hunt nevertheless, and their children should not be deprived of the right to take the course.

Ney countered that there will likely always be wars and therefore people should be trained to kill other people as effectively as possible.

"We don't need to further peoples' interest in hunting," he said.

Quilt Report Completed

A report of a special investigation into the death of Fred Quilt is complete and will soon be submitted to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The investigation was ordered by Peterson this spring in addition to instructions he gave to B.C. supervising coroner to review the inquest into Quilt's death in Williams Lake Nov 30, 1971.

Peterson said Monday he expected to receive the investigation report later in the day, and added he hoped it wouldn't take him too long to decide what action to take on the report.

He indicated he might ask an independent lawyer to study the document should it contain information suggesting that charges could be laid.

Quilt, a 55-year-old Chilcotin Indian, died two days after an incident involving RCMP. A subsequent inquest said the death was accidental. But Indians have charged Quilt died because of a beating by the police.

Peterson would not say who carried out the investigation but it is believed to be a high-ranking RCMP officer.

CAR SIZE 'MEASURES' SEXUAL POTENCY?

LONDON (AP) — British men measure their sexual potency by the size, quality and youth of the automobiles they drive, a motoring magazine said Sunday.

Its findings were immediately rejected by a spokesman for the company that makes mini-cars.

Motor Market News said Britian rapidly is becoming the most car-conscious country in the world.

"A man measures his own success, and sexual potency, by the size, quality and youth of the car he drives," the magazine declared. "And there is a growing tendency for the private motorist to change his car more often and, always for something bigger, better and newer."

The spokesman for British Leyland, which produces most of Britain's minis, commented: "This can't really be a general rule. If it is, all these people with mini-cars must be hiding terrible problems."

Tax Increase Faces Duncan

City council gave first reading Monday night to a $991,988 budget, which does not include school, hospital or regional district costs.

Finance chairman Ald. Hamish Mutter said the increase raises the mill rate to 33.51. Last year's revised budget for general purposes was $972,309.

The city's 1972 waterworks budget dropped to $139,500 from last year's total of $141,000.

DUNCAN WON'T BOLSTER POLICE

DUNCAN — The local RCMP's request for an additional policeman to increase "preventive" policing was turned down by city council Monday evening.

Staff-Sgt. H. K. Knopf explained in a letter to council that the detachment has seven men for policing Duncan, unchanged for three years.

"The volume of work has increased considerably since, particularly as it pertains to drug abuse," Knopf said. "Increased traffic control is also needed."

Knopf said the present manpower allows only limited preventive policing "which is not a desirable situation both from the police and public viewpoint. Preventive policing generates a greater awareness by the police of the activities within the community and likewise by the residents. It brings about a better understanding, closer co-operation and a freer exchange of information. The police can function more effectively and the community develops a reputation as being unhealthy for the criminal."

Council felt that with the high cost of policing, they were unable to grant the request.

Parents Halt Bus

LADYSMITH — A group of Yellow Point parents halted a school bus on its morning rounds Monday to protest the barring of kindergarten children from riding on school buses in the Ladysmith school district.

The cutback was carried out after the recent failure of the boards $97,000 school operating referendum.

Mary Wyndlow, spokesman for the group living 12 miles from the nearest kindergarten class, said, "we could understand if the bus came here for kindergarten children only but as it stands now the bus stops, picks up the older children and returns to Ladysmith with empty seats."

Board chairman Dr. Gerald Philippson said the situation will be reviewed at a special board meeting Wednesday evening. Until the board has had an opportunity to review its policy, Philippson said "nothing can be done."

TWO CHARGES FACE DRIVER

RCMP said a driver went through two road-blocks on the Cowichan Valley highway while Lake Cowichan RCMP were in pursuit. The motorist was finally stopped in Duncan when police vehicles surrounded him.

Cost Jump Jolts Board

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board members were shocked Monday evening when they learned that construction costs for three four-room "pods" had increased six per cent since the $300,000 building referendum less than a year ago.

Maintenance superintendent George Routley said that architects estimated construction of the pods, for Bench, Crofton and Koksilah elementary schools, would be about $375,000.

When bids closed for construction of the additions Friday, Routley said the lowest was from J. L. Peterson Construction Company Ltd., of Lake Cowichan, for $400,559. The next closest was for $407,529 by A. D. Storrie Construction Ltd., of Victoria, while the highest of the eight was $467,898 by Mod Industries, Langley.

"The lowest bid is pretty high. It only can be attributed to the very uncertain situation in the labor market where there is talk of walkouts by unions, etc.," Routley said.

ARTS CURB PROTESTED

DUNCAN — Cultural activities in Cowichan Valley will suffer if arts are cut from the senior secondary school curriculum, Cowichan school board trustees were told by a small delegation Monday evening.

Members from the Cowichan Musical Festival Committee urged trustees to reconsider their decision to cut drama from the curriculum next school term if there are less than 15 registered in the course.

The education committee will study the decision again and report back to the board.

In a brief the 12 parents said they were protesting the deletion of drama or any of the arts from the curriculum.

"In these days of high inflation we realize the economic difficulties involved but may we suggest the arts are not the place for cuts," they said.

"Man has not only one intellect but also a soul and if only the intellect is nourished, society becomes purely materialistic and will not survive."

Chevy Nova in B.C.

Why is it that so many people in British Columbia like small cars? Well when you examine their low initial cost, good operating economy, easy handling and parking, not to mention BC's unique driving conditions, it makes a lot of sense.

And for just those same reasons it makes even better sense to have a closer look at Chevy Nova.

We call it the not-too-big, not-too-small Chevrolet.

Not-too-big.

Chevy Nova is so much like a little car in so many big ways.

Nova's not-too-big when you come to buy it. Its low price is awfully close to what most people end up paying for little cars.

And on the road both the Chevy Nova's standard six and V8 run efficiently on low-lead, no-lead or regular fuels.

Chevy Nova handles just like a little car too, when you're stuck in traffic or in a tight parking spot.

Very dependable.

And Nova's very like a little car when it comes to maintenance and service costs. Last year Nova was voted as being the car with "the least mechanical problems" by servicemen and garage owners. And they're the ones who should know!

Not-too-small.

Chevy Nova is a big car when you want it to be. On the highway in high winds, Nova doesn't get buffeted around. Nova has room for six. And totes a trunkful for all of them.

So if you want the best of the small, and the best of the big, try a Chevy Nova on for size at your Chevrolet dealer's.

15-Mill Tax Hike If Out Of Current Revenue, Says City

WAC Offers $2.5M for Centre

Bennett said he wants the long-proposed centre built "forthwith" and "without debt" to create jobs and provide the Victoria area with a necessary facility.

He said the province will pay one-third of the costs of construction up to a maximum of $2.5 million if the city puts up one-third of the cost plus the land and private enterprise and "individuals" put up the remaining one-third.

Bennett said the benefit to the tourist trade of a convention centre is reason for requiring a substantial cost-share by private enterprise.

Mayor Peter Pollen and convention centre-co-ordinator Ald. Clyde Savage were out of town and unavailable for comment.

City officials pointed out, however, that $2.5 million out of current revenue would mean a 15-mill increase in taxes, or a jump of about 20 per cent.

The city is expected to reveal its budget for the coming year shortly and an increase of about two mills is expected.

The city has been prepared to sell or lease the Crystal Garden site when the civic centre has been planned. The site has been valued up to $750,000.

In a convention centre worth about $2 million, he said, the city would probably be happy to contribute its third in the form of the land.

Bennett said then that the city could finance its share of the centre over a long period, but that the debt could not be charged against the centre's operation.

He also said he would consider a federal contribution as part of the municipality's one-third share.

Asked if he was precluding cultural facilities for the centre, Bennett replied: "I don't want to be narrow on that point of view," but made it clear the cultural uses would be in addition to the basic tourist facility.

If cultural facilities could be included in the $7.5 million total cost, he would go along with it.

Before Bennett clarified his statement on how the city could finance its share of the centre, acting mayor Ald. Percy Frampton, called the Bennett offer "impossible."

"I would not even attempt to ask the taxpayer for the money," Frampton said, and said he would oppose anyone who did.

"It's just out of the question."

In his original announcement, Bennett made clear the city's $2.5 million share wouldn't include the value of the land, which he said he understands is already available for a convention centre.

The premier said he wanted to encourage Victoria to move ahead with the project "forthwith" and described his cost-sharing offer as a continuation of the government's efforts to create jobs.

Bennett said the centre should be built without debt, which would require the city's share to be paid out of current revenues.

The premier made the announcement in a telephone call to the legislative press gallery, saying it is the government's opinion that a "convention centre and auditorium" should be built now.

A spokesman for a local group pushing for establishment of a combined cultural-convention centre said today Bennett's statement can only be interpreted to mean that the building the province is offering to finance would indeed be a combined structure.

"I'm sure Premier Bennett used the term 'convention centre' in the context of a combination of cultural and civic facilities," Allan Purdy, chairman of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation, said.

He said if Bennett meant $2.5 million to represent one-third of the total cost, the structure would cost $7.5 million. "That would be the largest convention centre in North America, and I don't think that's what he meant," Purdy said.

He said Bennett is "obviously endorsing the proposal of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation because his thinking of the economics of the thing is very much in line with ours."

COUNTRY LIFE has gone sour for Mrs. Strand, left, holding her son Tom, 2½, and Mrs. Crowther. Both their families moved out to live in Colwood about a year ago. Shortly after, a subdivision began above them (in background) and they feel improper drainage from it is ruining their health.

'A Hell of a Winter'

Colwood Families Fight Pollution, Bureaucracies

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

"It's been a hell of a winter," said Mrs. W. C. Strand, 520 Latoria, in Colwood as she recounted the woes her family has suffered since they move out last April to experience the joys of country living.

But the Strand family has not been alone in their suffering. Their neighbors, the Thomas Crowthers, 3552 Wishart, have had essentially the same problems and grief.

Both families feel their troubles have something to do with the construction of a subdivision above them, which began after they moved in.

Drainage is coming down through ditches from the subdivision, and both families are worried that the water is polluted from the septic tanks and is getting into their wells, from which they drink.

FAMILIES SICK

Most members of both families have been sick for most of the winter. Mrs. Strand's four children have been suffering ear infections, two of Mrs. Crowther's children have had ear infections, and one, a 2½-year-old boy, was again this week, in an oxygen tent.

Mrs. Strand has had an ear infection, and now has bronchitis. Mrs. Crother has been sick the last month with an ear infection. Her third child, a month-old infant, is also sick. Both husbands have been sick off and on.

The Crowther boy, now in hospital for the fourth time, had pneumonia earlier in the winter. Most of their children have also had croup.

When the families started approaching different levels of government — to find out if the drainage was in fact polluted and coming into their wells — and to get the developer, E. W. Adye of Shawnigan Lake, to correct the ditch system — they found themselves being shuttled around by the bureaucracies, and, to date, no one will help them.

Each branch of the government told them that, because of regulations, it was not their responsibility, and today Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, said "to hell with them."

Whitbread, who had refused to take any tests of the well water, said the water has to be polluted and he blames it on what he calls the shallow, poorly constructed wells.

He said their problem would be solved if they connected to the city water system, or "if they boiled their water."

NOW, POLLUTION

Mrs. Strand said she can't afford the $500 it will take to connect, and Mrs. Crowther noted that the wells were part of the price of the houses, and that the city water system wasn't there when they moved in.

The two women had believed that government was there for "the protection of people" and now they have the feeling "the government doesn't care about us."

Some of these various dealings they had with government officials:

NOT REQUIRED

From P. W. Miller of the provincial Pollution Control Branch: "Development above your property has not a single effluent discharge of greater than 5,000 gallons per day, and therefore a permit under the Pollution Control Act, 1967, is not required. Considering the above observations your complaint does not fall within our jurisdiction . . ."

From district engineer E. A. Lund of the department of highways, which built three culverts under the road separating the subdivision and the two beleaguered properties and allowed the drainage to come down:

"The department of highways is only required by law to adequately pass the water from one side of the road to the other . . . the department is not prepared to work further on private property."

The Strands and Crowthers did get some help from one government official, P. G. Odynsky, district engineer of the water rights branch, but today he said he can only go so far in making developer Adye change the ditch system.

Odynsky wrote asking the developer to correct it by last Friday, but to date it hasn't been corrected. Odynsky says he will now order Adye to correct it. But "if he disobeys the order, it is as far as I can go."

He explained that the complainants will then have to go to the RCMP and lay charges.

Adye was not available for comment today on what he plans to do.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Strand and Mrs. Crowther are disappointed and angry, and are planning legal action — against whom they are not quite sure.

Said Mrs. Strand wearily, as she surveyed her ruined paradise: "We left Vic West to give the kids a life in the country and have pets (even the dog is sick) and my land is polluted. I can't even put a garden in."

"Out here, we have found, it is the survival of the fittest," said Mrs. Crowther.

Nobody's Courting The Battered Lady

The 8,500-ton vessel grounded on the reefs of Austin Island in Barkley Sound March 14, en route from Japan to Vancouver with a cargo of 300 cars.

One indication is that the holed freighter is now for sale on an "as is where is" basis for scrap. Another is she may be blown up.

Rough weather the week after the grounding hampered efforts to corral the leaking fuel oil and salvage cars undamaged by seawater.

Since then there have been reports people have visited the wreck in a variety of boats and picked it clean.

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services for the federal transport department, said from Vancouver today the department has no plans at the moment to move the vessel.

But a recommendation has gone forward to Ottawa that it be blown up with a series of small explosions.

If this was done, it would await favorable weather conditions so the "pockets" of oil left in the ship would be carried to sea, said Buchanan.

Sinking the wreck would remove it as an eyesore and prevent anyone scavenging aboard it from hurting themselves, he added.

Buchanan said it is not unusual in such cases for the owners to turn the wreck over to the underwriters and the underwriters refuse to accept responsibility for it.

Asked what equipment he now has on hand for the job, he said there is a heavy duty slick licker stationed at Victoria and light duty ones at Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

His department now has 1,600 feet of Bennett boom, a heavy duty boom used to hold the oil spreading from the Vanlene.

There is as well a "sea truck," a barge about 30 feet by nine feet capable of speeds to 15 knots, twice the speed of the average barge. It will be used to carry needed equipment or a slick licker unit, which uses a conveyor belt to lift oil from the surface.

DRIVER KILLED

A Central Saanich man was killed when the car he was driving flipped into the ditch on the Shawnigan Lake-Mill Bay Road at 11:15 p.m. Monday.

Roderick Allen Clifford, 21, of Stelly's Cross Road, was killed instantly. A woman passenger, Cathy Harvey of Campbell River, was uninjured.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said a coroner's inquiry would be held.

Correction Set For Job Forms

Employment application forms used by Standard Furniture Co. and a company associated with Standard will be corrected, Jack Sherlock, director of the labor department's human rights branch, said today.

He said VI Service Managment Co. Ltd., 808 Viewfield, a recently-created company which has contracted to run the warehouse owned by Standard, has written to say it is changing employment application forms to delete improper questions.

Sherlock said Standard Furniture has referred the question to a lawyer, but the company "knows it has to and I expect it will be squared away."

He said provincial legislation prohibits employers from asking, on job application forms, such details as the person's race, birthplace and religious affiliation.

The Teamsters Union filed complaints with the human rights branch that Standard Furniture forms ask what clubs, societies and church "now or formerly" applicants have been affiliated with, as well as questions about birthplace and citizenship.

With one exception, church affiliation, the union said the questions were the same on application forms used by the recently-created company which runs the Esquimalt warehouse.

INQUEST ORDERED BY A-G

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday he has ordered an inquest into the March 21 death of Karl Wolfgang Ladinig of 3 Mark Lane in unorganized territory north of Durrance Lake.

Peterson said he has acceded to a request from the boy's father, Karl Ladinig, for an inquest rather than the inquiry ordered previously by the attorney-general.

The inquest will be conducted by Victoria Provincial Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jore, Peterson said. In a letter to Peterson last week, Mr. Ladinig asked for an inquest to allow a full investigation into the need for emergency ambulance services in unorganized territories.

Young Ladinig, 19, was pronounced dead on arrival at Queen Victoria Hospital at 9:15 a.m. His father first called Saanich police at 7:40 a.m.

The Durrance Lake area where the Ladinigs live is served by RCMP. An RCMP officer and a Sidney volunteer fireman left for Mark Lane at 8:05 a.m.

The reached the remote address by 8:30. The young man had been unconscious for about two hours when his father called Saanich.

But What's an SLR With a Normal Lens?

LAST WINTER, OR PERhaps I should say earlier this winter, my wife decided it was time to get some order into the family snapshot jumble. As the pile of filled albums grew higher, certain facts about our ventures into photography became apparent.

One was that if the picture-taking had been left to me, we'd have maybe a dozen blurry shots of people with heads or feet cut off, all of them dangling fish. Also, if we hoped to trap the fleeting moment to best advantage, we should think about getting more adequate equipment.

We didn't realize it then, but with that decision, we had taken our first step away from the happy innocence enjoyed by the casual poke-and-shoot snapshot taker. The next step came when we dropped in at a photographic supply depot for information.

We got it. The man behind the counter was a cheerful enthusiast only too willing to hold forth on his pet subject.

But he made the error that the possessor of specialized knowledge tumbles into all too easily when confronted by the uninformed. He assumed that we had at least a basic understanding, and we never did get a chance to put him striaght.

"What's an SLR with a normal lens?" I asked my partner when we got outside.

"Your guess is as good as mine," Win said. "He might as well have been speaking a different language." Half a block later, she added gloomily, "If we're going on with this we'd better start at kindergarten level."

We got hold of a book on photography written by an adult for the bright, modern child. It helped, but not enough, so we tried another book. That treatment was the work of a 14-year-old camera bug who sensibly assumed that the little kids he wrote it for didn't know anything.

He laid out the photographic process in the simplest of terms, and his book was plentifully supplied with sketches.

We then placed ourselves in the hands of a camera expert, after telling him before he could so much as open his mouth that we didn't speak photographers' language.

He responded by giving us much good advice, making sure that Win understood it even if I didn't, and selling us a 35-millimetre single lens reflex camera with 50-millimetre normal lens. In a roundabout, tactful way, he also managed to convey a suggestion that it might be better if my wife took the pictures.

That hint fell gratefully on my ears. Still, I did have a few unanswered questions, and fetched them out on the way home.

Like why, if it was a 35-millimetre camera, did it have that 50-millimetre lens? And which was the gizmo you pressed to take a picture, and what was the function of the little crank that folded into the flat knob on top?

"I'll explain it all to you sometime," Win said. "Only first, maybe you should read that book again."

In the weeks since, we have made several interesting discoveries about photography as a hobby. One of these is that a camera by itself is merely a unit in a progression on which we've no more than made a start.

Small accessories have a way of proliferating. Larger ones suggest themselves. A projector and screen, for instance, so we won't have to peer at our slides through a dinky little viewer. Other lenses . . . a telephoto to bring the picture subject closer, and a wide-angle to spread out the scenery.

We haven't got the wide-angle yet, but the telephoto's in the bag which has grown appreciably heavier since I first hung it on my shoulder and trudged after my dear one on a picture-taking junket.

Our last expedition took us to the cove beach. I went off along the flats to steer a congregation of breakfasting gulls within range, and arrived with the last straggler of the flock opposite Win's position.

It occurred to me as she tracked the gull with the telephoto that she looked darn near professional.

"One five-hundredth at F8," she observed in photographer-language.

Since then, I've banged off a few shots myself. They didn't turn out very well, but the gull one did. It will look good on a screen when we get around to that projector.

Irish Fabrics Highlight Dublin Show

Irish tweeds and hand-loomed knits are world famous and naturally made their rightful appearance in this season's annual fashion presentation by the Irish Export Board.

In fact, the show's highlight consisted of three full-length evening suits in shadow plaids and squares with satin twisted loop-yarn woven into the tweed.

But the fashion scope for the fall of 1972 was, of course, a much broader one — from chiffon evening gowns to rainwear. For the first time, men's fashions were also included.

The show represented 34 designers and manufacturers. The Irish fashion industry last year exported clothing worth more than $57 million.

The glamor and femininity theme of the clothes was introduced by singing film clips of such stars as Rita Hayworth and Marilyn Monroe. All were wearing long evening gowns. So, abviously, the fashion showing opened with evening clothes, to prove that this season's floor-length interest will carry over into next fall. The audience, too, was in a formal mood. It was definitely a long-gown and black-tie evening.

First out were two long dresses by Ib Jorgensen, a pink silk with a petal organdy collar and a blue embroidered organdy. Later came his tweed evening suits, worn with wild silk tops. This Danish-born but Irish-spirited designer plans to show in Canada by next season. His Irish wife is a textile designer and they live in one of Dublin's old Georgian houses.

Another long-skirted but casual group was by Donald Davies, well-known to Canadians. These were gypsy tweed skirts in five tiers in toning shades topped by front-frilled plain-color shirts. Another well-known name to Canadians is that of Jack Clarke whose family firm has been selling colorful and distinctive tweed coats in Canada since 1950.

A highlight of his fall collection is a red-and-black plaid coat with straight front and tent-proportioned back.

Irish fashions are not trend-setters any more than are Canadian ones. They are designed, as Colm Barnes, chairman of the Irish Export Board, said in opening the showing, "to fill a demand for quality goods with specialty appeal."

FIDDLING DANGEROUS WITH HEART PACERS

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto heart specialist has advised patients with heart pacers to have confidence in the devices and not to fiddle with them.

Dr. A. W. Chisholm of Sunnybrook Hospital, an associate professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, says several patients have caused pacers to fail by constantly fussing with them.

He said some patients have managed to turn pacers completely around under the skin of the chest near the shoulder, coiling and breaking the wires. None of the patients died from the failure.

Day Care Centre Lack Not Keeping Mother Home

CALGARY (CP) — Those who oppose day care centres are only depriving the children and not keeping the mothers at home, a meeting of Alberta home economists was told here recently.

Norma Matheson, day care consultant for Calgary, said the city has 2,000 licensed spaces for more than 8,000 preschool children or working mothers and the situation is the same across Canada.

In 1967, federal statistics showed that one in five mothers with children under 14, or 540,000 women, were working.

Some of the women work by choice rather than necessity, she said, but in one family out of 10 in Canada the woman is the sole wage earner and there are more in which the mother works to bring the living standard above the subsistence level.

"Whether this is the case or not the statistics indicate that women are returning to work in increasing numbers and by not providing adequate day care we are clearly not keeping women in the home but we may be denying adequate care to a lot of children."

Too Expensive

This need cannot always be met by the private market, she said, because some people find such facilities too expensive.

"Provision of good day care should not be a large profit making operation — just as good school or good hospitals do not make large profits."

One of the myths about day care is that it leads to family breakdown because the mother can go to work, she said.

"Day care can prevent family breakdown by relieving certain physical and mental strains on family life such as in families where the parents work shifts in order to provide care for the children."

Other myths were that preschool programs produce children who are frustrated in school, she said, and that anyone can look after children.

"The experience of caring for your own children is in no way the equivalent of caring for 15 or 20 children all of the same age and all from extremely varying backgrounds."

Miss Matheson said franchised day care centres are common in the United States and have spread to Winnipeg and Toronto.

"Quality (in the U.S. franchises) ranges from pure custodial to child development programs ... (they are) cashing in on the upper class day care market."

VET PENSION BOOST SEEN

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Arthur Laing, federal minister of veterans affairs, predicted Monday an increase in veterans' pensions sometime in 1973 and a general election this June.

Laing told a nomination meeting of the Oxford Liberal Association he expects the election in June, but "failing that, in October."

Old Marriage Vows Irrelevant?

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Many young couples today would make rotten politicians. They refuse to make promises they may be unable to keep.

These young people recognize the fact that feelings and circumstances change. Because of this they are willing to state their present love at their weddings but most believe it would be wrong to promise this love will last a lifetime.

Express Hope

They believe that, in all honesty, they can only express the hope their love will last.

Some couples, like David and Beverly Letchford, write their own marriage vows to express their individual beliefs.

"We didn't promise each other anything," Mrs. Letchford said.

They were married three years ago Easter in the chapel of Queenswood House of Studies. About 50 young friends stood in a circle around the couple while they exchanged vows in front of the altar.

Letchford, 24, will graduate from the University of Victoria this spring. Mrs. Letchford, 24, is a teacher at the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for handicapped children.

"We couldn't have gone along with the traditional vows," Letchford said. "We're both too individualistic.

"Our vows were an offering and an acceptance. It was just what we felt at the time. What we had to give each other."

Emotional Aspect

For example, the bridegroom said: "I give you not what I have but what I am."

Stating their love for each other had a strong emotional impact. "We were both crying so hard no one could hear our vows," Mrs. Letchford said.

Their experience bears out the views of one local minister who has married several young couples who wrote their own vows like the Letchfords.

'Really Thinking'

Dr. R. A. McLaren of Cadboro Bay United Church says "the kids who write their own vows are really thinking about the meaning of marriage and what it means to them personally.

"They have their own ideas about life and express in their own words what is meaningful to them."

McLaren says the words in the traditional marriage ceremony used to have meaning but are no longer relevant.

"There are different words today with different meanings," he said.

McLaren says really thinking about what marriage means and expressing it in their own words is a good way for couples to start married life.

No Legal Fight

"There are a lot of married couples who never really see each other as individuals," he said. "If a couple is living together and really see and love each other they are far more married than those that are just leagally fighting through marriage."

McLaren says young people who live together before marriage often show more understanding than those who "only see each other under ideal circumstances all dressed up for a date."

Father Richard Caldwell of St. Andrew's Cathedral approves of young couples incorporating their own vows into the framework of the traditional Nuptial Mass.

He said the Catholic Church had always adopted the policy that "the law of belief is the law of prayer."

"A religious belief must express the belief of the people," he said. "This is why the church dropped Latin."

He sees his role in the ceremony as "helping the couple to make a public expression of their love before witnesses."

"Some churches stick to every little detail of the ritual," Caldwell said. "The letter of the law must be observed whether the spirit is there or not."

He thinks it is easy to ask a couple 'do you,' or 'don't you?' "I don't see myself authorizing a contract between a couple but as making their love clear to the congregation," he said.

Words Unimportant

"As long as this expression of love is there it doesn't matter what words are used."

Caldwell thinks many young people want to write their own prayers because the liturgy has lost "a sense of immediacy."

"We have now started to rebuild the liturgy so that it is meaningful again."

Abortion Laws Avoided

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 93 per cent of 973 women who sought help from a national abortion advisory agency last year had to go to the United States for abortions.

Lore Perron, director of the Association for the Review of Canadian Abortion Laws, Inc., said in an interview Monday that public hospitals in Canada do not meet their responsibilities.

Hospitals which legally could set up abortion committees either refuse to do so or instruct the committees to be too strict in interpreting acceptable reasons for abortion, she said.

Of six main public hospitals in Ottawa, for example, three had Roman Catholic affiliations and had not set up abortion committees. Two others had committees, but accepted only a few applications.

"Only one hospital takes a legally liberal attitude and accepts its responsibility — and their operating facilities are overloaded," she said.

"Ottawa's situation is not a singular example. Most cities in Canada also have hospitals that fail to meet their responsibilities."

Mrs. Perron was commenting on a news release about statistics on 1,062 women who came for help.

"Out of the 1,062 women, 50 carried on with their pregnancies after counselling from the association, 19 were found to be not pregnant and 20 aborted spontaneously (miscarried)."

Of the total pregnancies terminated, 61 were done in Canadian hospitals, she said.

The ages of those women who came for help ranged from 13 years to 50, she said. Ninety-seven were under age 18.

Only 26 per cent of the women who sought help from the association were married, the figures showed.

The association stresses counselling and educational help, Mrs. Perron said. During counselling, methods of birth control are discussed.

"There's so much ignorance involving birth control and just normal facts about the reproductive process," she said.

Shirley Chisholm: 'My beautiful Little Star'

Chisholm—Paradox of Politics

NEW YORK (AP)—She has been described as a revolutionary, a matriarch and a pest, but the person who knows her best says Shirley Chisholm is none of those things. He calls her "my beautiful little star."

"She makes me feel 20 feet tall," Conrad Chisholm said of his wife, the first black woman elected to Congress, the first of her sex to make a serious run for the White House, and one of the most outspoken politicians on the U.S. scene.

'Shake Up the System'

"I'm moving full speed ahead," she said. "of all the candidates, I am the best thing going. I have Indians around me, young people, black people, white people, women. And I'm the only candidate who can speak Spanish."

But the feisty, 100-pound firebrand says her best political asset is her mouth: "I am unbossed and unbought and can say what I want."

Mrs. Chisholm promises she will "shake up the system" if elected.

"I'm a revolutionary at heart now and I've got to run even though it might be the downfall of my career."

Ironically, her major headache seems to stem from black politicians. Male, black Democrats are striving to form a coalition for the national convention. But indications now are that they are less than likely to throw total support to Mrs. Chisholm.

Sipping a weak scotch at a dimly lit table in the Orchid Lounge in Ossining, N.Y., she tried to explain her frustrations about the "black matriarch thing" to local community workers.

"They think I am trying to take power from them," she said.

"The black man must step forward, but that doesn't mean the black woman must step back. Being a woman is a bigger drawback for me than being black."

She was born Shirley St. Hill 47 years ago in Brooklyn, the oldest of four daughters of West Indian parents, an unskilled laborer and a domestic. She grew up in Barbados and returned to Brooklyn when she was 11, but still retains the clipped West Indian accent.

She earned a master's degree at Brooklyn College, taught nursery school and became involved in local politics while running a day-care centre. She worked upward through the white-dominated Brooklyn wards and clubhouses and was elected to the state assembly in 1964.

"She was never afraid to jump into a debate," he said. "She was never hysterical and never flailed. She knew what she wanted to say and she said it well. Once she made up her mind, you couldn't blast her out of it."

Mrs. Chisholm scored an upset victory over Republican James Farmer, former national chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, in her first bid for Congress in 1968 and quickly gained a reputation as a maverick.

Banned Her from Table

"Nobody knows what I went through during those first weeks," she said. She told about the refusal of one southern delegation to allow her to sit at their table in the House of Representatives dining room and about a certain southern congressman who would spit in his handkerchief when she walked past his seat in the House chamber.

Conrad Chisholm said his wife would run 20 hours a day if he let her but that he makes her stop when he spots the "danger signals."

"She likes to drink hot tea and when the cup begins to tremble in her hand I take her away. One time we went to the Poconos and she slept four days."

Women Evolve Power Strategy

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates from organizations with about two million women members agreed at a weekend meeting to press for action on women's rights by political and other means.

Five hundred delegates from 40 organizations attended a "strategy for change" session at which they decided on steps to be taken at federal, provincial and municipal levels to improve the position of women in Canadian society.

One measure was a decision to seek out women political candidates who would "stress women's priority issues" in every form of government.

These might be independents or members of parties. Those within parties would be urged to form a separate women's caucus in their respective parties.

The conference added in a resolution that it will "make known that the women involved will only vote and work for those candidates who support the basic issues related to the equalization of the status of women."

Restricted Vote

The conference said that "most women are alienated from the political process' and recommended that each of the organizations represented at the meeting set up a political education program to help women "understand the reality of political power" and to assist potential women leaders in becoming politically active.

Another recommendation was that the groups involved should apply pressure on governments to see that women get "proportional representation" in the Senate and on all appointed boards and commissions.

"A major effort," it added, "Should be made to overcome political apathy at the municipal level to encourage women to contest elections for boards of education and municipal councils."

The convention was organized by the national action committee on the status of women, made up of groups from all provinces, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Among delegates were representatives of groups such as the YMCA, the Canadian Federation of University Women, the Women's Liberation Movement, the Voice of Women, the New Feminists and la Federation des Femmes de Quebec.

Seek Consultation

Recommendations included:

- That the federal government should consult with the national committee before introducing legislation in the Commons and that provincial government consult with provincial status-of-women organizations in the same way.
- That a communications network be set up among provincial women's rights groups so that national action might be taken quickly on all issues affecting women.
- That the federal government be requested to set up an independent women's council as suggested in the report of the royal commission on the status of women.

Hospital Visitors Definite Misfits

Since hospitals are inhabited solely by the Afflicted and the Healers, a visitor is clearly a misfit, looking neither sick enough to be a patient nor clean enough to be a nurse.

Feeling as welcome as a blizzard in May, I visited my friend Myra last week. I found her sharing a room with a thin, blonde woman with a faint, black moustache who was scrutinizing her tongue in a hand mirror. Myra seemed a bit uncertain whether hospital protocol demanded that she introduce me.

"I'd like you to meet Mrs. Berger," she finally said.

"I beg your pardon?"

"Colitis," she repeated. "You wouldn't believe the misery I'm in." The three of us observed thirty seconds of silence in wordless homage to Mrs. Berger's unbelievable colitis.

'Don't She Look Terrible?'

"Don't she look terrible?" demanded Mrs. Berger, pointing accusingly at Myra. I had to admit that I had seen Myra look better, but lying in bed for four days watching your toenails grow isn't exactly calculated to put roses in your cheeks.

I groped for an opening gambit. It seemed somewhat pointless to say "How are you?" to anyone with 27 stitches in her stomach. "How do you feel?" while a bit more appropriate, was likely to elicit a lengthy and somewhat nauseatingly graphic reply.

"How are the meals?" I asked at last.

"Terrible. But everyone has to eat them eventually. On Monday they give you a broiled chicken back. If you don't eat it, the next day they chop it up with canned peas and make chicken salad. If you still won't eat, Mrs. Berger says that they puree it and inject it into your hip."

"Thanks for the flowers," she said, vaguely indicating a table full of vases. Since I had ordered them by phone I had no idea which ones were mine. I tried to determine which bunch looked most like $2.75. It certainly couldn't be the three dozen long-stemmed roses. I fervently hoped that mine wasn't the single lily in the water glass.

Just then the nurse announced that since it was time for dinner, I would have to leave. "Unless you'd like to stay," she said, waving a hypodermic needle. "We're having a lovely puree of chicken."

Girls' Best Friend, Good Investment

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married 28 years ago, he gave me the smallest diamond I had ever seen. I was glad to get any-sized diamond at the time, but as the years passed, my husband became more prosperous and I kept hoping he would replace it with a larger one. He never did.

On my 25th wedding anniversary I gave him a fine piece of jewelry which I saved for out of my household allowance. He gave me 25 roses!

Soon after, I lost the diamond out of my little ring. My husband promised to buy me another one, but he didn't. If we passed a jewelry store, I'd stop to look in the window, but my husband would walk away.

Last Christmas my husband put a tiny box under the tree. When I opened it I found my old ring with the tiny diamond replaced! I tried to put it on my finger, but I had gained some weight and it wouldn't fit. I put it back in the box and it hasn't been out since.

What do I do? Go to work and earn enough money to buy myself a nice diamond ring? Make my little ring larger and wear it?

My husband could well afford to buy me a bigger diamond and I feel so shabby and insecure in the presence of my friends who have such lovely jewelry.—Fifty.

DEAR FIFTY: Face it. Your husband is not likely to buy you a bigger diamond unless you ask him to. If it's that important to you and he can afford it, ask him. Besides, diamonds are not only a girl's best friend, they're also a good investment!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wed., April 12, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Know when to let go. Realize that, in actuality, you cannot own any individual. This lesson could be driven home. Cycle is high; thus, you will rebound from apparent setback. Make it easy on yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Many situations around you have "touch" of being unreal. What you depended upon is past may have to be discarded. Key is to be alert to new opportunities. Look beyond the obvious. Someone is giving you a subtle hint.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Trust hunch. Friends and others are enthusiastic but possibly misinformed. Know this and respond accordingly. Where money is concerned, pull in reins. Wait and observe. One in authority is confused.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nothing is apt to occur halfway. Know this and don't play games. Stakes are high—and for keeps. Maintain sense of balance. Avoid extremes. If you disagree with one in authority, do so politely. You will comprehend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid unnecessary travel. What you seek may be close at hand. Check details, apparent minor points. Long-range plays may have to be revised. One who seems positive may be bluffing. Know it and respond accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If careless, you lose. Question of money, possessions is apt to be paramount. Change of procedure is necessary. Make calls. Get necessary information. Be inquisitive. Don't take back seat to one with loud voice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relationship is tested. Be diplomatic. Bide for time. Play waiting game. Hold ground. Legal manoeuvre may resemble sleight-of-hand. Separate illusion from fact. Marriage, partnership—these now are accented.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Much that had appeared certain now is elusive. Get second wind. Be sure you are caught in labyrinth of confusion, possible deception. Key is to analyse. Persist in attempting to arrive at truth.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you become involved in dispute among friends, you could end up paying the freight. Fulfil your own responsibility. Don't volunteer to carry anyone else's burden. Message will become clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears a setback should not be taken too seriously. Family member will transform adversity into a "bonus." Be willing to let go of some aspects of past. House remodelling is in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Original purpose of mission may appear to fail. However, side effects are constructive. A new contract would blossom into meaningful relationship. Relatives are not easily pacified. Ride with tide.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid any tendency to be extravagant. Protect possessions. Don't give up something for nothing. Trust intuition about individual who sings sweet song of success. Ask for additional information.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you possess much intellectual curiosity. You are fond of travel and enjoy company of persons with artistic sense. You draw to you many who are talented, restless, creative and intent on "making a mark." This can be one of your most significant years, with September a highlight month.

Milk Potential Heart Hazard? Controversy Renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk maybe good for your bones but bad for your heart, a doctor suggested recently as an old argument flared anew.

Dr. Forrest H. Adams told the American Heart Association symposium that the butterfat content of whole milk may present a danger of heart disease to people who drink a lot of it.

"If we're going to continue to use milk, it should be skim milk," said Dr. Adams, a pediatrician.

Dr. David Boyd of Boston, president of the American College of Physicians, agreed with Dr. Adams that the widespread use of whole milk beyond infancy poses a threat.

But Dr. Michael DeBakey, the noted Texas heart surgeon, countered:

"The evidence is not clear that milk, for example, or foods that have high-fat content are causes of atherosclerosis."

That's the medical name for what happens when fatty deposits form sort of a sludge in the arteries. It's a leading cause of heart disease.

Dr. Adams did not say he thinks milk is a direct cause of heart disease, but said low-fat foods should be stressed instead.

"There should be created amongst children a greater consciousness of a good diet," Dr. Adams said.

"They should be offered, at home and in the school-lunch program, a greater availability of lean meats and dairy products and baked goods with reduced saturated fats."

Saturated fats are the kinds present in fatty meats, milk and other dairy products. Non-saturated fats are those in vegetable oils.

"The 'holy' value of milk should be de-emphasized, and its real value put into proper perspective," Dr. Adams said.

'Connection' Tops Academy Awards

Jane Fonda won the gold-plated statuette for best actress as the classy, cynical call-girl of Klute.

Johnson played the pool hall-movie-house-cafe proprietor and central citizen of a small, dusty Texas town. Miss Leachman portrayed the sex-starved, unfaithful wife of the high school football coach.

Named the best foreign-language film was Vittorio De Sica's The Garden of the Finzi Continis, a story of a rich Jewish family in wartime Italy.

The emotional peak for a finery-spangled audience of 2,900 in the Music Centre Pavilion came with the appearance of whitehaired Charlie Chaplin to receive an honorary Oscar and a standing, roaring ovation.

"Words are so futile, so feeble," he said in a halting, shallow voice after acknowledging the long ovation with waves, smiles, thrown kisses and slight bows.

"I can only say thank you for the honor of inviting me here. You're wonderful, sweet people."

Master of ceremonies Jack Lemmon handed him a Chaplinesque cane and bowler, the hat falling off his head as Chaplin did a comic gesture with it. The comedian's wife Oona and stars of the show gathered around him as the orchestra played a Chaplin song, Smile.

Academy President Daniel Taradash had introduced the longtime self-exile from Hollywood to receive, six days short of his 83rd birthday, the award for "the incalculable effect he has had in making motion pictures the art form of this century.

TALENT UNPARALLELED

"Humor and humanity are the elements of Chaplin's artistic conscience and his unparalleled talent as actor, writer, director, producer, composer and, to quote W. C. Fields, the greatest ballet dancer that ever lived.

Chaplin made more people laugh than anyone in history yet always, just beneath the hilarity, were the fears and sorrows of every man. . . ."

Chaplin appeared onstage after a showing of clips from his films—Chaplin in the Little Tramp sleeping in the lap of a ceremoniously unveiled statue, using the referee as his shield in a boxing match, eating his boiled shoe in The Gold Rush.

Among leading contenders for Oscars, Fiddler on the Roof won three—for cinematography, sound and scoring. Nicholas and Alexandra won for costume design, art direction and set decoration.

The five awards for The French Connection included two for Ernest Tidyman's adaptation and Jerry Greenberg's editing.

The other writing award went to Paddy Chayefsky for his original script of The Hospital.

The show was telecast to 39 countries including, by NBC estimate, 75 million U.S. viewers. Union difficulties that could have interfered with telecasting were averted in the last hours.

Winning his Oscar as the relentless narcotics detective in The French Connection, Hackman, 41, thanked director Friedkin, who "brought me through this when I wanted to quit."

Miss Fonda, 34, winning despite her controversial political views, said in accepting: "There's a great deal to say and I'm not going to say it tonight."

Chaplin Plaque Set in Sidewalk

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A bronze star in honor of Charles Chaplin was dedicated Monday on Hollywood Boulevard's "Walk of Fame," a stretch of cement sidewalk impressed with the plaques of show business notables.

The ceremony, not attended by Chaplin, ended a long controversy over whether the comedian's star should be kept from the tourist attraction.

A furore arose when the matter was first brought up in 1957 because of the reputed politics and morals of the famous film comedian.

It was not until Chaplin was invited to accept an honorary Oscar that the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the walk, took up the affair again and voted to install the star.

Susan Maree Chaplin, 12, a granddaughter of the comedian, unveiled the star in front of a restaurant. Several keystone cops were in attendance, including one of the originals, Eddie Leveque, 75.

Envoy Mugged

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A French delegate to a UN science meeting was mugged entering a building on New York's Madison Avenue, the French mission said Monday. Mission counsellor Guy Scalabre complained that "the minimum security missions are entitled to is not available in this city." Scalabre said the robbery Sunday of Prof. Pierre Auger was the sixth such incident involving members of the French mission in the last 10 months.

SUSAN, Age 17
Grade 11 Student
"I really like school now, and I read a lot. School used to be a real drag but one day my father said to take the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course and it's made such a difference, cause I like to read now and school is fun."

DAVID, Age 15
Grade 9 Student
"I like to read Science Fiction like 1984. I read it last night and I like to read about sports and I like to read about Scuba Diving and mysteries. I think I like to read practically everything since I took the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course."

FRASER, Age 15
Grade 9 Student
"I always read a lot, even when I was very young but I didn't really remember very much about what I read and I took the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course to see if it would help me and they taught me study techniques for school, they taught me how to remember things as I read them and they taught me how to read much more quickly so I read more now and really remember more. I enjoyed Reading Dynamics so much that although I took it when I was in Grade 8, I'm going to take it again this year with my lifetime membership."

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbours to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our father, MacKay Melkle. — Jean and Ken.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

AA Founder's Start Recalled

I was saddened to read, in that interesting journal Schizophrenics Anonymous, International, of the death of William G. Wilson, a retired Wall Street security analyst, who is better known to Americans as Bill W., the founder of Alcoholics Anonymous. He died in Miami, early in 1971, at the age of 78.

In the early 1930s in Akron, Ohio, he created Alcoholics Anonymous with the help of the late Dr. Robert Smith. I will never forget meeting Bill Wilson many years ago in Washington, D.C., and chatting a few minutes with him, after he had talked to more than one hundred doctors. He told us how, during the Depression, he was a salesman, and had gone to Akron, hoping to make a sale. Before that he had been used to drinking heavily.

When he was unable to make the sale, his first strong impulse was to head for the nearest bar. Fortunately, along the way, he came across a sick alcoholic lying on the sidewalk, and he immediately tried to get the man to a physician who could help him. After hunting for a while, he eventually found Dr. Smith, who was sympathetic because he, himself, had had troubles with alcohol. Bill and the doctor became friends. Because he was so anxious to help the drunk, he had failed to go on his "bender," as he had intended to do.

A fine feature about Alcoholics Anonymous is that members meet each week to discuss their common problem and to share experiences. If a former alcoholic suddenly gets an almost overwhelming desire to get drunk again, he can call a friend in AA. The friend will come and talk with the would-be drinker, and perhaps walk with him all over town, until he is tired out and willing to go home and sleep.

Bill's idea was that alcoholism is a sort of physical allergy coupled with a mental obsession and anxiety. Bill said that alcoholism is a disease of the body, the mind, and the spirit, incurable but arrestable.

I learned a great deal once from an alcoholic who, when I first started practice, was brought to me by his wife. After I had asked him a few questions, he said, "Hey, Doc, were you ever drunk?" And I had to admit I never had been, so he angrily said, "Then what the hell do you know about it?" and stalked out of my office. I am sure he was right. Without experience with alcoholism, I had little chance of helping him. Bill was so wise in seeing that the one person who is most likely to help an alcoholic stop drinking is a person who was once an alcoholic and managed to stop drinking.

My sympathy goes out to Mrs. Wilson — Lois — at the loss of her remarkable husband. She stood by him through his alcoholic days during the Depression, and she herself founded two groups — Alanon and Alateen, one for the wives and one for the children of alcoholics.

BREATHTAKINGLY BEAUTIFUL

by day and by night! Breathlessly quiet, in a setting of evergreen splendor yet a sweeping view and hardly a breeze; that's this nearly half acre property just outside the 4 mile circle. The residence, custom built with impeccably good taste in design and layout, artisan finished worthy of the site and design; it has a gracious entrance, wide and luxuriously carpeted. Along this hall to the right the master suite; but before your eyes is the beautiful living room with 28 feet of glass to the entrancing view. It's Cherry panelled with a floor-to-ceiling stone fireplace. There's 12 ft. of wall custom designed for books and show pieces. The lovely Tongue and Groove Cedar ceiling was hand rubbed to a mellow gleam. Lighting is two-way indirected behind the drape valance. A 6'6" built-in buffet features the dining area. Over 600 sq. ft. of sundeck extends across the view side and wraps around the kitchen. There's wrought iron railing and over-size glass doors giving access from Living rm., Kitchen and Master Bedroom. The Cherry panelled Master suite includes ige. 4-piece bathroom, over 9 ft. of vanity with huge folding mirror for grooming and soft colored fixtures; 2 separate closets and wall-to-wall carpeting. The Kitchen is superb with quality finish, hidden hardware, built-in dishwasher and a Cherry panelled breakfast area. Kitchen, all bathrooms and a Cherry panelled breakfast area. Kitchen, all bathrooms and utility have dropped ceilings with indirect lighting. The glb utility room is well designed with separate freezer room and separate Lavatory and access to the sundeck as well as tradesmens' entrance. The lower level has two lovely bedrooms, big 4-pce. bathroom and a beautiful family room with huge windows, sliding glass to the lawn, a bar with 220 wiring for summer cook-outs and another stone f.-to-c. fireplace. There's a workshop and excellent storage facilities and wide entrance foyer. In total there's 2720 sq. ft. of accommodation, every room with the fabulous view. Designed for minimum daily upkeep and maintenance, in every way a superb secluded residence in a fine location. Extensive paved driveway with extra parking and attached double carport. Price $58,000. A one of a kind home.

EXCEPTIONAL
NEW LISTING
$77,500

This is one of the most original and well designed homes that I have had the pleasure of offering you. It is built TOWARDS THE WATERFRONT and FOR THE WATERFRONT . . . a woodsy British Columbia dream house of outstanding quality. It was custom-built in 1970 with no expense spared in constructing a home that requires the MINIMAL OF MAINTENANCE, while allowing the outdoors, the sea, the Islands to be almost part of the indoor scene . . . a house that truly nestles into the landscape. There are 2600 sq. ft. on three levels — every foot designed for ease and comfort where the family can enjoy the best of two worlds — their boat moored in the bay (steps lead down to the beach) — school within walking distance — university near — downtown in 15 minutes.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Fake Prof. Held Job

BRANDON Man. (CP) — Brandon University says an associate professor on its staff for almost a year impersonated an American psychologist.

The university said in a statement "it has been confirmed to the satisfaction of the university's board of governors" that the man assumed the credentials of Dr. Martin John Bohn Jr., chief psychologist of the U.S. reformatory at Petersburg, Va.

The statement says these credentials were used last summer when the man, known here as Dr. Martin Joseph Bohn, negotiated his appointment with the university.

He was dismissed effective March 31 and has not been seen since April 2.

In a telephone interview with the Brandon Sun from Virginia, the real Dr. Bohn said:

The RCMP said the former professor and his wife are being sought for questioning. The university said a telegram was received from him April 3 from Des Plaines, Ill.

University President Dr. A. L. Dulmage said the man was engaged after an interview in Boston with Dr. E. J. Tyler, head of the psychology department.

HAD GOOD FILE

At that time he said he was in private practice at Worcester, Mass., and presented "an authentic file on Dr. Martin J. Bohn, Jr. which originated with the educational placement office at the University of Iowa."

Dr. Tyler telephoned a Worcester physician given as a refernce and received a favorable report.

Dr. Dulmage said the staff member came under criticism by students in the early part of the academic year and under more careful scrutiny by his colleagues.

During the first term his duties were confined to teaching. In the second term he was asked to join an inter-disciplinary research project but refused.

Last Friday, said Dr. Dulmage, Dr. Cliff Anderson of the psychology department was checking a card catalogue in the university library when he came across a book written by Dr. Bohn with American psychologist D. E. Super.

It was recalled that the staff member had said he was co-author with Dr. Super of a book to be published this year.

Dr. Anderson called Dr. Super who said that as far as he knew, Dr. Bohn was still working in Virginia.

"Other calls were made over the weekend, especially to the real Dr. Bohn, and it left us with no doubt that the man here was an imposter," said Dr. Dulmage.

Sands Expands Up Island

Acquisition of two up-Island undertaking establishments by Sands Mortuary Ltd. reinforces the Victoria company's claim as the largest family-owned funeral chain in Canada.

President Laverne M. Sands said the company has bought Duncan Funeral Chapel Ltd. in Duncan, and Ladysmith Funeral Chapel, in Ladysmith, giving it a total of six branches.

Sands marks its 60th anniversary this year, having been established at its original site at 1815 Quadra in 1912. The existing chapel at 1803 Quadra was built in 1933.

Branches in Colwood and Sidney were added, and the Nanaimo operation was taken over a year ago.

Sands said that with a trend toward national funeral homes and outside ownership, his firm was Canada's largest independent, family-run undertaking firm without the two newest operations.

The expansion gives Sands a total of 27 vehicles and flexibility between branches.

PROXY CELEBRATION

Victorians who have emigrated from Preston, Lancashire, England, will have an opportunity to help celebrate by proxy a tradition of that city which goes back to the reign of Henry II in 1179, by signing a scroll which will be displayed at city hall from May 2 to May 8.

Once every 20 years Preston celebrates her Guild Merchant, a privilege granted in the 12th century and confirmed by 12 successive British monarchs.

The royal charters which spell out the privileges conferred by the holding of a Guild Merchant began with Henry II, who granted the first one for 100 marks (about $8,400-by today's standard).

It gave the town's householders "freedom"; they were under the king's special protection, could elect the equivalent of a town council, administer their own justice and make their own laws for the government of the town and the regulation of its trade.

They were allowed to operate a closed shop — no one could establish a business in the town without the consent of the burgesses. Yet the burgesses were free to trade throughout the land, did not have to pay tolls to cross bridges or pay what was in those days a sort of purchase tax on various things like cloth which they offered for sale.

At the most recent celebration of the Guild Merchant the town's population of 100,000 swelled by half a million people who had connections with the Prestonian tradition.

Deposit Refund Sought By Firm

The Victoria firm of Diamond Devlopments Ltd. began a suit Monday in B.C. Supreme Court to try to recover a $25,000 deposit from Crown Assets Disposal Corporaiton.

The deposit was paid in early 1970 when the company wanted to buy the 3.77 acre plot in Victoria West known as the Barnard waterfront estate.

The land is now being bought by the city of Victoria for development as a park.

Arguments before Chief Justice J. O. Wilson centre on whether a firm agreement was reached on sale of the land at an earlier agreed-to price of $253,205.

Diamond Developments counsel Cecil Branson held that since there was never a real agreement for sale, the company is entitled to retrieve its $25,000 deposit.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Gino Vogrig, 27, of Gordon Street, was fined $200 for obstructing a police officer, after he started a fight with policemen in the station in connection with the arrest of a friend on another matter April 8.

He pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to respond to an appearance notice and was remanded to Thursday for trial.

Un-Brotherly Tactics Eyed

TRAIL (CP) — Representatives of two teacher groups Monday denied any "official move" to unseat Education Minister Donald Brothers as Rossland-Trail MLA.

Dave Mitchell, Trail district teachers association president, said there is no official plan to focus a provice-wide campaign against Brothers, but the situation is "under close scrutiny."

"It would give us great pleasure to unseat Brothers, not on a personal basis, but on the policies he represents," Mitchell said.

Crackdown On Mercury

OTTAWA (CP) — New regulations aimed at controlling the discharge of mercury into fish-inhabited waters were announced today by Environment Canada.

The regulations will affect 14 plants which use mercury in producing caustic soda and chlorine.

Environment Canada said the regulations, issued under the Fisheries Act, will reduce the emissions of mercury in liquid effluents by 98 per cent.

The new regulations measure the pollutant "in pounds per ton of product and not in degrees of concentration as in the past" and thus a plant won't be able to comply simply by diluting its effluent with water, Environment Canada said.

Come home in a Three Point Datsun
IT'S ALL YOU REALLY NEED!

1200 2-DOOR SEDAN
The lowest-priced Datsun proves the adage: good things come in small packages. Things like economy, utility, safety. Everything for great driving.

Whopping stopping power
Ask any race driver—nothing stops like disc brakes. As a standard safety item Datsun has 'em up front, where most of the braking action is. Simple, efficient pad pressure on the discs resists heat-fade on repeated stops — "squee-gees" off dampness, slush, grime to call a straighter, surer halt in wet or dry. Readily removable pads last long, change in minutes. Matched with twin-shoe rear drums, Datsun's discs are one of its most important safety features.

Rigid weight-watcher
Small cars make lightness a virtue and rigidity a must. Unitized body construction ensures both. We weld Datsun bodies into a one-piece, high tensile capsule. Weight saving is combined with solid protection, maximum space utilization. Structurally secure under intensive crash testing, it's rattle-free after years of driving. No wonder all the great cars are made this way.

Off to a great start
In summer or in winter temperatures a new automatic choke, along with our high-powered starter motor and big 60-ampere hour battery, help fire up your Datsun right now. No matter what the weather, the advanced fuel system resists vapor-lock, too.

Poised all ways
Bumps, pot-holes, ruts — your 1200's suspension tames them all. Independent front struts and semi-elliptic rear leaf springs track straight and smooth. It's the ideal combination for cars this weight and size. The inherent stability makes for safe traveling, plus a sporty kind of handling that puts Datsun at the head of its class. One more bonus — an incredibly tight 26.8 foot turning circle, curb to curb.

More on Hydrangeas And What to Do

Six species of hydrangeas, other than H. macrophylla var. hortensis dealt with Monday, are seen in parks and gardens locally; these are H. paniculata grandiflora (Pee-Gee), H. petiolaris (the climbing hydrangea), H. quercifolia (Oak-leaf-hydrangea), H. serrata (toothed), H. arborescens and H. Sargentiana.

The pruning of these is quite distinct from the ball-headed pink and blue hortensis varieties, and their general culture presents no difficulties once the gardener realizes the differences between the species.

Hydrangea arborescens is tree-like in its native northeast Atlantic states, so is confidently grown in our Pacific Coast gardens. But we find that the best flowers are produced when this shrub is pruned each April down to almost ground level, leaving two growth buds on each stem either on side branches or on those coming direct from soil level.

Three to four feet of growth will be made before flowering time in July when we really appreciate the pure white flat mounds of Hills-of-Snow blooms measuring five to eight inches across.

Almost the same pruning is used on H. paniculata to produce the huge cone-shaped creamy white flower heads. This shrub may be pruned to about three feet from the ground every April if the flowers are wanted at five or six feet as a property line shrub; or down to a foot if a lower border shrub is needed. Blooms come on these pruned shrubs in late August and remain until October.

Hydrangea quercifolia is also a native North American, only a little less hardy than H. paniculata. With the same pruning as for H. arborescens, the oak leaved foliage assumes gorgeous fall coloring, greatly enhanced by its rough textured surface. The conical flower heads resemble those of the Pee-Gee and can be a foot long.

Less seldom seen but of good garden value, is H. Serrata, having puckered greenish-blue foliage, coarsely toothed. To get large flat heads of blue fertile flowers surrounded by a ring of pink sterile flowers, this too must be pruned in April down to two growth buds above ground level. Unpruned, the flowers are nothing but stunted replicas of hydrangea blooms, but good flowers in late July at a height of four feet are rewarding for both color and form.

All these hydrangeas need a moisture-holding soil since they depend on ample food supplies during summer to produce the abundant foliage and enormous heads of bloom. Sunlight is needed, too.

Each spring, add a surface mulch of two inches of compost, old manure, seaweed or leafmould over the root area around each shrub.

This prevents frequent drying out of the soil at root level, if the occasional watering is thorough.

Most unusual of the hydrangeas is probably H. petiolaris, the one which climbs 15 or 20 feet by clinging to rock or walls like ivy, even on a north exposure. Flat creamy flower heads in early June are a foot across. The climber needs no pruning, except of unwanted growths, nor does it seem to need constantly damp soil.

Seen only in sheltered, woodland gardens is our sixth species, H. Sargantiana, a six foot shrub with large velvety leaves and flat heads of pale blue flowers. This hydrangea is only pruned to cut away any winter damaged wood.

These are only six of the dozen hydranges species listed. It pays to know about them, for they are all lovely, some spectacular.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In the Second Moroccan International Bridge Festival, held in October, 1971, the winners of the Open Pair Championship were Benito Garozzo and Walter Avarelli. These two gentlemen were members of the famous Italian Blue Team, which retired as a unit in 1969 after having won the World Championship 13 times.

Today's deal was instrumental in helping them win the open pair event. Garozzo was in the West seat, and Avarelli was sitting East.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH
♠ 6 4
♡ 8 5
◇ A K Q 10 8 7 4

WEST

♡ Q 10 9 3 2
◇ J 6 3

SOUTH
♠ A 8 7 5 3
♡ A K 6 4
♣ K Q J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

In explanation of South's bidding, it should be stated that North-South were using a "canape" system, in which opener bids his shorter suit first, and then bids his longer suit on the next round.

Despite the fact that clubs was the only unbid suit, Garozzo elected not to open his fourth-highest club. Had he made this lead, South would have had a smooth and enjoyable trip. He would have won this trick with the board's nine-spot, after which he would have cashed seven diamond tricks (thanks to the fall of the diamond jack). He would then have ended up making 12 tricks, his only loser being a club to West's ace.

Although South was known to have at least five spades for his "canape" bidding, Garozzo selected the spade queen as his opening lead. Avarelli "unblocked" on this lead by putting up his king, and South's ace captured the trick.

Quick as a flash (so I have been told), South led his seven of clubs as trick two. And just as quickly (so I have been told), Garozzo took the seven with his ace. Had he not taken his ace, dummy's nine would have won the trick. Declarer would then have had seven cashable diamond tricks.

Garozzo next led the heart jack, which was taken by South's ace. As can be observed, declarer, with the K-Q-J of clubs remaining in his hand, was now unable to reach the board. And so dummy's seven diamonds languished on the table for the duration of the deal.

It was play such as this that enabled Garozzo and Avarelli to record a 74½ per cent score in this event. This is the highest score ever posted in an international open pair championship. This score is especially amazing when it is realized that the field included most of Europe's top-ranking players.

Skiers' Bodies Found

ALTA LAKE (CP) — Searchers Monday located the bodies of four Vancouver-area skiers buried under a snow slide at Whistler Mountain, 50 miles northwest of Vancouver.

An RCMP spokesman said the bodies of the four were found late in the afternoon in the back bowl area of the popular ski resort. The back bowl area was closed and posted with avalanche signs.

Peter Norman Howard, 32, his 29-year-old wife Heather, David Alex McPhedron, 30, and Gerald Keith Schlotzhaur, 28, had left the lodge Saturday and the search began Saturday night after they failed to return.

Expert skiers had combed the mountain for three days before locating the bodies.

Back On Job

MACKENZIE (CP) — About 250 members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada were back on the job Monday following a four-day walkout to protest wages and suspension of a shop steward at a B.C. Forest Products mill here.

A PPWC spokesman said negotiations for pay scales for about 20 newly-created jobs in the stud mill were under way. He said the union is also trying to clear the record of the steward the PPWC claims was unjustly suspended last week.

Travel Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty University of B.C. researchers are visiting homes in what they say is the widest survey of transportation ever conducted in Greater Vancouver.

Members of 7,000 households are being asked how, why and when they travel in the region, where they go and what they do when they get there. The seven-week survey ends May 21, and data gathered will be used in future transport planning.

Aldermanic Raise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Earle Adams, the chairman of Vancouver city council's finance committee said Monday he will recommend next week that council members get a raise of about six per cent.

Alderman Adams wants aldermanic salaries raised to $6,720 a year from $6,360 and the mayor's salary raised to $22,400 annually from $21,200. Council salaries were raised six per cent last year.

Aged Seek Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the Pensioners for Action Now campaign says that if pensioners don't receive relief immediately, it may be too late for many of them.

Tom Alsbury told a meeting of the federal Liberal Caucus of British Columbia Monday that his organization will urge pensioners to vote only for candidates who pledge to support a basic pension of $150 a month during the first session of the new parliament.

Prison Training

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial court judge Les Bewley suggested Monday that parole officers spend at least two years working with policemen or prison guards to supplement their academic background.

Judge Bewley said it was most important that the parole board not interfere with the judicial function, including that of sentencing. Working with the policemen or prison guards would make parole officers more aware of law enforcement problems.

Freight Derailed

HOPE (CP) — Two persons were injured, one of them critically, after a Canadian National Railways freight train they were riding was derailed late Monday night 14 miles west of here in the Fraser Canyon.

The person who was critically injured was transferred to Chilliwack general hospital from hospital in Hope. The other injured person remained in hospital at Hope. Neither victim was indentified. Police said the two were apparently transients who had stolen a ride on the freight train.

Drastic Drink Changes Seen

REGINA (CP) — Liquor regulations have undergone dramatic changes in Saskatchewan over the last century but none have been more extensive than those now being proposed by a special legislative committee.

The committee, which conducted a number of public meetings last year, has tabled an interim report in the legislature.

One of its unanimous recommendations—lowering the legal drinking age to 18 from 19 already has been passed by the legislature but the others are expected to be delayed until public reaction has been assessed.

Twelve recommendations are contained in the report. Of major impact are those calling for extended drinking hours in cocktail lounges and beverage rooms, longer hours for liquor stores, Sunday drinking with meals, and sale of liquor in beverage rooms.

Current laws permit beverage rooms to open from 11 a.m. to midnight with the last serving at 11:30 p.m. Cocktail lounges with entertainment can stay open until 1:30 a.m. with the last serving at 1 a.m.

The committee recommends the outlets open at 9:30 a.m. and close at 1:30 a.m. with 30 minutes more to allow patrons to finish their drinks.

WANTS HOURS CHANGED

Government liquor stores now operate on staggered hours, opening at 11 a.m. with the latest closing time 10 p.m. The committee would like these stores to remain open until 2 a.m.

Another recommendation, aimed at tourists, would allow operators of hunting and fishing camps and other remote tourist facilities to serve alcohol with meals.

While the legal drinking age is to be lowered, the committee wants some degree of protection to operators of liquor outlets against youths lying about their ages.

It recommends that identification cards be issued on a voluntary basis. Anyone of questionable age not having such a card would be asked to leave. Stiffer penalties were recommended for proprietors serving liquor to the underage.

The legislature recently passed a motion to concur in the committee report although a number of speakers on both sides of the house voiced reservations on certain recommendations.

Premier Allan Blakeney said he suspects most or all of the recommendations eventually will find their way into law but the timing is anybody's guess.

TURNING POINT

The turning point in Saskatchewan liquor regulations came in 195 with the establishment of the Liquor Licensing Act and the Liquor Licensing Commission.

Local option votes were allowed in 1959 on five types of liquor outlets—restaurants, beverage rooms, dining rooms, cocktail rooms and clubs.

The first such vote was taken June 30, 1959, in six areas and all of them approved all five types of outlets.

Self-serve liquor stores were established in 1963, breweries were allowed to place public service advertising in newspaper in 1964, waitresses were permitted in hotel beverage rooms in 1966 and 19-year-olds were allowed into drinking outlets in 1970.

Gov't Advances Urged For Jobless Insurance

WINNIPEG (CP) — A conference on problems of the unemployed was told Monday the Manitoba government should set up a fund to handle cash advances to people on their unemployment insurance cheques or income tax refunds.

The suggestion was made by Ron Meyers, a Winnipeg lawyer, who said such a scheme could wipe out private businesses that now make advance purchases of the prospective cheques at a discount, giving the client immediate cash.

"Let people assign their cheques to the province," said Meyers, a member of a discussion panel. "The province wouldn't be losing any money." People needing money would not have to pay discounts when dealing with a government agency.

Winnipeg councillor Joseph Zuken said he welcomed the promise of a new federal legislation to halt discounting of the cheques, but he criticized the delay in taking action. "This has been brewing for a year."

Two people, speaking to an audience of about 100, told of long delays in receiving unemployment insurance payments, prompting Coun. Zuken to remark:

French Stressed

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan's association of French school trustees has called on the province to hire bilingual superintendents for areas in which there are designated French-language schools.

About 60 trustees approved a motion urging the action when told at their annual convention that there now are no bilingual superintendents in the province.

Lights Criticized

EDMONTON (CP) — Recessed tail lights in vehicles are dangerous and should be banned, according to the Alberta Motor Association.

Recessed tail lights should be banned in Alberta because during the winter they become filled with snow, making them invisible to other drivers, the association said.

Budget Queried

EDMONTON (CP) — The University of Calgary students' union Monday asked Advanced Education Minister James Foster to investigate the university administration's handling of the budget.

The students said the university was "ill-prepared to adjust" to a board of governors suggestion that $300,000 be switched to graduate teaching assistant and sessional instructor hiring from salary increases and contingency funds.

NFU Still Worried

EDMONTON (CP) — A National Farmers' Union spokesman said Monday a statement by Hugh Horner, Alberta agriculture minister, that corporations will be discouraged from actual farm production, failed to alleviate fears often expressed by the NFU.

Bill Dascavich said in a prepared statement these fears include the threat of vertical integration, the corporate takeover of family farms, the demise of rural communities and the ultimate rationalization of production and monopoly of food prices.

Park Preference

EDMONTON (CP) — Banff and Jasper residents would probably oppose full autonomy for their townsites, says chairman Wally Dowhaniuk of the Banff Advisory Council.

He said he was glad the provincial government is taking the initiative in the towns' quest for autonomy, but expects residents to oppose the recommendation of a report tabled in the Alberta legislature that the towns be removed from the parks.

North Road Backed

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta is interested in an all-weather road to the Arctic, Premier Peter Lougheed said in the legislature Monday.

Lougheed said Prime Minister Trudeau's statement during the weekend that such a road probably will be built within the next 10 years is a matter he wants to discuss with the prime minister and he will do so "within a few days."

Try, Try Again

CALGARY (CP) — A third try at developing a coho salmon fishery at Cold Lake, Alta., will be made this week, director Alex Sinclair of the provincial fish hatchery said Monday.

About 100,000 fingerlings will be trucked to the lake, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton, and dumped into a holding pond on the Medley River which flows into Cold Lake.

Unions Strike In Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — A province-wide strike by 210,000 public service employees caused widespread disruption today of schooling and hospital services and threw public utility workers, some of whom are affected by restraining court injunctions, into confusion.

The walkout, second general public service strike in two weeks, disrupted hospital care for thousands of Quebecers, forced hundreds of schools to close, brought civil service functions to a standstill and closed provincially-run liquor stores.

It also disrupted court proceedings as provincially-employed workers set up pickets outside courthouses.

In one case, Sessions Court Judge Andre Fabien held an open air court session outside Montreal's city hall when pickets blocked access to regular court rooms.

Union leaders said today's strike will be "prolonged" beyond 24 hours. It was called because of deadlocked contract negotiations with the provincial government.

In Quebec City, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said the government is considering seeking contempt citations against unions which do not respect Superior Court injunctions ordering workers providing essential services to stay on the job during the strike.

Just Wonderful to Be Alive!

It was a crayon illustrated poem called Thank You For Life that she wrote herself. It said:

"Thank you Lord for letting me be alive today.
"I like to try to help in many ways,
"Thank you for my family,
"We do live quite happily,
"We always play together,
"Oh! Thank you for the sunshine weather,
"It's just wonderful to be alive!"

Tami's father, Gary, a lieutenant with the suburban Carmichael fire department, said he and his wife found the poem the day after his little girl died last Thursday of leukemia.

"My wife looked in a folder, and there was this poem right on top. We've never seen it before. I wonder if she planned it that way."

Her father said he found out in December, 1970, that Tami had the deadly disease.

"We never told her that she had leukemia because we always hoped she'd be home well again," Hogan said. "We just told her it was an infection."

Tami's teacher, Sister Mary Carton of Our Lady of the Assumption school, said the little girl knew something was wrong.

"She said once she wished she could have just one day when she didn't feel sick."

Soldiers Die For Hooligans

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Two British soldiers trying to herd rock-throwing youngsters away from a suspected bomb site were killed Monday night when the explosives went off, the army said. The Irish Republican Army promptly claimed responsibility for the killings.

Right-wing Protestants, angered by the soldiers' deaths, criticized British government efforts to conciliate Roman Catholics and demanded the army invade areas held by the outlawed IRA.

The victims of Monday night's Londonderry blast were Lance Bombardier Eric Blackburn, 24, and Bombardier Brian Thomasson, 21, commander and secondin command of a patrol rushed to the bowling green pavilion in the Roman Catholic Rosemount district after an anonymous telephone called warned that a bomb had been planted there.

The patrol found the bomb and, while waiting for explosvies experts to arrive, dispersed gans of rock-throwing "young hooligans," and army spokesman said.

"They got rid of the youths once and moved behind safe cover," the army spokesman said. "But the youths started throwing rocks again. Blackburn and Thomasson moved out into the open to warn them off. The blast caught them before they could regain cover. They gave their lives saving those young hooligans."

B.C. GOV'T BUYS TIME TO EXPLAIN POLICIES

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

The provincial government announced today it has bought advertising time on all B.C. radio stations so cabinet ministers can explain "government policies" over the air for the next four months.

The time will be paid for with taxpayers' money and used to broadcast a series of five one-minute radio spots every Saturday and Sunday to be called Ask Your Provincial Government. The move was announced in a written press release distributed by the provincial secretary's department.

Former radio man Ray Orchard, who now works in this department, said today he was told three weeks ago by deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace to begin working out a format for the program.

Orchard said the idea was developed by Victoria radio station president Clare Copeland in co-operation with the government.

He said Copeland wanted to get some supplementary weekend material to fill in weekend radio broadcasts from B.C. Radio News, a CFAX-owned political news service.

Copeland was in Toronto today, unavailable for comment, but CFAX vice-president Keith Dagg said all provincial radio stations are receiving today a sample of the kind of program together with promotional tapes.

Each station will buy the program individually. Dagg said he saw no conflict of interest in running prepackaged government advertising. He said Copeland and New Westminster radio station CKNW manager Mel Cooper worked out production details with the government.

Orchard was unable to place a cost estimate on the program, but Dagg said C-FAX's rate for one minute is $21. Over a four-month period, this means the program will cost provincial taxpayers an estimated $128,600.

B.C. Opposition leader Dave Barrett and Liberal leader Pat McGeer today demanded the government make equal time available to all opposition parties at public expense as long as the program is running.

Barrett said the Ask Your Provincial Government Show is an "unbelievable use of public funds for Social Credit propaganda."

"This government is so arrogant that new people are turning to the NDP every day."

He said the government should set up a program for the opposition on the same basis it is doing for itself.

"A democracy cannot be run by one man alone. Unless there is similar access to the information lines to the opposition, then the premier is out to prove the charge that he's a dictator."

McGeer also demanded

NEWS BRIEFS

Case Concluded

CALGARY (CP) — The crown, with only 1½ hours testimony, today concluded its case against Paul Joseph Clai who has been charged with the hijacking of an Air Canada jetliner. (Earlier story Page 12.)

Deal Made

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Anette Gilly, accused in the Yablonski family slayings, pleaded guilty today to three counts of murder and one count of conspiracy in exchange for a prosecution promise not to seek the death penalty.

Hunt Pressed

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — The Argentine government pressed large-scale manhunts today for the leftist terrorists who killed a kidnapped Italian industrialist and an army general. President Alejandro Lanusse said the slayings would not change his decision to hold elections next March to return the country to civilian control.

Gallagher Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Cornelius Gallagher (Dem.—N.J.) was charged with evading more than $100,000 in income taxes, perjury and conspiracy, by a federal grand jury, the United States justice department announced today.

Hijack Blocked

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Police said a man attempted to hijack Continental Airlines' flight 731 at the Portland International Airport today but was quickly taken into custody by FBI agents.

LABOR CRISIS

LONDON (CP) — Lord Chalfont said today he is quitting his post in the opposition Labor party, joining three other top members who resigned in protest of Harold Wilson's European Common Market policies. It was the worst crisis to hit the party in 20 years. Earlier story on Page 12.

Energy Crisis 'Here Now'

Times News Services

The United States and Canada are facing an immediate "energy crisis" that is expected to worsen over the next decade in a string of power blackouts and fuel shortages, according to business and political leaders in both nations.

In Washington, U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told a congressional committee Monday that, while the public uses far more fuel and electrical energy than ever before, production in these fields is badly lagging.

Forty to 50 new electrical power plants, due to begin operations this summer, probably won't because of environmental, technical, construction and licensing problems, Morton said.

Another witness, U.S. Undersecratary of State John Irwin said it may be as early as 1980 — only eight years away — that the United States will need to import half of the oil it will consume. About one-third of the total consumed would have to come from the Middle East, he said, adding that even new discoveried of oil in Alaska will not meet the demand.

Committee Chairman Wayne Aspinall said the hearings were called to spotlight for the American people the imminent energy crisis. "The problem," he said, "is that Americans are beginning to consume more energy than they produce. We are energy gluttons."

Also in Washington, a separate senate subcommittee hearing was told Monday that the Pacific northwest can expect electrical power shortages soon.

H. R. Richmond, administrator of the Bonneville power administration said "Total peak deficits are forecast in five of the next six years and firm peak deficits are forecast in four of the next six years.

In a related move in Seattle Monday, city council refused to reconsider its approval of plans by the Seattle City Light company to raise the Ross Dam on the Skagit River. The dam will flood some 5,200 acres in the Skagit Valley and has been opposed by conservationists.

But council feels the dam is vital to future power needs in the Seattle area.

In Toronto, an oil company executive also forecast an "energy crunch" in Canada within the next decade.

Z. P. Pokrupa, consultant economist with Shell Canada Ltd. in Toronto, said Canada's "period of cheap energy is over, and we must face the fact that the cost of producing energy is definitely on the increase throughout the world."

Nuclear plants "will eventually provide almost unlimited energy," but this is in the future, Pokrupa said.

He said coal, natural gas and oil will be used in large quantities until nuclear power systems are perfected, and the cost for these resources will climb with increased demand.

Provincial Jobless Ranks Rise

Times News Services

Unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 8.6 per cent — 82,000 persons — during the month of March, Statistics Canada reported today.

In February, unemployment in B.C. stood at 7.6 per cent, or 70,000 persons. In March of last year, 8.3 per cent of the work force was unemployed.

The B.C. figures were unusual because unemployment generally drops in March and secondly because unemployment did show a slight decline for March everywhere in Canada except B.C. and the Atlantic provinces.

Across the nation, jobless figures showed approximately 642-000 people out of work. This was an increase from 627,000 in Feburary, but represented an improvement over the 650,000 unemployed in March, 1971.

RATE UP

Translated into percentages, the national unemployment rate now stands at 7.4 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent in February, but below last year's March figure of 7.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the usual March trend downward had been countered by an unusual influx of new job seekers in the over-all labor force across Canada this month, up 108,000 to almost 8.96 million. The biggest increase— 46,000 — was among younger workers, up to age 24.

The Atlantic provinces remained hardest-hit by unemployment with a March rate of 12.1 per cent, an increase both over February's 11.1 per cent and last March's 10.9 per cent. There are now 80,000 people without jobs in the Maritimes.

QUEBEC BETTER

The Quebec rate declined last month to 9.3 per cent of the labor force from 9.5 in February and 10.1 a year ago. Ontario's rate eased down to 5.6 last month from 5.7 in February and 6.1 a year ago. The Prairie rate declined to 5.4 from 5.6 in February and 5.9 a year ago.

Across the country the rate

CHARGES DROPPED AGAINST CUBANS

MONTREAL (CP) — All charges were dropped today against six Cubans arrested a week ago when a bomb shattered offices of the Cuban trade commission in Montreal.

The Cubans, employees of the trade commission, were charged after interfering with police investigations of the April 4 blast that resulted in the death of a Cuban guard.

A Cuban claim that the six nationals were entitled to diplomatic immunity resulted in some temporary confusion involving Montreal police, the Quebec justice department and the federal external affairs department.

The six were charted with obstructing police. Three also were charged with illegal possession of firearms.

In municipal court today, Judge Paul Champagne was asked to drop all charges at the request of the external affairs department and Quebec justice department.

B-52 Raids Upset China

Times News Service

PEKING — The Chinese leadership is believed to be extremely displeased over the new U.S. air and naval build-up in the Indochina war theatre and is concerned by the use of B-52 bombers deep inside North Vietnam, diplomats said today.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is thought to have received assuranced from President Nixon during his visit to China in February that the U.S. was winding down its involvement in Vietnam.

U.S. statements that the escalated air and naval action is to protect withdrawing American troops are regarded in Peking as an extremely threadbare argument, particularly in relation to strikes by the giant eight-engined bombers near the North Vietnamese city of Vinh, 170 miles south of Hanoi.

Meanwhile, fresh North Vietnamese troops moving in from the A Shau Valley have launched five assaults on fire base Bastogne 10 miles southwest of Hue in a threat to the city and the northernmost American base in South Vietnam, field dispatches said today.

The five attacks carried out under heavy mortar fire were repulsed with the loss of 126 Communists left hanging on the barbed wire defenses. But the United States rushed 400 American combat troops and artillery battery to Phu Cat, 10 miles east of Bastogne, the reports said.

In Chon Thanh Maj.-Gen. James Hollingsworth said today the Communist troops who struck north of Saigon are on the run and his objective is to kill them before they flee to Cambodia.

He conceded, however, that this may be impossible because it is like hunting "mice in a haystack."

The broad-shouldered general in crisp green fatigues said the South Vietnamese troops are fighting "magnificently — their morale is high and they're doing a tremendous job."

Iran Quake Toll Rises

Times News Services

TEHERAN — Army rescue teams worked around the clock today, digging victims of Monday's devastating earthquake from the rubble of their homes as the estimated death toll climbed toward 5,000.

Further minor tremors — an average of one every 90 seconds — hampered the rescuers with threats of fresh landslides throughout southern Iran.

The Pars news agency of Iran reported that 963 persons were killed in the town of Qeer and that some 4,000 others lost their lives in 44 other villages levelled by the quake.

The Geophysics Institute at Shiraz University reported more than 1,000 tremors had hit the quake region since the first devastating shock Monday.

It will be a number of days before the final toll is known, relief officials said.

The repeated earth shocks caused panic among survivors fleeing demolished villages. Most of them pitched tents on surrounding plains scarred by wide fissures.

15-Mill Tax Hike If Out Of Current Revenue, Says City

WAC Offers $2.5M for Centre

Bennett said he wants the long-proposed centre built "forthwith" and "without debt" to create jobs and provide the Victoria area with a necessary facility.

He said the province will pay one-third of the costs of construction up to a maximum of $2.5 million if the city puts up one-third of the cost plus the land and private enterprise and "individuals" put up the remaining one-third.

Bennett said the benefit to the tourist trade of a convention centre is reason for requiring a substantial cost-share by private enterprise.

Mayor Peter Pollen and convention centre-co-ordinator Ald. Clyde Savage were out of town and unavailable for comment.

City officials pointed out, however, that $2.5 million out of current revenue would mean a 15-mill increase in taxes, or a jump of about 20 per cent.

The city is expected to reveal its budget for the coming year shortly and an increase of about two mills is expected.

The city has been prepared to sell or lease the Crystal Garden site when the civic centre has been planned. The site has been valued up to $750,000. Frampton said the city could easily sell the Crystal site for that amount.

In a convention centre worth about $2 million, he said, the city would probably be happy to contribute its third in the form of the land.

Bennett said then that the city could finance its share of the centre over a long period, but that the debt could not be charged against the centre's operation.

He also said he would consider a federal contribution as part of the municipality's one-third share.

Asked if he was precluding cultural facilities for the centre, Bennett replied: "I don't want to be narrow on that point of view," but made it clear the cultural uses would be in addition to the basic tourist facility.

If cultural facilities could be included in the $7.5 million total cost, he would go along with it.

Before Bennett clarified his statement on how the city could finance its share of the centre, acting mayor Ald. Percy Frampton, called the Bennett offer "impossible."

"I would not even attempt to ask the taxpayer for the money," Frampton said, and said he would oppose anyone who did.

"It's just out of the question."

In his original announcement, Bennett made clear the city's $2.5 million share wouldn't include the value of the land, which he said he understands is already available for a convention centre.

The premier said he wanted to encourage Victoria to move ahead with the project "forthwith" and described his cost-sharing offer as a continuation of the government's efforts to create jobs.

Bennett said the centre should be built without debt, which would require the city's share to be paid out of current revenues.

The premier made the announcement in a telephone call to the legislative press gallery, saying it is the government's opinion that a "convention centre and auditorium" should be built now.

A spokesman for a local group pushing for establishment of a combined cultural-convention centre said today Bennett's statement can only be interpreted to mean that the building the province is offering to finance would indeed be a combined structure.

"I'm sure Premier Bennett used the term 'convention centre' in the context of a combination of cultural and civic facilities," Allan Purdy, chairman of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation, said.

He said if Bennett meant $2.5 million to represent one-third of the total cost, the structure would cost $7.5 million. "That would be the largest convention centre in North America, and I don't think that's what he meant," Purdy said.

He said Bennett is "obviously endorsing the proposal of the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation because his thinking of the economics of the thing is very much in line with ours."

Nobody's Courting The Battered Lady

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The 8,500-ton vessel grounded on the reefs of Austin Island in Barkley Sound March 14, en route from Japan to Vancouver with a cargo of 300 cars.

One indication is that the holed freighter is now for sale on an "as is where is" basis for scrap. Another is she may be blown up.

Rough weather the week after the grounding hampered efforts to corral the leaking fuel oil and salvage cars undamaged by seawater.

Since then there have been reports people have visited the wreck in a variety of boats and picked it clean.

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services for the federal transport department, said from Vancouver today the department has no plans at the moment to move the vessel.

But a recommendation has gone forward to Ottawa that it be blown up with a series of small explosions.

If this was done, it would await favorable weather conditions so the "pockets" of oil left in the ship would be carried to sea, said Buchanan.

Sinking the wreck would remove it as an eyesore and prevent anyone scavenging aboard it from hurting themselves, he added.

Buchanan said it is not unusual in such cases for the owners to turn the wreck over to the underwriters and the underwriters refuse to accept responsibility for it.

Asked what equipment he now has on hand for the job, he said there is a heavy duty slick licker stationed at Victoria and light duty ones at Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

His department now has 1,600 feet of Bennet boom, a heavy duty boom used to hold the oil spreading from the Vanlene.

There is as well a "sea truck," a barge about 30 feet by nine feet capable of speeds to 15 knots, twice the speed of the average barge. It will be used to carry needed equipment or a slick licker unit, which uses a conveyor belt to lift oil from the surface.

DRIVER KILLED

A Central Saanich man was killed when the car he was driving flipped into the ditch on the Shawnigan Lake-Mill Bay Road at 11:15 p.m. Monday.

Roderick Allen Clifford, 21, of Stelly's Cross Road, was killed instantly. A woman passenger, Cathy Harvey of Campbell River, was uninjured.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said a coroners' inquiry would be held.

Colwood Families Fight Pollution, Bureaucracies

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

"It's been a hell of a winter," said Mrs. W. C. Strand, 520 Latoria, in Colwood as she recounted the woes her family has suffered since they move out last April to experience the joys of country living.

But the Strand family has not been alone in their suffering. Their neighbors, the Thomas Crowthers, 3552 Wishart, have had essentially the same problems and grief.

Both families feel their troubles have something to do with the construction of a subdivision above them, which began after they moved in.

Drainage is coming down through ditches from the subdivision, and both families are worried that the water is polluted from the septic tanks and is getting into their wells, from which they drink.

FAMILIES SICK

Most members of both families have been sick for most of the winter. Mrs. Strand's four children have been suffering ear infections, two of Mrs. Crowther's children have had ear infections, and one, a 2½-year-old boy, was again this week, in an oxygen tent.

Mrs. Strand has had an ear infection, and now has bronchitis. Mrs. Crother has been sick the last month with an ear infection. Her third child, a month-old infant, is also sick. Both husbands have been sick off and on.

The Crowther boy, now in hospital for the fourth time, had pneumonia earlier in the winter. Most of their children have also had croup.

When the families started approaching different levels of government — to find out if the drainage was in fact polluted and coming into their wells — and to get the developer, E. W. Adye of Shawnigan Lake, to correct the ditch system — they found themselves being shuttled around by the bureaucracies, and, to date, no one will help them.

Each branch of the government told them that, because of regulations, it was not their responsibility, and today Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer of Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, said "to hell with them."

Whitbread, who had refused to take any tests of the well water, said the water has to be polluted and he blames it on what he calls the shallow, poorly constructed wells.

He said their problem would be solved if they connected to the city water system, or "if they boiled their water."

NOW, POLLUTION

Mrs. Strand said she can't afford the $500 it will take to connect, and Mrs. Crowther noted that the wells were part of the price of the houses, and that the city water system wasn't there when they moved in.

The two women had believed that government was there for "the protection of people" and now they have the feeling "the government doesn't care about us."

Some of these various dealings they had with government officials:

NOT REQUIRED

From P. W. Miller of the provincial Pollution Control Branch; "Development above your property has not a single effluent discharge of greater than 5,000 gallons per day, and therefore a permit under the Pollution Control Act, 1967, is not required. Considering the above observations your complaint does not fall within our jurisdiction . . ."

From district engineer E. A. Lund of the department of highways, which built three culverts under the road separating the subdivision and the two beleaguered properties and allowed the drainage to come down:

"The department of highways is only required by law to adequately pass the water from one side of the road to the other . . . the department is not prepared to work further on private property."

The Strands and Crowthers did get some help from one government official, P. G. Odynsky, district engineer of the water rights branch, but today he said he can only go so far in making developer Adye correct the ditch system.

Odynsky wrote asking the developer to correct it by last Friday, but to date it hasn't been corrected. Odynsky says he will now order Adye to correct it. But "if he disobeys the order, it is as far as I can go."

He explained that the complainants will then have to go to the RCMP and lay charges.

Adye was not available for comment today on what he plans to do.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Strand and Mrs. Crowther are disappointed and angry, and are planning legal action — against whom they are not quite sure.

Said Mrs. Strand wearily, as she surveyed her ruined paradise: "We left Vic West to give the kids a life in the country and have pets (even the dog is sick) and my land is polluted. I can't even put a garden in."

"Out here, we have found, it is the survival of the fittest," said Mrs. Crowther.

Correction Set For Job Forms

Employment application forms used by Standard Furniture Co. and a company associated with Standard will be corrected, Jack Sherlock, director of the labor department's human rights branch, said today.

He said VI Service Management Co. Ltd., 808 Viewfield, a recently-created company which has contracted to run the warehouse owned by Standard, has written to say it is changing employment application forms to delete improper questions.

Sherlock said Standard Furniture has referred the question to a lawyer, but the company "knows it has to and I expect it will be squared away."

He said provincial legislation prohibits employers from asking, on job application forms, such details as the person's race, birthplace and religious affiliation.

The Teamsters Union filed complaints with the human rights branch that Standard Furniture forms ask what clubs, societies and church "now or formerly" applicants have been affiliated with, as well as questions about birthplace and citizenship.

With one exception, church affiliation, the union said the questions were the same on application forms used by the recently-created company which runs the Esquimalt warehouse.

INQUEST ORDERED BY A-G

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday he has ordered an inquest into the March 21 death of Karl Wolfgang Ladinig of 3 Mark Lane in unorganized territory north of Durrance Lake.

Peterson said he has acceded to a request from the boy's father, Karl Ladinig, for an inquest rather than the inquiry ordered previously by the attorney-general.

The inquest will be conducted by Victoria Provincial Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jore, Peterson said. In a letter to Peterson last week, Mr. Ladinig asked for an inquest to allow a full investigation into the need for emergency ambulance services in unorganized territories.

Young Ladinig, 19, was pronounced dead on arrival at Queen Victoria Hospital at 9:15 a.m. His father first called Saanich police at 7:40 a.m.

The Durrance Lake area where the Ladinigs live is served by RCMP. An RCMP officer and a Sidney volunteer fireman left for Mark Lane at 8:05 a.m.

The reached the remote address by 8:30. The young man had been unconscious for about two hours when his father called Saanich.

But What's an SLR With a Normal Lens?

LAST WINTER, OR PERhaps I should say earlier this winter, my wife decided it was time to get some order into the family snapshot jumble. As the pile of filled albums grew higher, certain facts about our ventures into photography became apparent.

One was that if the picture-taking had been left to me, we'd have maybe a dozen blurry shots of people with heads or feet cut off, all of them dangling fish. Also, if we hoped to trap the fleeting moment to best advantage, we should think about getting more adequate equipment.

We didn't realize it then, but with that decision, we had taken our first step away from the happy innocence enjoyed by the casual poke-and-shoot snapshot taker. The next step came when we dropped in at a photographic supply depot for information.

We got it. The man behind the counter was a cheerful enthusiast only too willing to hold forth on his pet subject.

But he made the error that the possessor of specialized knowledge tumbles into all too easily when confronted by the uninformed. He assumed that we had at least a basic understanding, and we never did get a chance to put him striaght.

"What's an SLR with a normal lens?" I asked my partner when we got outside.

"Your guess is as good as mine," Win said. "He might as well have been speaking a different language." Half a block later, she added gloomily, "If we're going on with this we'd better start at kindergarten level."

We got hold of a book on photography written by an adult for the bright, modern child. It helped, but not enough, so we tried another book. That treatment was the work of a 14-year-old camera bug who sensibly assumed that the little kids he wrote it for didn't know anything.

He laid out the photographic process in the simplest of terms, and his book was plentifully supplied with sketches.

We then placed ourselves in the hands of a camera expert, after telling him before he could so much as open his mouth that we didn't speak photographers' language.

He responded by giving us much good advice, making sure that Win understood it even if I didn't, and selling us a 35-millimetre single lens reflex camera with 50-millimetre normal lens. In a roundabout, tactful way, he also managed to convey a suggestion that it might be better if my wife took the pictures.

That hint fell gratefully on my ears. Still, I did have a few unanswered questions, and fetched them out on the way home.

Like why, if it was a 35-millimetre camera, did it have that 50-millimetre lens? And which was the gizmo you pressed to take a picture, and what was the function of the little crank that folded into the flat knob on top?

"I'll explain it all to you sometime," Win said. "Only first, maybe you should read that book again."

In the weeks since, we have made several interesting discoveries about photography as a hobby. One of these is that a camera by itself is merely a unit in a progression on which we've no more than made a start.

Small accessories have a way of proliferating. Larger ones suggest themselves. A projector and screen, for instance, so we won't have to peer at our slides through a dinky little viewer. Other lenses . . . a telephoto to bring the picture subject closer, and a wide-angle to spread out the scenery.

We haven't got the wide-angle yet, but the telephoto's in the bag which has grown appreciably heavier since I first hung it on my shoulder and trudged after my dear one on a picture-taking junket.

Our last expedition took us to the cove beach. I went off along the flats to steer a congregation of breakfasting gulls within range, and arrived with the last straggler of the flock opposite Win's position.

It occurred to me as she tracked the gull with the telephoto that she looked darn near professional.

"One five-hundredth at F8," she observed in photographer-language."

Since then, I've banged off a few shots myself. They didn't turn out very well, but the gull one did. It will look good on a screen when we get around to that projector.

Comcore Purchases Plant

TORONTO (CP) — Comcore Communications Ltd. of Toronto said today it has purchased Grant Advertising Inc. of Chicago which operates 36 offices in 26 countries, including three in Canada.

Comcore said the purchase creates a $100-million international advertising agency.

David Gillespie, Comcore president, said the acquisition will give Canada "its first Canadian-controlled advertising - marketing-communications organization with both U.S. and world-wide subsidiaries."

Grant has annual advertising billings of about $60 million and Comcore's four companies about $40 million.

One of Comcore's companies — Baker, Lovick, BBDO — is the second-largest individual agency in Canada. Comcore also owns Tandy Advertising Ltd., Rapport Public Relations Ltd. and BFM Promotions Ltd.

Comcore is owned 70 per cent by its Canadian employees and 30 per cent by Batten, Barton, Dursine and Osborn Inc. of New York.

Unions Strike In Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — A province-wide strike by 210,000 public service employees caused widespread disruption today of schooling and hospital services and threw public utility workers, some of whom are affected by restraining court injunctions, into confusion.

The walkout, second general public service strike in two weeks, disrupted hospital care for thousands of Quebecers, forced hundreds of schools to close, brought civil service functions to a standstill and closed provincially-run liquor stores.

It also disrupted court proceedings as provincially-employed workers set up pickets outside courthouses.

In one case, Sessions Court Judge Andre Fabien held an open air court session outside Montreal's city hall when pickets blocked access to regular court rooms.

Union leaders said today's strike will be "prolonged" beyond 24 hours. It was called because of deadlocked contract negotiations with the provincial government.

In Quebec City, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said the government is considering seeking contempt citations against unions which do not respect Superior Court injunctions ordering workers providing essential services to stay on the job during the strike.

Soldiers Die For Hooligans

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Two British soldiers trying to herd rock-throwing youngsters away from a suspected bomb site were killed Monday night when the explosives went off, the army said. The Irish Republican Army promptly claimed responsibility for the killings.

Right-wing Protestants, angered by the soldiers' deaths, criticized British government efforts to conciliate Roman Catholics and demanded the army invade areas held by the outlawed IRA.

The victims of Monday night's Londonderry blast were Lance Bombardier Eric Blackburn, 24, and Bombardier Brian Thomasson, 21, commander and second in command of a patrol rushed to the bowling green pavilion in the Roman Catholic Rosemount district after an anonymous telephone caller warned that a bomb had been planted there.

The patrol found the bomb and, while waiting for explosives experts to arrive, dispersed gangs of rock-throwing "young hooligans," an army spokesman said.

"They got rid of the youths once and moved behind safe cover," the army spokesman said. "But the youths started throwing rocks again. Blackburn and Thomasson moved out into the open to warn them off. The blast caught them before they could regain cover. They gave their lives saving those young hooligans."

Just Wonderful to Be Alive!

Except one item.

It was a crayon illustrated poem called Thank You For Life that she wrote herself. It said:

"Thank you Lord for letting me be alive today.
"Thank you for my family.
"We do live quite happily.
"We always play together.
"Oh! Thank you for the sunshine weather.
"It's just wonderful to be alive!"

Tami's father, Gary, a lieutenant with the suburban Carmichael fire department, said he and his wife found the poem the day after his little girl died last Thursday of leukemia.

"My wife looked in a folder, and there was this poem right on top. We've never seen it before. I wonder if she planned it that way."

Her father said he found out in December, 1970, that Tami had the deadly disease.

"We never told her that she had leukemia because we always hoped she'd be home well again," Hogan said. "We just told her it was an infection."

Tami's teacher, Sister Mary Carton of Our Lady of the Assumption school, said the little girl knew something was wrong.

"She said once she wished she could have just one day when she didn't feel sick."

Provincial Jobless Ranks Rise

Times News Services

Unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 8.6 per cent — 82,000 persons — during the month of March, Statistics Canada reported today.

In February, unemployment in B.C. stood at 7.6 per cent, or 70,000 persons. In March of last year, 8.3 per cent of the work force was unemployed.

The B.C. figures were unusual because unemployment generally drops in March and secondly because unemployment did show a slight decline for March everywhere in Canada except B.C. and the Atlantic provinces.

Across the nation, jobless figures showed approximately 642,000 people out of work. This was an increase from 627,000 in Feburary, but represented an improvement over the 650,000 unemployed in March, 1971.

RATE UP

Translated into percentages, the national unemployment rate now stands at 7.4 per cent, up from 7.3 per cent in February, but below last year's March figure of 7.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the usual March trend downward had been countered by an unusual influx of new job seekers in the over-all labor force across Canada this month, up 103,000 to almost 8.66 million. The biggest increase— 46,000 — was among younger workers, up to age 24.

The Atlantic provinces remained hardest-hit by unemployment with a March rate of 12.1 per cent, an increase both over February's 11.1 per cent and last March's 10.9 per cent. There are now 80,000 people without jobs in the Maritimes.

QUEBEC BETTER

The Quebec rate declined last month to 9.3 per cent of the labor force from 9.5 in February and 10.1 a year ago. Ontario's rate eased down to 5.6 last month from 5.7 in February and 6.1 a year ago. The Prairie rate declined to 5.4 from 5.6 in February and 5.9 a year ago.

Across the country the rate

CHARGES DROPPED AGAINST CUBANS

MONTREAL (CP) — All charges were dropped today against six Cubans arrested a week ago when a bomb shattered offices of the Cuban trade commission in Montreal.

The Cubans, employees of the trade commission, were charged after interfering with police investigations of the April 4 blast that resulted in the death of a Cuban guard.

A Cuban claim that the six nationals were entitled to diplomatic immunity resulted in some temporary confusion involving Montreal police, the Quebec justice department and the federal external affairs department.

The six were charged with obstructing police. Three also were charged with illegal possession of firearms.

In municipal court today, Judge Paul Champagne was asked to drop all charges at the request of the external affairs department and Quebec justice department.

B-52 Raids Upset China

Times News Service

PEKING — The Chinese leadership is believed to be extremely displeased over the new U.S. air and naval build-up in the Indochina war theatre and is concerned by the use of B-52 bombers deep inside North Vietnam, diplomats said today.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is thought to have received assurances from President Nixon during his visit to China in February that the U.S. was winding down its involvement in Vietnam.

U.S. statements that the escalated air and naval action is to protect withdrawing American troops are regarded in Peking as an extremely threadbare argument, particularly in relation to strikes by the giant eight-engined bombers near the North Vietnamese city of Vinh, 170 miles south of Hanoi.

Meanwhile, fresh North Vietnamese troops moving in from the A Shau Valley have launched five assaults on fire base Bastogne 10 miles southwest of Hue in a threat to the city and the northernmost American base in South Vietnam, field dispatches said today.

The five attacks carried out under heavy mortar fire were repulsed with the loss of 126 Communists left hanging on the barbed wire defenses. But the United States rushed 400 American combat troops and artillery battery to Phu Cai, 10 miles east of Bastogne, the reports said.

In Chon Thanh Maj.-Gen. James Hollingsworth said today the Communist troops who struck north of Saigon are on the run and his objective is to kill them before they flee to Cambodia.

He conceded, however, that this may be impossible because it is like hunting "mice in a haystack."

The broad-shouldered general in crisp green fatigues said the South Vietnamese troops are fighting "magnificently — their morale is high and they're doing a tremendous job."

B.C. GOV'T BUYS TIME TO EXPLAIN POLICIES

By PETER McNELLY
Times Staff

The provincial government announced today it has bought advertising time on all B.C. radio stations so cabinet ministers can explain "government policies" over the air for the next four months.

The time will be paid for with taxpayers' money and used to broadcast a series of five one-minute radio spots every Saturday and Sunday to be called Ask Your Provincial Government. The move was announced in a written press release distributed by the provincial secretary's department.

Former radio man Ray Orchard, who now works in this department, said today he was told three weeks ago by deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace to begin working out a format for the program.

Orchard said the idea was developed by Victoria radio station president Clare Copeland in co-operation with the government.

He said Copeland wanted to get some supplementary weekend material to fill in weekend radio broadcasts from B.C. Radio News, a CFAX-owned political news service.

Copeland was in Toronto today, unavailable for comment, but CFAX vice-president Keith Dagg said all provincial radio stations are receiving today a sample of the kind of program together with promotional tapes.

Each station will buy the program individually. Dagg said he saw no conflict of interest in running prepackaged government advertising. He said Copeland and New Westminster radio station CKNW manager Mel Cooper worked out production details with the government.

Orchard was unable to place a cost estimate on the program, but Dagg said C-FAX's rate for one minute is $21. Over a four-month period, this means the program will cost provincial taxpayers an estimated $138,600.

B.C. Opposition leader Dave Barrett and Liberal leader Pat McGeer today demanded the government make equal time available to all opposition parties at public expense as long as the program is running.

Barrett said the Ask Your Provincial Government Show is an "unbelievable use of public funds for Social Credit propaganda.

"This government is so arrogant that new people are turning to the NDP every day."

He said the government should set up a program for the opposition on the same basis it is doing for itself.

"A democracy cannot be run by one man alone. Unless there is similar access to the information lines to the opposition, then the premier is out to prove the charge that he's a dictator."

McGeer also demanded

LABOR CRISIS

LONDON (CP) — Lord Chalfont said today he is quitting his post in the opposition Labor party, joining three other top members who resigned in protest of Harold Wilson's European Common Market policies. It was the worst crisis to hit the party in 20 years. Earlier story on Page 12.

Energy Crisis 'Here Now'

Times News Services

The United States and Canada are facing an immediate "energy crisis" that is expected to worsen over the next decade in a string of power blackouts and fuel shortages, according to business and political leaders in both nations.

In Washington, U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton told a congressional committee Monday that, while the public uses far more fuel and electrical energy than ever before, production in these fields is badly lagging.

Forty to 50 new electrical power plants, due to begin operations this summer, probably won't because of environmental, technical, construction and licensing problems, Morton said.

Another witness, U.S. Under Secretary of State John Irwin said it may be as early as 1980 — only eight years away — that the United States will need to import half of the oil it will consume. About one-third of the total consumed would have to come from the Middle East, he said, adding that even new discoveries of oil in Alaska will not meet the demand.

Committee Chairman Wayne Aspinall said the hearings were called to spotlight for the American people the imminent energy crisis. "The problem," he said, "is that Americans are beginning to consume more energy than they produce. We are energy gluttons."

Also in Washington, a separate senate subcommittee hearing was told Monday that the Pacific northwest can expect electrical power shortages soon.

H. R. Richmond, administrator of the Bonneville power administration said "Total peak deficits are forecast in five of the next six years and firm peak deficits are forecast in four of the next six years.

In a related move in Seattle Monday, city council refused to reconsider its approval of plans by the Seattle City Light company to raise the Ross Dam on the Skagit River. The dam will flood some 5,200 acres in the Skagit Valley and has been opposed by conservationists.

But council feels the dam is vital to future power needs in the Seattle area.

In Toronto, an oil company executive also forecast an "energy crunch" in Canada within the next decade.

Z. P. Pokrupa, consultant economist with Shell Canada Ltd. in Toronto, said Canada's "period of cheap energy is over," and we must face the fact that the cost of producing energy is definitely on the increase throughout the world."

Nuclear plants, "will eventually provide almost unlimited energy," but this is in the future, Pokrupa said.

He said coal, natural gas and oil will be used in large quantities until nuclear power systems are perfected, and the cost for these resources will climb with increased demand.

Iran Quake Toll Rises

TEHERAN — Army rescue teams worked around the clock today, digging victims of Monday's devastating earthquake from the rubble of their homes as the estimated death toll climbed toward 5,000.

Further minor tremors — an average of one every 90 seconds — hampered the rescuers with threats of fresh landslides throughout southern Iran.

The Pars news agency of Iran reported that 963 persons were killed in the town of Qeer and that some 4,000 others lost their lives in 44 other villages levelled by the quake.

The Geophysics Institute at Shiraz University reported more than 1,000 tremors had hit the quake region since the first devastating shock Monday.

It will be a number of days before the final toll is known, relief officials said.

The repeated earth shocks caused panic among survivors fleeing demolished villages. Most of them pitched tents on surrounding plains scarred by wide fissures.
